

Peabody Lists 4 RILW Needs

By Lavonne Althouse

Four things must be incorporated into a Religion-in-Life Week program if it is to meet the needs of the College community, the Rev. John Peabody, chairman of RILW, said yesterday.

In the first place, he said, it should present as forcefully as possible the particular genius of the two great Western religious traditions, Judaism and Christianity. Past Religion-in-Life Weeks, the minister said, have been too generally concerned with presenting social problems and not enough concerned with presenting God.

Need Good Men

"Our aim has not been to present the lowest common denominator between the two great traditions," the Rev. Peabody explained, "but to present the best in each and particularly to present a statement of classical theology."

The second concern, the Rev. Peabody said, is to have the case

College Is 49th In Graduates In 'Who's Who'

A poll of the total number of graduates listed in the 1950 "Who's Who in America" ranks Penn State 49th among United States colleges and universities.

The study, published in School and Society, was made by B. W. Kunkel, Lafayette College, and D. B. Prentice, of the Scientific Research Society of America, New Haven, Conn.

Penn State had only 39 graduates listed in 1938. The 119 named in 1950 make a gain of 105 per cent. Of those listed in the 1950 edition, 25.2 per cent received their diplomas between 1920 and 1924.

Harvard holds first place with 1566 graduates, an increase of 11 per cent since 1938. Yale is second with 1299. Also at the top are Michigan, Princeton, Columbia, U. S. Military Academy, Cornell, Wisconsin, U. S. Naval Academy, and Chicago.

Only bachelor degrees were used in the study of 963 colleges and universities.

Five Students Plead Guilty

Five students pleaded guilty Wednesday afternoon to charges of violating the State College minors ordinance. The plea came during an arraignment before Guy G. Mills, justice of the peace.

Paul Austin, Richard A. Clark, Robert Dahle, Theodore Halkedis, and William Yerkes were ordered to pay fines of $25 each, plus costs. Another man, Joseph Serabis, was scheduled to attend the hearing but did not appear.

The six men were picked up at the Spa on S. Allen street last Friday night in a surprise raid by the borough police and State Liquor Control Board agents.

The case involving the management of the SPA has not yet been decided, authorities said.

Engineering Lecture

There will be a senior engineering lecture at 4:10 p.m. today in Schwab Auditorium. George Leetch, director of College Placement, will speak on the topic, "Student Employment."

Mixer Set Next Friday By APhiO

Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity will hold a pledge mixer next Friday in the Hugh Beaver Room in Old Main. About 75 men are needed for pledging.

At present, the group has 100 active members.

The requirements for membership in the organization are a desire to render service, previous affiliation with the Boy Scouts, and satisfactory scholastic attainment.

At the College, Alpha Phi Omega serves by going to the infirmary every night to take orders from patients for refreshments and cigarettes. They help with the College elections and sponsor the "Ugly Man" contest each year.

The group sets up the Mardi Gras along with the Mortar Board. Alpha Phi Omega took part in the Orientation Week activities by setting up an information booth on Pollock road to aid new students.

During Religion-in-Life Week, it provided transportation for the speakers and escorted them to their respective meetings.

This spring, Alpha Phi Omega will sponsor an Easter egg hunt for the Windcrest children and will conduct a use-the-walk campaign to preserve the campus.

Rosfeld Named Student Gov't Clinic Director

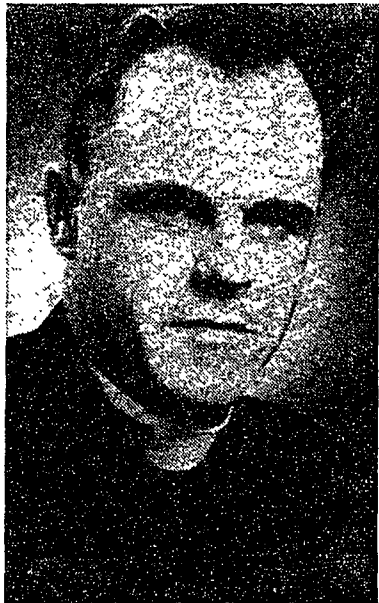

Arthur Rosfeld, junior in arts and letters, has been named director of the second annual Student Government Clinic, to be held April 19 and 20 at the College.

