

Rochester Philharmonic To Play Wednesday

The Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Erich Leinsdorf will appear in the third program of the Community Concert series Wednesday night.

The program is open only to Community Concert Association members. It will be presented in Schwab Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

The Rochester Philharmonic, now in its 29th year, has had only four permanent conductors—Albert Coates, Eugene Goossens, Jose Iturbi, and Leinsdorf.

The 39-year-old Leinsdorf has been conducting prominent symphony orchestras and opera companies in this country and abroad, among them the Vienna Philharmonic, and the NBC Symphony.

The Rochester Philharmonic is unique in that it is supported by the world's largest community music organization, which has more than 12,000 subscribers.

The orchestra also has a unique origin. It was organized around the Eastman Theatre Orchestra, for whose personnel George Eastman combed the ranks of outstanding players of leading orchestras.

Most of the top performers with the Rochester Philharmonic are given positions on the faculty of the Eastman School of Music.

Included on the program for the concert at the College are the overture to "The Magic Flute" by Mozart; Symphony No. 6 in F major (Opus 68, Pastoral) by Beethoven; Rondo Veneziano by Pizzetti; and "La Valse," a choreographic poem, by Ravel.

'Ugly Man' Applications Due Today

Noon today is the deadline for applications in the 1952 Ugly Man contest, William Slepik, contest chairman, said yesterday. The contest is sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, and proceeds will go to the Campus Chest.

Application may be made at the Student Union desk in Old Main. Slepik said entrants must be eighth semester students sponsored by a College organization. Voting for the Ugly Man will take place on the Mall at Pollock road March 26 to 28. The "Ugly Man of 1952" will be crowned at the IFC-Panhel Ball April 4.

Latest tabulations showed 28 entries in this year's contest. Last year's winner was Joseph Lindsay.

Mexican Study Trip Available

A first hand view of Mexico and an opportunity to study in that country is being offered to both high school and college students under a reciprocal exchange student plan handled at the College by Oscar Haac, professor of Romance languages.

Under the plan an American student would visit Mexico during the summer months, study at a Mexican school on either the high school or college level, and board with a Mexican family. In return the student's family would agree to board a son or daughter of that Mexican family during December and January, the months of school vacation in Mexico.

The program would be free of charge with the exception of transportation fees and incidental expenses.

"Should a reciprocal exchange be impossible the American student can be placed with a Mexican family and pay about $2.50 a day for three meals, room, service, laundry, etc.," Haac explained.

The knowledge of Spanish is not mandatory as the Mexican families speak English and desire practice in it. Certain courses in the Mexican schools are offered under English speaking professors. Side trips through Mexico can be arranged.

The program was designed to promote better relations between the peoples of Mexico and the United States. It was organized by Gabino A. Palma, prominent professor in Mexico.

Students interested in the plan and desiring further information should contact Dr. Haac, 1125 S. Atherton street, State College, or write to Professor Palma, Monterey 381, Col. Roma Sur, Mexico City, Mexico.

NY Sanitary Engineering Jobs Open

College seniors in sanitary or public health engineering may apply until April 4 for a New York State Civil Service examination to fill openings in the field of sanitary and public health engineering.

Applicants for the examination must receive their bachelor's degrees by June 30, and must be residents of the United States. Students in civil, chemical, or mechanical engineering must have a year of experience in sanitary engineering in a public health agency or in an organization performing similar work.

Three positions as junior sanitary engineers with the New York State Department of Health, and other openings will be filled through this examination. Present salary for the job raises from $3846 to $4639 in five yearly increases.

Junior sanitary engineers do field or office work, investigating public water supplies, reviewing new plans for water and sewage systems and making recommendations for improving sanitary facilities.

Complete details may be obtained from the State Civil Service Department, State Office Building, Albany, New York. The written test will be given May 10.

AAUP Meeting To Discuss DIR, Counseling

A panel discussion on student counseling programs and the functions of the Division of Intermediate Registration will be held at the meeting of the College chapter of the American Association of University Professors at 7:30 tonight in 110 Electrical Engineering.

The public is invited to the meeting, Dr. Franklin B. Krauss, president, said.

Participating in the discussion will be Dr. Russel B. Dickerson, vice dean of the School of Agriculture; Earl B. Stavely, assistant dean of the School of Engineering; Dr. Helen R. LeBaron, assistant dean of the School of Home Economics; and H. K. Wilson and Dr. W. Scott Gehman, director and assistant director of DIR.

