

Mlle. Terre Suggests U.S. - European Talks

By BETTIE LOUX

Seminars in which American home economists and educators would exchange their technological methods for the "imagination and wisdom" of the French would create "a link between Europe and the United States," which would help produce free citizens of the world, Helene Terre, French educator, said last night.

The striking, heavy-set Mlle. Terre, whose humor was accentuated by her vocal inflections, said, "The French would gain in nutrition—you would gain in good cooking." She spoke before an audience of about 100, comprised mostly of students and faculty of the School of Home Economics.

Attached to Institutions

It is not good, she admonished, to concentrate either on practical methods or on cultural values alone. "If you, in your homes and heart, can be people who are cultured and who use new methods you will have a balance between wisdom and knowledge," she said.

Old countries get so attached to institutions, according to Mlle. Terre, that new improvements don't get much attention. Planes, she said, are to the Frenchmen instruments that carry bombs in wartime; refrigerators are "for rich people."

Mlle. Terry said although science has developed quickly in the United States, the human mind has not developed at the same pace. The place reserved for imagination and wisdom in Americans' lives is too small, she said, and the French are losing both qualities.

This is because the French "don't have time to think—life is too complicated," she said.

Meet in U.S.

French researchers have been "working well" on problems of home management, she said, but they have not applied their findings to the lives of the people.

She advocated that seminars, where representatives of both countries would study home economics together, meet in the United States where scientific methods could be observed first-hand.

The best ambassadors from America have been professors of home economics, she believes, because they are the first people who have tried to understand the European way of life and see what can be done to improve it. Although they are grateful she said, the French don't like to always receive monetary presents.

WRA Contest Deadline Set

Monday is the deadline for signing up for competition in the Women's Recreation Association's search for the All-College women champions in badminton, bowling, and pingpong, according to Mable Marple, intramural chairman.

No previous participation in WRA activities is necessary to enter the contest.

Interested coeds may sign up by contacting Miss Marple, 315 Grange Dormitory, or Nancy Lusk, assistant intramural chairman, 150 Atherton Hall.

The contest will be set up as an elimination tournament. All participation will be on an individual basis.

Quill Girl Voting Set For Tuesday

Voting for the 1952 Quill Girl, to be chosen from the presidents of Mortar Board, Women's Student Government Association, and Women's Recreation Association, will be held during the WSGA and WRA primaries Tuesday.

The Quill Girl, for whom all women students are eligible to vote, will be honored at the annual Matrix Table, sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism fraternity, March 31, at the University Club. A separate ballot will be made up with names of nominees.

3 Candidates

Noon Tuesday is the deadline for accepting invitations to the dinner, according to Janet Bleutge, president of the fraternity. Invitations and tickets have been sent to 126 outstanding women. They may take the tickets and $2.75 to the Student Union desk in Old Main, where the tickets will be stamped.

Candidates for Quill Girl are Mary Jane Woodrow, WSGA president; Marilyn Williams, WRA president; and Nancy McClain, president of Mortar Board, senior women's honorary.

Miss Woodrow is also a member of Mortar Board, Chimes, Alpha Lambda Delta, and Pi Lambda Theta. Miss Williams belongs to Mortar Board, Lakonides, and Pi Lambda Theta, and Miss McClain is a member of Chimes, Players, and Treble Singers.

Adams to Speak

Matrix Girl and Cap Girl will also be named at the dinner. The former title is given to the senior woman who has served the College without recognition in Cwens, Chimes or Mortar Board. The title of Cap girl is given to the woman who has participated in the most varied activities.

They will be elected by members of Theta Sigma Phi.

Mrs. Charlotte Adams, house-keeping editor of Charm magazine, will be speaker. Mrs. Adams has worked for PM, and been foods editor for the Associated Press and Look and Collier's magazines. She has written two books, "The Run of the House" and "You'll Eat It Up."

Newmanites Hold Party

The St. Patrick's Day party sponsored by the Newman Club at 9 tonight at Phi Kappa will feature a magician act by George Banta, a dance by Una Delaney, and songs by John Kelly.

Sophomores Choose Theme For Dance

"State's Starring Sophomores" has been chosen as the theme for the annual sophomore class dance to be held from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight tomorrow in Recreation Hall, according to Donald Herbein, sophomore class president.

A mural based on the theme will be part of the decorations for the dance, Herbein said.

The dance is free to all sophomores, who may pick up tickets for the affair at the Student Union desk in Old Main, by showing their matriculation cards.

Jack Jenkins, a member of the sophomore class, and his band will provide the music. At intermission, Rodney Stegall, also a sophomore, will present impersonations.

Harry Solomon, sophomore class vice president, is general chairman of the dance. Committee members are: band, James Hand and Charles Obertance; decorations, Fury Feraco, Jean Marohnic, and Virginia Moore; tickets, Gerald Maurey and John White; and publicity, Bernard Ambrose and Rodney Snyder.

PSCA Party Planned

The Penn State Christian Association is sponsoring a cabin party tonight, Nancy Barth, chairman of upper class cabin parties, announced yesterday.

The group will leave from the rear of Old Main at 6:45 tonight and travel by automobile to the Christian Association cabin where they will spend the evening. They will return to the campus by 1 a.m. tomorrow.

Minister to Speak

The Rev. Lehman Strauss, of the Cavalry Baptist Church, Bristol, Pa., will speak to the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship on "The Crucifixion" at 7:30 tonight in 405 Old Main.

Thompson B Wins Decisive Bridge Victory

Thompson B defeated Thompson A by a score of 2190-570 in last night's WRA bridge tournament competition.

Both of these teams just entered the tournament last night.

Five other teams remained on the undefeated list. Delta Zeta won over McAllister, 1470-330. Alpha Omicron Pi downed Alpha Chi Omega, 1460-400. Phi Mu beat Leonides, 2650-1020. Phi Sigma Sigma outplayed Chi Omega, 1050-420 and Kappa Delta won by virtue of a forfeit from Simmons.

In other games, Alpha Epsilon Phi forfeited to Kappa Kappa Gamma; Beta Sigma Omicron forfeited to Alpha Xi Delta; Gamma Phi Beta won by a forfeit from Delta Gamma; and Alpha Gamma Delta defeated Sigma Delta Tau, 620-230.

Press Ball Canceled

By Journ Fraternities

The Press Ball has been canceled by the three journalism fraternities, Alpha Delta Sigma, Sigma Delta Chi, and Theta Sigma Phi, because of conflicting schedules.

The dance was set for tomorrow night in the State College Hotel. Dance tickets will be refunded at the Student Union desk in Old Main.
