

Parties Elect Officers, Adopt New Constitution

State Party Elects Farrell All-College Clique Chairman

Thomas Farrell was elected All-College clique chairman of the State Party at the first organized clique meeting of the party held Sunday night.

William Slepik was elected vice clique chairman and Beverly Morgan was elected secretary. All three candidates were unopposed.

Nominations for junior and senior class clique officers were continued with Jules Lippert being nominated for senior clique chairman and Jerome Feinburg for junior clique chairman. Previously, Robert Sherman had been nominated for senior vice clique chairman and Anne Quigley for junior secretary.

Final nominations and elections for the junior and senior clique officers will be made at the next clique meeting.

Farrell explained the proposed expansion of the party steering committee which would give clique members more representation on the group. The proposal would add representatives for each school and for independent men and women, fraternity men, and sorority women. The additions would bring membership of the group to 38.

According to the plan, a student interested in becoming the party representative of his school would nominate himself for the position. A vote by members of that school would determine the nominee to assume the job.

Meyer Bushman, public relations chairman, gave a brief history of the State Party and its set-up, with a rundown of the results of all the campus elections since the party was founded in the fall of 1943.

Livestock Selection To Be Held

The selection of animals in the horse, beef cattle, and sheep divisions of livestock to be displayed in the forthcoming 35th annual Little International Livestock Show will be held at the regular meeting of the Block and Bridle Club at 7:30 tonight in 109 Agriculture Building.

All Penn State students are eligible to participate in the drawing for 49 beef cattle, 44 sheep, and 17 horses, according to Dorlin Hay, manager of the Little International Show.

H. K. Wilson, Dean of Men and former director of resident instruction of the School of Agriculture, urged "every student, regardless of his field of major interest, to participate in some way in these most significant traditional programs of the School of Agriculture." Wilson said further that for most students the experience "will not prove only educational but will be a lot of fun as well."

Beef cattle, sheep, horses, and swine were included in the show in former years. However, the swine division has been omitted from this competition because of an epidemic of hog cholera late last year.

No Proof Found On Marijuana Use

No evidence has been found to substantiate reports that marijuana is being used in the vicinity of the State College High School, John R. Juba, borough police chief, said yesterday.

The announcement came after a co-operative investigation by borough police, the State Narcotics Drug Control Board, and school officials.

Juba said complaints came originally from parents who were told by their children that marijuana was being used.

"All complaints . . . were tracked down," Juba reported, "but nothing was revealed to indicate the use of marijuana." Additional checks will be made, he said.

College Receives 3 'Winged Ants'

Three "winged ants"—all dead—arrived in the mail yesterday with a plea that the College "please advise us how to get rid of them."

A Wireton, Pa., woman said the unidentified insects "come in our living room and kitchen at night" and "I find from six to twelve of them every morning." They are the first insects of their kind the woman has seen in 20 years.

She enclosed three of the "winged ants" in a small sealed envelope and wondered "whether they're termites."

Board Asks Publications Information

In order to further study of the student press, student organizations publishing any form of newspaper, magazine, or newsletter have been asked to submit information on cost and production details to the Board of Publications.

The request for the information was made by Marvin Krasnansky, chairman of the board. Krasnansky said that it was necessary to have accurate knowledge of exactly how much printing is being done by student organizations.

We must have some idea of what the needs in press and other equipment will be in order for a Student Press to be able to handle all student printing, Krasnansky said. Another reason for the information, he said, was to provide some basis for an estimate on cost savings that might be realized from a student press.

Krasnansky asked student organizations to submit the following information to him:

A sample copy of the publication, with data on the number of times per year the publication appears, the number of copies printed, and the average cost per issue.

Krasnansky can be reached at the office of the Daily Collegian on the ground floor of Carnegie Hall.

Nation-Wide Publicity Given Court Freeze

Although the controversial Lion-Pitt basketball game in Rec Hall Saturday night didn't please the fans, it did attract much nationwide publicity for Penn State.

Basketball fans throughout the country read the 24-9 score in amazement. Many thought it was a typographical error. A telegram was sent to the campus from the Round-Up Cafe in Laramie, Wyo., asking whether the published 24-9 score was correct.

