

Coed's Poodle Cut Attracts Real Canine

By ELLEN PHILLIPS

I was walking along S. Allen yesterday when I heard steps behind me. Then a guttural tone issued forth, followed by a low swoon. I turned around.

I looked—no one was there. Then I dropped my eyes, and low and behold, my admirer—a cute, wide-eyed poodle.

He was staring at me with a look of affinity for a pup with the same hair style.

The situation did not seem so strange after I ran my fingers through my hair and realized that I, too, am a poodle!

I stooped down and looked at my canine friend.

"You see, pup, it's like this," I said. "Contrary to your impression, I'm really not a genuine poodle at all."

He tipped his head, took a long look, and then nodded doubtfully.

"Well," I continued, "all the coeds are doing it, honestly."

"It just isn't fair, the things that have been happening to poodles these days," he said. "It's positively human!"

He was right, I agreed; it shouldn't happen to a dog.

"Why all these coeds try to look like poodles, I'll never know," he said. "Betcha in a million years they couldn't act like one. Did you ever try to bark?"

"Noooo," I replied.

"Walk on all fours, maybe?"

"Noooooo."

"But you never thought twice when you did that thing to your hair, did you?" he asked.

"You have me on the spot there," I admitted.

"Now you see, it isn't easy to be a poodle. You just don't have the proper qualifications," he explained.

"My hair really grows very fast," I said. "And never again will I try to be a poodle."

"Well, I'll forgive you this time," he decided, "but that isn't going to help my love life any."

"I'll tell you what," I said. "I know a nice pup I can fix you up with. Would you be interested in a blind date with a Bedlington terrier?"

His eyes lit up. "Well," he said, "maybe that would be nice. But you know those dames are usually pretty blind... never believe in combing their hair."

"I know," I soothed, "but she's really quite chic... a low voice, and oh, what a swagger!"

"Okay," he said, "I'll take you up on that."

Now that an understanding had been reached, we shook paws... I mean I shook his paw in my hand... for never again shall I be a poodle.

Independents To Crown Kitzmiller

Mary Ann Kitzmiller will be crowned first Penn State Independent Sweetheart at the Barons' Dance tonight in the TUB, after the Pitt basketball game.

Miss Kitzmiller was chosen on the basis of personality, poise, and beauty. She will receive an all-expense-paid trip to the National Independent Student Association convention at the University of Oklahoma April 10 to 12. Miss Kitzmiller will vie for national sweetheart honors at the convention.

The winner was chosen from five finalists by Daniel DeMarino, assistant Dean of Men, Palmer Weaver, professor of education, and William Brown, representative of the Association of Independent Men.

The other finalists were Patricia Leis, Marilyn McComb, Margaret Porterfield, and Florence Rosenthal. They were chosen by Ann Burlingame and Patricia Hall, representing Leonides, and William Brown and Frank Reese, representing AIM.

The sweetheart contest was sponsored by Leonides and AIM, and is the first of its type held at the College.

Sororities Schedule At Homes

Sororities will hold At Homes from 2 to 5 p.m. tomorrow to start the final week of formal rushing.

Rushes may stay no longer than one hour at a sorority suite during the At Homes, and may not revisit a suite during the afternoon. Rushes may attend no more than four At Homes. Date dresses and heels should be worn. Refreshments will be served from 3 to 3:30 p.m., according to the rushing code.

Rushes may pick up party invitations at 10 a.m. Monday at the Panhellenic post office. Rushes may accept two party invitations, which must be turned in at the post office by 1 p.m. Monday.

Each sorority will hold a party Monday night, and another party with the same theme Tuesday night. The post office will balance the attendance at both nights' parties for each sorority. Rushes may call at the post office at 5 p.m. Monday to find out which nights they are to attend the parties of their choice. Party invitations, whether accepted or declined, will also serve as coke date invitations from 1 to 5 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday.

The parties will be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. both nights. Date dresses should be worn unless the invitation calls for special dress to fit the theme of the party.

Formal coffee hours on Wednesday night and ribboning on Thursday will conclude rushing for the spring semester.

