FIVE CENTS

Service Union Delays Strike

WSGA Approves Joint Board

By GINGER OPOCZENSKI

The Women's Student Government Association Senate voted last night to accept the proposal for a joint freshman customs board by a vote of 5 to 3.

The proposal, with the seven changes made by the senate, will be presented to All-College Cabinet tonight. It would be an amendment to the all-College Constitution.

The changes are:

1. The chairman of the freshman customs and regulations board shall sit as chairman in cases regarding women. The original statement gave this position to the chairman of Judicial.

2. Neither the chairman of Tribunal or the chairman of the freshman customs and regulations board shall have a vote at any time. Joan Yerger, chairman of the board, explained that this insures greater impartiality.

3. The statement, "No dating rules will be enforced during the entire customs period" was changed to "no dating will be permitted during the entire customs period (dating is anything more than hello)." The change was made for clarity.

4. Punishments may be inflicted by the freshman customs board, Judicial, or the freshman customs and regulations board, instead of just by Judicial as originally stated.

5. The phrase, "anyone over 21 may appeal for immunity from customs" was changed to "anyone 21 or over may appeal for immunity from customs."

6. "In regard to customs" was added in the statement that upperclassmen may be punished for "excesses."

7. A set of standard penalties must be set up and used by the freshman customs board.

AROTC Grads To Be Inducted

All newly commissioned graduates of Air ROTC will be ordered into military service within 120 days of graduation, the Air Force announced yesterday.

All graduates who have had previous military service, or who have been accepted into graduate school in certain technical fields, will be granted a delay, the Air Force said. Students who have not met educational requirements will not be called.

Assignments of the new officers will be based on educational qualifications and Air Force requirements.

Tournament Tickets All Sold by College

All 100 tickets available at the College for the NCAA basketball tournament games at Raleigh, North Carolina, this weekend, have been sold, Harold Gilbert, graduate manager of athletics, said yesterday.

Gilbert said he would attempt to have additional tickets set aside for Penn State students when he arrives in Raleigh with the team.

COLLEGE SERVICE EMPLOYEES file into the I.O.O.F. hall last night to discuss a possible strike date. At the meeting, the employees voted to continue negotiations until April 23.

Fees, 3 Amendments On Cabinet Agenda

Three amendments to the All-College Constitution and a proposal to raise student fees ten cents are among the items on the agenda of All-College Cabinet for its meeting at 8 tonight in 201 Old Main.

The plan to establish a Freshman Customs Board, which would require a constitutional amendment, will be presented to cabinet by David Mutchler, Tribunal chairman, providing the plan has received the approval of the Women's Student Government Association. WSGA met last night.

An amendment to Article 1, Section 4 of the constitution, dealing with eligibility for cabinet membership, will be presented by Mary Jane Woodrow, WSGA president. Miss Woodrow would make no statement yesterday as to the nature of her proposal.

On eligibility, the constitution now reads: "No person shall be eligible for membership in the cabinet who is not a registered student at the College and who

The proposed amendment to give the Board of Publications power to determine additional members to the board will be read for the second time. The amendment was proposed by Marvin Krasnansky, chairman of the board.

Besides the fee raise proposal, cabinet will also hear the proposed plan to reduce driving and parking on campus.

Workers Vote to Continue Negotiations Until April 23

By MARV KRASNANSKY

Strike action by service employees of the College was delayed last night until April 23 by some 200 members of local 67 of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees. (AFL).

The action came after more than three hours of deliberation by the union, which claims to represent some 800 service employees of the College. Other estimates, however, have placed the membership at about 300.

Last night's meeting had been called by the union two weeks ago to set a date for a work stoppage.

"Negotiation will be resumed at the earliest moment," Robert A. Callahan, state representative of the union, told the Daily Collegian last night.

Employees in Earnest

Edward P. Dailey, international representative of the union, said last night, following the meeting which was closed to the press, that it was the "feeling of the employees that the delay would permit the administration to bring to the attention of the trustees the five points which were presented to President Eisenhower in our letter of March 6."

The trustees meet March 28. Dailey continued: "The employees clearly indicated that they would go through with the contemplated action at the April meeting."

"The amount of money which would be necessary to achieve a complete settlement of requested wage adjustments, and straighten out inequalities," Dailey said, "would not be in excess of $700 or $800 a month."

Conflicts Listed

"The employees' feel," Dailey went on "that this amount is insignificant in comparison with the general elevation which would result in employee moral."

