

The Lion's Lair

By ERNIE MOORE
Collegian Sports Editor

Many sports fans last week read of the Baseball Players' Golf Tournament played in Miami. Jack Russell, former major league pitcher, won the tournament by defeating Dick Bartell, Detroit Tiger coach, in the finals, 3 and 2.

However, many Penn State fans missed a paragraph at the bottom of the story which read:

Ken Yount, pitcher for Niagara Falls last year, won the minor league championship by downing Art Sommerfield of Peoria, Ill., of the Three-I League, 3 and 1.

Only a few people around campus will remember Yount as a pitcher for Coach Joe Bedenk's Nittany Lions' back in 1941, '46, and '47. The Kittaning product first came out for the Lion nine as an outfielder, but Bedenk soon had him working on the mound.

After the 1941 season, Yount entered the service and didn't return to Penn State until 1946 when he again donned a uniform and helped pitch the Lions to one of their best seasons. Yount won six games while losing only one as Penn State posted a 9-1 record.

The next season, the Lions won 11 of 18 and one of those wins was a sparkling one-hitter by Yount against Western Maryland.

After graduation he played ball for Harrisburg before moving to Niagara Falls. Last season, Yount posted a 20 game season for the Middle Atlantic League team.

Apparently a pretty fair golfer, Yount went to finals in the minor league tournament last winter.

While checking back through old Collegians for Yount's baseball record we ran into the name of Orient "Ogie" Martella, who was Yount's battery mate. After the 1947 season, Martella was picked to play in the East-

West All-Star game in Fenway Park, home of the Boston Red Sox. The East won the game and "Ogie" made one of the prize fielding plays of the game on a bunt down the third base line.

"Ogie" now assists Eddie Sulkowski with the boxing team, and last baseball season, coached the Penn State freshman nine.

Another former Lion baseball star, Owen Dougherty, showed up on campus yesterday. "Doc" pitched for Bedenk's team last season and was named to the district all-star team. He also captained the football squad.

Wingback and pitcher Dougherty is now Lt. Dougherty of the United States Air Force. Last summer Owen pitched for the Wright-Patterson team in Dayton, Ohio, and expects to play for the service team again this summer.

George Glazer, Collegian city editor, while driving back to State after watching the Penn-Penn State basketball game, happened to tune in on a Philadelphia disc jockey. These were the first three songs played: "Just One More Chance," "It's All Over Now," "Never." Hope that's not the writing on the wall.

Bob Vosburg, assistant sports editor, thought he'd like to see the game first hand also. He left by car around 3 p.m. He didn't get into Philly until after midnight—the car broke down. He couldn't get the game on the car radio, didn't get the score until the Philadelphia Inquirer put its early edition on the street!

Edinboro, Sinkers Roll To Sixth IM Cage Wins

Edinboro, defending independent IM cage champion, rolled to its sixth victory Thursday night by smashing previously unbeaten Joe's Boys, 63-25.

Although the winners led only 20-11 at halftime, Joe's Boys could not get in the game in the second half. Edinboro's famed trio of Bill Mihalich, Glenn Brown, and Ken Bouldin scored 46 points between them. Mihalich had 19, Brown scored 16, and Bouldin tallied 11. The win assured Edinboro of at least a tie for the League I crown.

Another powerhouse, the Sinkers, walloped Simmons Hall, 49-12, to tie Dorm 38 for the League J lead with six wins and one loss. Joe Garrity led the winners with 19 points.

Win Sixth Straight
Dorm 14 and the Vandals both notched their fifth triumphs to throw the League H race into a three-way tie. The Dinks also have five wins and one loss to share first place with the Vandals and Dorm 14. Dorm 14 dropped the Dorkers, 35-19, while the Vandals mauled the Muleskinners, 33-15.

The undefeated Wildcats of League G won their sixth consecutive victory by edging the Helots by a 19-15 score. At halftime, the score was tied, 5-5. The Wildcats must play the Terrapins, also unbeaten in six starts, in the final game March 3.