Many newspapers printed pictures of the game. The Associated Press sent a photo over their wirephoto network of the Lion's Jack Sherry and Pitt's John Kendrick standing with folded arms and looking into the stands. Yesterday's New York Times printed this picture along with a box score of the game.

Other newspapers which featured AP stories and pictures of the fiasco were the Philadelphia Inquirer and the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

The AP wrote a story about Nittany Coach Elmer Gross being disgusted with Carlson's action. Meanwhile Carlson defended his tactics and claimed it was the only way the Panthers had a chance to upset State.

Lion Constitution With 2 Changes Approved Sunday

With two minor changes, the proposed Lion Party constitution was approved without discussion or opposition as approximately 80 students attended the party meeting Sunday night.

Ray Evert, party chairman, read, explained, and inserted the changes in the article which was written by Alan Maloney and Clair George.

The first change makes it legal to open nominations for party, senior, and junior officers at the first meeting. The second says that a proposal to amend the constitution must be read at two meetings before being voted upon.

Major Change in Setup
Nominations for party officers were opened, but only one nomination, that of Alan Maloney for financial manager, was made.

The major change in the former party setup provided by the constitution is a cut in the power of the party chairman. He is now responsible for many of his actions to the executive committee which is made up of the four party officers, and the heads of all the classes.

Another change provided by the constitution is that any party member may be a member of the platform committee.

The constitution also states that steering committee nominations shall be given no different reception than others from the floor and shall not be stated as having the approval of the steering committee.

Council Asks Drinking Study

West Dorm Council last night passed a resolution requesting the president of the Association of Independent Men to ask All-College Cabinet to study drinking by minors and women at social activities at the College.

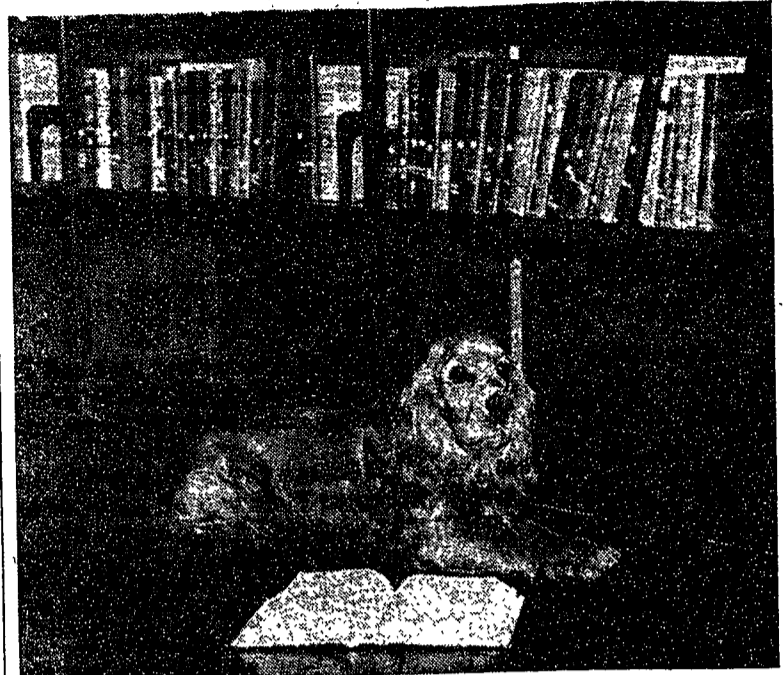

Charles Brewer introduced the resolution. He said cabinet should make a study of the problem to determine just where the problem lies.

In other council action, the amendment to the West Dorm Council constitution that would permit council members to miss two council meetings without alternates was passed by the necessary two-thirds majority.

Richard Mills, council president, said the executive committee would announce next week which council members are not in good standing as far as attendance of meetings is concerned.

Mills also reported that the dean of women had requested him to instruct the men of the West Dorm area that dating was not permitted in the small lounges of Hamilton, McKee, and Irvin halls.

Who Needs It?

SANDY, A BLOND cocker-spaniel, doesn't seem too impressed by his surroundings, and refuses to bury his nose in a book. Owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Westlake, of State College, Sandy wandered into the Fred Lewis Pattee library, and proceeded to make friends by the dozens. He patiently sat still for a picture, but absolutely refused to have anything to do with learning of any sort.