The five points which Dailey said would have to be settled are:

1. The elimination of inequalities resulting from the Feb. 1 salary increases.
2. Retroactive pay on these inequalities as of Feb. 1, 1952.
3. Further increases for infirmity employees.
4. Retroactive increases from July, 1951, to Jan., 1952; for two painters whose cases are now listed as grievances by the union.
5. The settlement of all pending grievances.

During the course of the three-hour meeting, an eight page letter from President Milton S. Eisenhower to the union was read. The reading of this letter, which outlined the wage and working condition adjustments the College has made, took an hour and a half.

'Ugly Man' Pic Contest To Be Held

Alpha Phi Omega, sponsors of the Ugly Man contest, tomorrow will open a photo identification contest that will give some students a chance to win a free ticket to the IFC-Panhel Ball to be held April 4.

Contest officials tomorrow will dent a chance to win a free 37 contestants in this year's Ugly Man contest in a window of the Athletic Store. The Student who can correctly identify the most candidates by next Tuesday will win a free ticket to the dance.

Students who wish to try for the free ticket may pick up entry blanks tomorrow inside the store and should return the blanks there when filled out, William Slepik, contest chairman said. The photo identification contest winner will be announced Tuesday.

Tickets for the dance are priced at $4. The dance will be held in Recreation Hall. Woody Herman's orchestra will provide the music.

The Ugly Man contest will begin Wednesday and will end March 28. Students may vote for contestants by placing money in designated containers at the voting booth which will be on the Mall at Pollock road.

The "Ugly Man for 1952" will be the contestant with the most money-votes. Proceeds of the contest will go to the Campus Chest.

Nittany Cagers Leave For NCAA Tournament

Penn State's tournament bound basketball team will leave for Raleigh, North Carolina, at 8 this morning from the Corner Room.

The Lions will travel to Altoona by bus and by plane to Raleigh. Coach Elmer Gross' courtmen will arrive in Raleigh at about 1 this afternoon.

Tomorrow night the Lions open the Eastern regional NCAA tournament against Kentucky. The game will start at 7:30 (See story page 6).

Inkling Scheduled For Wednesday

Inkling, campus literary magazine, will appear Wednesday for the first time this year.

The issue, 2d since its inception last year will feature fiction stories, poetry, and illustrations done by students at the College. The five fiction stories are "The Stutterer" by Seymour Rubinfeld; "Three and One" by Helen Jaskol; "Time Capsule" by Richard Neuweiler; "Dry Leaves" by Peter Whelan; and "City Business" by Ronald Bonn. An unusually long poem is also featured entitled "The Curve."

Snow Heralds Spring's Arrival

Along with the many things Leap Year does, it brings spring in one day early. Spring arrives today wearing a blanket of snow on her shoulders, not a very promising sign, according to a report from the College Weather Station.

Reports say that spring will not be shedding much of her winter bundlings during the current month. Yesterday served as an indication of what can be expected. Snow, the greatest amount to fall in any one storm this winter, heralded spring's arrival yesterday. After seven inches of snow fell early yesterday morning, fairly high temperatures, in the middle 40's, melted a little, but left enough to chill spring to her bones.

Students were able to renew their attempts at slipping. Even more, this snow storm added to diversion for the male sex. Finding that the snow was good for packing, they regressed to old days, and began throwing the well-known snowballs. Many females felt the result of the men's diversion.

Men working on the library structure found that the snowfall caused more work. Two men were seen balancing themselves on the steel girders erected recently. Their job was to sweep off the snow which had fallen on the girders so construction could continue.

After the snow began melting yesterday, track stars had the upper hand in hurdling over the puddles on Pollock road. Women found it difficult to make the jumps and often reverted to walking around to save themselves a splash.

Spring was further antagonized last night as temperatures dropped to the middle 30's. It is expected that today they will remain there, but slightly above freezing. However, spring will have to contend with predicted partly cloudy and cold weather with snow flurries today.

This year's winter is reported to have been colder than last. However, in general, temperatures have been above the average for previous years. In January temperatures were 4.5 degrees above average, while in February they were 5.2 degrees above the norm.

With the seven inches of snow yesterday and more predicted for today, last March's snowfall of 0.9 inches already looks sad. The long-range outlook for spring is an unpredictable one, weather authorities said, since meteorologists don't make predictions for periods of more than 30 days.

March's entrance like a lion continues to roar loud. Spring is here, the date indicates, and this, according to an old saying, should indicate that March should leave like a lamb. It has 11 days to prove itself.
