Tomorrow—9:30 p.m. Woman's building, WSGA president, vice president, treasurer, and sophomore senator, and all WRA candidates; 10 p.m. Grange, WSGA president, vice president, treasurer, senior senator, junior senator, and sophomore senator, and all WRA candidates; 10:30 p.m. Simmons, WSGA president, vice president, treasurer, senior senator, and junior senator, and all WRA candidates.

May Queen Elections April 21, 23

Primary and final elections for May Queen will be held April 21 and 23. Nominations of senior coeds for the title will be held in dormitory unit meetings this week.

In addition, each unit will nominate one junior and one sophomore for attendants, and one freshman for maid of honor. Formerly, the sophomore and junior attendants were appointed by the Women's Student Government Association.

In order to nominate a coed, ten members of her class must live in the unit. Only women living in a unit may be nominated by that unit.

Three contestants for the title of May Queen, two for both junior and sophomore attendants, and two for maid of honor will be chosen in the primary election.

Senior women who wish to take part in the hemlock chain will sign up at Old Main on April 23, the day of final elections.

The coronation will take place on the Saturday of Mother's Day weekend in front of Old Main. Invitations will be sent to parents of women participating in the May Day activities.

Marriages

Sax-Robinson

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Lolita Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Robinson of Clarks Summit, to Oliver Sax, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Sax of Kearny, N.J.

The couple was married at Valley Forge Chapel near Philadelphia. They will reside in New York City.

Mr. Sax was a sophomore majoring in physical education at the College. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Miss Robinson was a freshman in education at the College. She was a pledge of Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Bachelors Organize To Resist Females

Newspapers from coast to coast have been proclaiming to the 19 million husband hunters in the United States that bachelors have banded together to resist the advances of the opposite sex during the current leap year.

The Bachelors' Protective Association, claiming a membership of 50,000, has made the headlines across the nation. The Hope, Ark. Journal, for example, carried the headline, "Desperate Women Forcing Men to Organize," the Middleton, O. Journal proclaimed, "Bachelors Organizing for Mutual Protection," and the Lubbock, Tex. Journal warned, "On Guard Girls, Bachelors Join Protective Group."

National Bachelor's Day

Not to be outdone, the Daily Collegian carried a feature article in the issue of Feb. 29, 1952, with the slightly-on-the-postic-side headline, "Leap Year's Strains Give Bachelors Pains."

The article said that Robert W. Hensch, president of the Bachelors' Protective Association, had proclaimed Feb. 29 as national Bachelor's Day.

The article went on to report Hensch's statement that bachelors serve many useful purposes, such as being best men, accommodating hostesses, and taking out-of-town assignments for their business firms.

Speedy at Times

Under the terms of the Bachelors' Protective Association's insurance policy, every member of the organization is insured against marriage. In accordance with the policy, any member who loses his freedom receives an official message of sympathy and condolence from the national headquarters in New York City.

And though bachelors may be extraordinarily slow with the women, it was only a matter of a few days until the organization flooded the Daily Collegian office with a deluge of brochures offering special rates of membership to unmarried male members of the staff.

The brochure stated that there are more than 19 million unmarried women in the United States, every last one of whom is out to capture a husband. "Bachelors are outnumbered, and must organize for mutual protection. The need is growing by the minute," the organization claimed.

Astronomical Amounts

The statement was accompanied by a cave-like looking woman shown dragging a similar-appearing male specimen by the few hairs remaining on his bald pate.

In urging eligible men to join the organization "for mutual protection," the Bachelors' Protective Association claimed that women spent $58,000,000 for perfume last year. "Nobody knows how much they spent for lipstick, rouge, eyebrow pencils, false eyelashes . . . and other misleading items, but we can be sure the amount is astronomical," the association contended.

Membership in the BPA, priced at 35 cents for individuals, includes the aforementioned insurance policy that "insures" the holder against marriage for a full year. This policy, the brochure explained, is made out in the member's name, is five by seven

Summer Camp Positions Open

Students interested in summer camp jobs may visit the student employment office, 112 Old Main, and investigate the job possibilities, John J. Huber, supervisor of part-time student employment, said yesterday.

The office has information from 110 camps and four resorts that have job openings for students. The information is on file alphabetically in the office.

The student should check the information on file and decide what kind of a job he wants, Huber said. Then he may obtain forms and addresses at the office and apply for the job he wants.

Interviews with camp directors are also being scheduled. These interviews will be listed in the Gazette column of the Daily Collegian one week in advance.

inches, and suitable for framing.

According to the terms of the offer, each member also receives a membership card, a letter of welcome to BPA, and a copy of the membership prospectus.

The seal of the organization pictures two happy-go-lucky men, obviously bachelors, arm-in-arm. The one on the left bears a strong resemblance to Frothy.

Included in the advertisement sent to the Collegian staff was a special group offer, reducing the cost of membership to 25 cents when four or more men apply at the same time.

The association also has an official royal blue necktie with the emblem in gold. The brochure claimed that the tie was "mildly sensational." "To be an eligible bachelor is a mark of distinction. Wear your colors!" the advertisement urged. The tie is sent post-paid for $1.25.

Not to be outdone by the publicity the press has given the new organization, the BPA has begun publication of an official magazine. The BPA News brings the bachelor "strategy and tactics (how to handle the girls), news of bachelor clubs throughout the country, cartoons, a bachelor opinion poll, and other items of interest to the single men of America, so the association claims.

The female members of the Daily Collegian staff were surprised to learn that the unfortunate married men of the country lack faith in their ability to resist "feminine aggression," and consequently must feel the need for organizing.

As far as could be determined, however, none of the eligible male members of the Daily Collegian staff have succumbed to the BPA's offers. Perhaps the bachelors are not so happy with their status after all.