Army Reserve Transferred to State College

The U. S. Army Organized Reserve Corps center in Bellefonte, will be transferred to the Reserve Corps center at 616 W. College avenue, Maj. Maurice F. Kelly, unit instructor, has announced.

The Bellefonte office will be open only on those nights when reserve units hold meetings.

The State College office has been open since yesterday and the phone number is 6688.

The U.S. Army and Air Force recruiting station will remain at the Bellefonte office. Navy and Marine Corps recruiters will continue to visit the office there.

Major Kelly will assume supervision of Organized Reserve Corps centers at State College, Lewis-town, and Huntingdon, and will retain supervision of Bellefonte and Lock Haven.

Time Out for Coffee

Coffee Hours Provide 'Two-Way Street'

By LU MARTIN

The Dean of Men's Coffee Hours have been set up to promote a "two-way street" of understanding between the Dean's office and the men students on campus.

"We do our most effective work through our counseling program," Dean of Men H. K. Wilson said, "and you can't counsel a stranger." The coffee hours every Wednesday at 4 p.m. are providing a medium for meeting on common ground, he added, and a chance for friendlier relationships.

The following letter, sent to the Dean of Men's office offers testimony:

"It is with all sincerity that I thank you and your department for the opportunity of joining in your Coffee Hour. In attending this informal gathering, I, as a freshman, have gained a clearer concept of the College.

"By increasing my knowledge concerning these matters, I feel more a part of Penn State and I know I will be able to play my part with a deeper sense of responsibility and admiration for the institution. Certainly, all students should be able to come together in this manner."

Meets College Officials

"This manner" refers to the colorful table decorations, candlelight, the informal atmosphere, and the discussion, in which everybody participates. By 4:30 p.m., a discussion has been started, and the guests sit in a circle, while offering their viewpoints on a current campus problem.

The student advisory committee for men is a direct outgrowth of these coffee hour discussions. This group meets with various College and town officials to talk over student problems. With R. O. Graham and R. Y. Sigworth, of the department of the physical plant, the group has discussed the campus telephone situation, and the excuse problem with Dr. Herbert R. Glenn, of the College health service. Burgess E. Hibshman, and Chief of Police John Juba are also scheduled to meet with the group.

Conjunction with Cabinet

The Coffee Hour tradition was set up by the Dean of Men's office in conjunction with All-College Cabinet, in October of 1950. An invitations committee is responsible for trying to get a cross-section of men students to participate in these coffee hours. "Although it is primarily for men, wherever women are involved, they are welcome," said Dean Wilson.

Yesterday's coffee hour included representatives from several honorary and professional groups, several engineering students, and Cabinet representatives.

Dean Wilson recalled a recent coffee hour at which President Milton S. Eisenhower was a guest; the discussion was so interesting to the group, that everybody stayed out until 6 p.m., instead of the usual 5 p.m.

There are about 20,000 "motels" scattered throughout the United States, mostly west of the Mississippi and averaging about 22 units apiece.

Book Agency Starts Refunds Next Week

The Used Book Agency in the TUB will be open next Monday through Thursday to reimburse students whose books have been sold through the agency, Robert Spragg, manager, said yesterday.

Agency hours are 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. The agency will open at 9:30 a.m. Monday. Students should bring their receipts with them, Spragg said.

Spragg also said that students who have unsold books at the agency, with the exception of graduating seniors and students who do not intend to return to Penn State next year, may leave their books at the agency during the summer.

The agency will keep the books and try to sell them in the fall, Spragg said. This procedure would save the student the trouble of picking up his books this spring and bringing them back in the fall.

This method will also give the agency a reserve of books with which to start operating in the fall, Spragg said.

Phi Sigma Iota Offers $500 Scholarship

Phi Sigma Iota, national Romance language honorary, is offering a $500 scholarship to any student whose major field of study is Romance languages.

Applications for the scholarship, which will be awarded in May, must be sent by April 1 to Dr. Adolph J. Dickman, 220 Liberal Arts Building, University of Wyoming, Laramie, Wyo.

The scholarship will be awarded in two installments, one each semester of next year. The recipient of the award is expected to stay in school the entire year, except in a serious emergency.

An official transcript, manuscripts such as term papers, or publications should be included with the application, according to information received by the Romance language department.

Additional information may be obtained from Nicholas Brentin, assistant professor of Spanish, one of three members of the national selection committee for the scholarship, or from Dr. Oscar Haac, in 301 Sparks.
