Ninety-two students have been appointed to crews for the Thespian show, "Connecticut Yankee," to be presented April 3, 4, and 5 in Schwab Auditorium.

Each spring the Thespians choose a musical comedy that has had a successful run in a professional theater. The Richard Rodgers-Lorenz Hart show was also made into a film several years ago.

Johnson Called Country's Top ROTC Cadet

Raymond Johnson, a senior at the College, has been selected as the outstanding Army ROTC cadet to be recommended for the regular army from among all the cadets who were recommended in the United States, the Army department notified the Department of Military Science and Tactics yesterday.

Johnson, a member of the signal corps unit, was one of twelve cadets who were tentatively named to receive appointments in the regular army, Colonel Lucien E. Bolduc, professor of Military Science and Tactics, said.

These men were selected by the Army department from a list of distinguished military students from colleges where ROTC is offered throughout the United States. The final appointment, based upon Academic and ROTC class averages, will be made this summer.

Other cadets selected for Signal Corps appointments are Charles Falzone, William Johnson, Vaughn Lang, Fred Pope, Vincent Purcell, and Samuel Sanders; Bernard Brown, Leslie Palmer and George Rippel, Infantry; and Gordon Bywaters and Richard Klingensmith, Engineer Corps.

Infection Cases Reported Fewer

The number of students with upper respiratory infection is gradually subsiding, Dr. Herbert R. Glenn, director of College Health Service, announced yesterday.

Though the number of students in the infirmary is still fairly high, Dr. Glenn said, most of them remain for a shorter length of time and have less severe cases.

The dispensary is only receiving about 100 cases a day now and there are only 28 students in the infirmary, Dr. Glenn reported.

The only serious case in the infirmary is Charles Crofford, a sixth semester journalism student who fractured his skull when he fell from a truck as it was starting, Dr. Glenn said.

Crofford is still in serious condition, he said, but his condition is slightly better today.

NSA to Sponsor Seven Types Of Summer Tours This Year

By CHUCK HENDERSON

Since 1947 the United States National Student Association has sponsored a plan by which American students have met and learned to know their fellow students in student clubs and centers all over Europe through seven types of summer tours.

NSA has cooperated with the National Union of Students in this project.

The seven tours outlined in the summer program of NSA are study tours, art tours, international tours, hospitality tours, work camp tours, summer school sessions, and joint travel office programs.

These tours are designed to meet the finances of the student and still provide an extensive program. Prices for the various types of tours range from around $225-$700.

Three study tours will be available. These include sociology, economics and politics, and industry. Each of these fields will be studied in each of six countries, besides a planned sightseeing and recreational program.

Music festival tours and sculpture and painting will compose the art tours. These tours will provide first-hand observation of Europe's priceless art treasures.

The international tours are of a more general type and provide for sightseeing plus a general study program in the Iberian, European, and Scandinavian countries.

Actual living with student-oriented European families will be part of the hospitality tours. Two weeks will be spent in each of three countries.

NSA offers a work camp program to students interested in spending an instructive, inexpensive summer in Europe. Harvesting, reconstruction work, road-building, and other work is available. Students will be working side by side with students from all over Europe.

Summer school sessions are being offered at six French universities and one in England. These provide an excellent way to come back with an understanding of the regions and the people of these regions.

Joint travel office tours are being offered to the student who does not wish to spend the whole summer touring, but prefers special programs in particular countries. These tours include motor, air, and bicycle trips.

Extra Work Plan Listed By Council

The College Council of Administration has announced a tentative policy suggestion for extra work by staff members. The policy will be presented to the Board of Trustees at its March 28 meeting.

The six points of the suggestion are: (1) Every attempt will be made to pay equal salaries for teaching and research.

(2) No staff member may receive extra compensation from the College for directing a research project. If a teaching staff member is asked to direct a project, his teaching load will be adjusted to allow sufficient time for the research.

(3) A staff member may serve as a consultant to outside organizations provided that no reduction in College load is involved, that the time is taken at the convenience of the College, and that the time shall not exceed one calendar day per week.

(4) A staff member on either a ten or twelve months' contract may, during that period, receive extra remuneration from the College not to exceed ten per cent of his annual salary under the following conditions: (a) that he is not relieved of any of his other duties at the College, (b) that the arrangement is for the convenience of the College, and (c) that the work performed is not directly connected with his full-time work at the College, i.e., he is not working overtime at his normal job.

(5) A staff member on a ten months' contract may be employed by the College, and for the convenience of the College, for an additional period, not to exceed nine weeks.

(6) A staff member on a twelve months' contract may not receive extra remuneration from the College during his vacation.

Students Select Chapel Design For Project

The design of a small chapel building for the College has been chosen as a problem for fourth-year students in architecture.

The project was chosen after the Indiana Limestone Institute, Bedford, Ind. offered prizes totaling $500 for a design project in which Indiana limestone would be used, Milton S. Osborne, professor and head of the Department of Architecture, explained.

The chapel, as explained in the problem, would be located south of Curtin road, and east of the Fred Lewis Pattee Library. A small chapel room where services might be held and rooms for activities of the Penn State Christian Association and social facilities would be included in the chapel.

Designs must be submitted not later than March 21. First, second, and third prizes of $250, $150, and $100 will be awarded.

Ceramic Group Holds Display In West Dorms

A ceramics display in four parts—glass, whitewares, porcelain, and refactories—is on exhibition in the showcases in the West Dorm Lounge.

Organized and set up by members of Keramos, ceramic honorary society, the display is on exhibit primarily to show that the field of ceramics is concerned with more than just pottery, according to John Whitney, president.

Samples of cooking ware, architectural and textile glass, furnace liners, and novelties are part of the exhibition, showing why the ceramic industry is one of the largest in the United States.

In connection with the exhibition, a free pamphlet entitled "A Career in Ceramics" may be obtained at the information desk.

The display will be in the West Dorms for the next two weeks, according to Whitney.

Students Not Expected To Give to Red Cross

Students will not be asked to contribute to the Red Cross drive recently opened in the borough, C. W. Stoddart, chairman, announced yesterday.

Faculty will be contacted only in the house-to-house canvass in the borough, Stoddart said.