The announcement was made by William Klisanin, president of the Pennsylvania region of the National Student Association, sponsor of the clinic.

The meeting will be a conference and clinic open to all college student governments in the state. Student governments from New Jersey and West Virginia may also be included in the clinic, Klisanin said.

The first clinic was held last year as Muhlenberg College.

In 1596 Shakespeare owned enough property in the London parish of St. Helen's, Bishopsgate, to have his taxes assessed at five pounds, a large sum in those days.

Rev. John Peabody

for religion presented by the very best men available.

Commenting on this year's program, he said, "I think we were successful on this point. We aimed at getting men who are known scholars and theologians but who are also active in the social struggle."

Traditional Services

The third aim of the RILW program, the Rev. Peabody continued, was to present the entire program in such a way as to make it attractive to both faculty and students.

Having worship services in the particular traditions of the various participating groups was the Rev. Peabody's concluding objective.

These were the ideas around which he and the RILW committee built this year's program, the Rev. Peabody said.

LOIS BROWN AND ANN QUIGLEY lead members of Cwens, women's hat society, and freshman women in songs and cheers at a rally for freshman women yesterday afternoon at the bulletin board in front of Carnegie. Forty-five freshman women participated in the Frosh Day activities sponsored by Cwens.

45 Freshman Women Observe 'Frosh Day'

Forty-five of the 48 first semester freshman women gathered at 12:30 p.m. yesterday in front of the Carnegie Hall bulletin board to carry out "Frosh Day" as set up by Cwens, sophomore women's activity honorary.

Standing in the cold, with slight snow flurries, the freshman women were led in songs and cheers by Lois Brown, Roseann Monack, and Ann Quigley, members of the cheerleading squad. Active members of Cwens aided in the song leading and cheering.

To Instill Purpose

Wearing their green bows and carrying their Student Handbooks, this was the first time since customs began that the women were gathered in one group.

The purpose of the rally, according to Marian Ungar, chairman of the committee, was to instill spirit within the first semester women and to teach them the College songs and cheers.

The rally, which Cwens undertook as a project, was approved by Joan Yerger, chairman of the Freshman Customs and Regulations Board. The cases of three first semester women who did not attend the meeting will be handled by the FCRB, according to

Still Singing

The 45 freshman women were slow in coming to the rally, but finally arrived by 12:40 p.m. The singing, a little weak at first, became more vigorous when the Cwens agreed to match their force.

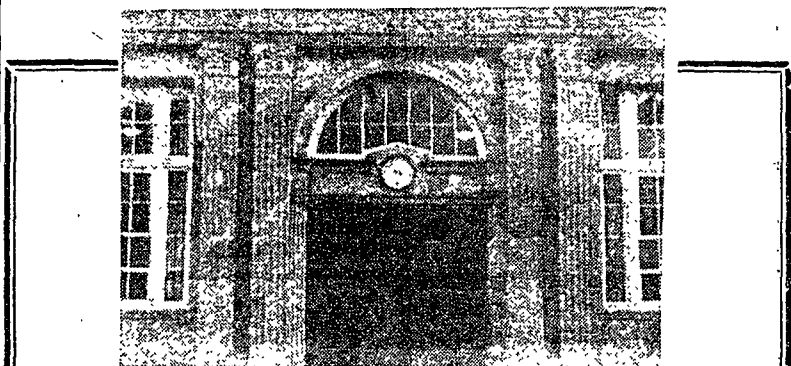

The rally, ending at 1 p.m. so that freshmen could get to their classes, seemed to have the effect that it was meant to have, according to Miss Ungar. Many freshmen left the scene singing.