Auto Parking Problem Eases

Capt. Philip A. Mark of the campus patrol reported yesterday that campus traffic and parking problems have eased up.

Only about "half as many" cars have been towed away this week as compared with the past few weeks, Mark said. He pointed out that the patrol is towing only about two cars a day now. A few weeks ago he reported as many as six a day were being towed.

The students have co-operated "pretty well" with the patrol in recent traffic problems, the captain said. He especially noted that double parking in the area behind Thompson Hall has become considerably less.

2 Graduates Write Magazine Articles

Betsy Lumley and Jane Pitkin, former students of the Division of Art Education, have contributed articles to professional magazines.

Nehru --

(Continued from page four) advocating humanity in economic affairs, have had their impact on the development of Western democracy. But it is not a part of the current world problem except as Russia still seeks to use it to befuddle the minds of some of her more credulous stooges.

Another thing that causes confusion about Nehru's attitude is his belief in Indian neutrality in the East-West conflict. He thinks that India can gain in stature by staying out of it and then, some day when events have changed things, stepping in to play the role of moderator between Russian communism and Western power politics in the Orient. He might do better to remember what happened to Belgium and Holland when they refused Allied aid in advance of Hitler's invasion. They had to be rescued from neutrality after some pretty bitter experiences.

At any rate, Nehru's outburst against the communists at his Thursday press conference suggests their activities have once again contributed to the cause of anti-communist unity.

Weekending With the Greeks

Costume parties are the order of the day, at several fraternities this weekend.

Beta Sigma Rho will hold a masquerade ball with a Mother Goose theme. Such characters as Humpty-Dumpty will be included in the decorations. Dick Dennis will play for the open affair.

An underwater scene complete with boats, octopi, and nautical costumes will be featured at Delta Sigma Phi's annual Sailor's Ball. Dancing begins at 8:30 with the Campuseers playing for the open affair.

State to Enter Flower Judging

Penn State will again enter the national intercollegiate flower judging contest to be held next Friday in Washington D.C. Prof. Peter Pfahl, the team coach, announced.

Four seniors in horticulture selected to represent the College are Robert Baer, Francis Hoffmann, Joseph Ondrejko, and Leon Stankowski.

At least 8 colleges and universities are expected to enter this year's contest which is held in connection with the National Flower Show, being held in the National Guard Armory in Washington. Ohio State University won the competition last year; Penn State won it three years ago.

Dorm Coeds May Return Serenades

Return serenades sung by women in the dormitories after fraternity serenades, if done in an orderly manner, are now permitted, according to a new ruling made by the Women's Student Government House of Representatives Thursday night.

Return serenading was not permitted by hostesses in the dormitories prior to this ruling.

When a fraternity serenade is expected, and a sorority or other group wishes to return it, the unit hostess should be informed beforehand, under the ruling.

Yvonne Carter, WSGA vice president, asked representatives to hold dormitory unit meetings this week to explain offices and requirements for nomination in the WSGA-Women's Recreation Association elections. Primary elections will be held on March 25 and finals on March 27.

Dormitory unit meetings will be held during the week of March 17, when all nominees for WSGA and WRA offices will be introduced to dormitory women.

Miss Carter appointed a committee to contact Russell Clark, director of housing, to try to obtain hot plates for Atherton Hall.

Students to Choose Stock Sponsorship

The drawing for sponsorship of entries to be represented in the 35th Little International Livestock Show is open to all Penn State students, not just those enrolled in the School of Agriculture, according to Joseph DePetro, assistant manager of the Little International Show.

The types of livestock to compete in the show on April 26 are beef cattle, sheep, horses, and swine.

The drawing will take place at the regular club meeting of the Block and Bridle Club at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in 106 Agriculture Building.

Bioforum Will See Movies of Canada

Dr. Harold Hanson, research associate of the Illinois Natural History Survey, will show a colored film of scenery and animal life of the Hudson Bay region of Canada to members of the Bioforum and other interested persons Monday at 7:30 p.m. in 105 Forestry Building.

Dr. Hanson recently completed a survey of Canada Geese nesting in the Hudson Bay region.