Grover Gets 12

Altoona and the Stars scored wins to hold on to their slim hopes of catching the high-flying Foresters, 6-0, in League F. Ed Parrish's 15 points led Altoona to a 36-19 conquest of the Lords. The Stars, led by Charles Pryor's 13 markers, dumped G.F.O. by a 43-30 score. Altoona and the Stars both have identical 5-1 slates.

The Hot Shots won their fourth game in League I by dropping the Basketeers, 23-17, as Jarvis Grover tallied 12 points for the winners.

The Falcons recorded win number two by taking a forfeit from the Colonial 5.

Penn State Gymnasts Entertain Tough Syracuse This Afternoon

By BOB SCHOELLKOPF

Penn State's gymnastics team will attempt to stretch its home winning streak to three this afternoon at 2 when it clashes with once-beaten Syracuse. All indications point to a close meet with each team equally balanced in almost every point.

Both squads will carry a record of two wins and one loss into the meet. The only team that has been able to upset the Lions and the Orange is Army, who defeated State, 58-38, and beat Syracuse by an almost identical score, 60-37.

Syracuse Coach Paul Romeo will stand pat on his starting lineup, which has been one of the best in the East this season.

The highlight of the Orange lineup is found in the tumbling event, where Romeo's charges pick up their meet-deciding points.

Starting with Jim Sebbo, sensational freshman tumbler who does a triple full twist in his routine, and finishing with two other better-than-average matmen in Hugh Goldstein and Ronnie Bloom, the Orange present a formidable mat array.

In the high bar event Romeo plans to pit his ace, Milan Trnka, against the Lions' Jan Cronstedt, who has yet to lose in this specialty this season. Triple-threat Johnny Barkal and John Mikle will round out Syracuse's h-bar team.

Barkal is Romeo's top man on the sidehorse and on the parallel bars. In the Orange's last meet with Army, he garnered firsts in the p-bars and h-bar events, but could register only a fourth in the sidehorse.

Another three-event man, Ferdie Fournies, will perform in the second slot in the sidehorse event with Dan Trafficante ranked third. Trnka, who is rated as a fine parallel bars man, but who failed to even place in Syracuse's meet with the Cadets, will remain second-seeded in this event for today's encounter with the Lions. George Hendricks is ranked as Syracuse's third best man in this specialty.

Fournies will round out his day's performance by showing his wares on the flying rings and rope climbing events. The Orange's top man in both specialties, he took third in each event against Army.

Edwin Katzman and Andy Felice are ranked second and third, respectively, in the rope climb.

In the rings event Romeo is undecided about using either Ronnie Bloom or Goldstein behind Fournies. Third man for Syracuse in this event will be Art Schmitt.

Lion Coach Gene Wettstone said that flashcards, which were introduced last Saturday in the meet with Navy, will be used again for today's meet.

2 U.S. Entries Win 2d Places In Olympics

OSLO, Feb. 22 —(AP)— Uncle Sam's bull-shouldered bobsledders and rhythmic figure skaters took the silver medals while Germany grabbed the gold today and the sixth winter Olympics moved toward their climax with no hope for America to overtake Norway for the team championship.

The dare-devil innkeeper of Garmisch, Andreas Ostler, led two more lightning runs down Froggerssteteren's icy chute to capture the four-man bobsled title and complete an Olympic double slam.

Again America's fine No. 1 sled, guided by Stan Benham of Lake Placid, N.Y., was second while the second American entry, twice miraculously saved from disaster yesterday, came in ninth in the field of 15.

Later in brightly-lit Bislett Stadium, with a crowd of 15,000 cheering them on, Germany's world champion figure skating pair, Ria and Paul Falk, beat out their keenest rivals, Karol and Peter Kennedy of Seattle, Wash., for the gold medals in that glamorous specialty.

The Kennedys—a sister-brother team making its second appearance in the Olympics—put on a spectacular exhibition of skating, giving an artistic program to the accompaniment of a medley of folk songs.

But it was Ria Falk, a petite blonde, and her husband, Paul, who brought thundering applause from the spectators with their dazzling act performed to the music of Beethoven.

The United States ice hockey team, beaten by Sweden, bounced back for a 5-3 victory over Poland. It was the fifth win in six games for the Americans and kept them in the running—although their chances are remote—for the championship.
