

Failure to Grab Enough Rebounds Proves State's Biggest Handicap

The Lions' biggest handicap was the inability to get rebounds. One shot, usually, was all they got at the basket.

State came to life somewhat in the third period and outscored Kentucky 13-12. The Wildcats pressed only when they had to in order to maintain an 18 to 20 point lead. The score at the end of the third quarter was 55-38.

Rupp Inserts Bench

The game became wild in the final quarter with Tsiropoulos and Lucian Whitaker fouling out for Kentucky along with Arnelle and Sledzik.

Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp inserted his bench men in the closing minutes and they ran the Lions practically into the floor.

The Kentuckians did not attempt to break the Lion zone with a fast-moving game, but instead passed slowly and deliberately and popped from outside. The strategy paid off in the highest score run up against the Lions this season.

The Lions were way off on their shooting, hitting on only 25 per cent of their shots, while the Wildcats made 44 per cent of theirs.

From the foul line the Lions did better, making 16 of 30 while the Wildcats made 12 of 25.

Arnelle Gets All Taps

SIDE LINES: The Lions were not without vocal support, with some 120 rooters among the crowd of about 10,000 at the William J. Reynolds Fieldhouse. . . Tsiropoulos was terrific on rebounds, especially on his own board. . . State threw away the ball six times during their first-period shakes, while Kentucky committed no errors. . . Arnelle out-jumped Hagan on all four center jumps, and got a well-deserved hand when he left the game. . . Shelby Linville, a substitute sophomore, made a habit of turning Hagan's missed shots into rebound points.

Pat O'Sullivan Eyes Golf Title

PINEHURST, N.C., March 21—(P)—Steady Pat O'Sullivan today moved doggedly along the path she hopes will lead to a third straight North and South golf title, but medalist Mary Lena Faulk and Curtis Cupper Grace DeMoss were sent to the sidelines.

While Miss O'Sullivan, Orange, Conn., girl who winters in nearby Southern Pines, was turning in the day's most one-sided victory, a surprising 5 and 3 decision over Mrs. Julia A. Page, Chapel Hill, N.C., veteran, Mrs. H. S. Covington and Mary Agnes Wall, a pair of seasoned performers were providing the big news.

Mrs. Covington, whose home is in Orangeburg, S.C., was runner-up to Dorothy Kirby in 1943. Today she played some of her best golf for a one up victory over Miss Faulk, slender star from Thomasville, Ga. The victory sends the South Carolinian against Miss O'Sullivan in one semi-final tomorrow.

May Bring Change

Television may bring a new audience of more objective sports fans, John Lawther says. Writing in his book, "Psychology of Coaching," the former Penn State basketball coach expresses the belief that the detachment from crowd hysteria inherent in TV "may temper the emotion."

In World War II members of more than 30 religious groups were listed as conscientious objectors.

IM Matmen Approach Mid-Point

The best wrestling of the IM tourney was displayed last night as the IM tournament approached the half-way mark.

Only five forfeits marred a card of 20 bouts in which seven falls were registered, two each in the 121, 145 and unlimited classes and one in the 175 division.

In the 121 pound class, Charles Schutte, Phi Delta Theta, scored a takedown and then at 1:29 pinned Charles Webb, Triangle. Dave Sener, Phi Sigma Kappa, also felled Art Goldstone, SAM, in 3:23.

Krassowski Wins

The 145 class saw ATO's versatile athlete, John McCall, pin Tony Grimaldi, Alpha Phi Delta, in 5:21. Larry Ecklund, AGR, also pinned Tom Davies, Phi Kappa Sigma, in 4:23.

In the 175 pound division, Andy Krassowski, Pi Kappa Phi, pinned Dick Hughes, Delta Chi, in 2:47. Krassowski, with the strength of an ox, reversed Hughes in the second period and applied the pressure for a pin.

Two other bouts in this class went as decisions. Dave Simon, KDR, decisioned Jim DeVoe, AGR, 6-3. Bill Souleret, SAE, defeated Joe Sutovsky, Phi Psi, 5-1, in the other bout.

2 Matches in 135 Class

In the heavyweight class, Bob Smith, Beta Theta Pi, pinned George Colonius, Phi Sigma Kappa, in 5:38, and George Walz, Theta Chi, beat Forrest Blakesley, SPE, in 4:35.

Only two matches were wrestled in the 135 class and both decisions were shutouts. Sam Hamilton, Beta Theta Pi, took the measure of Bob Sundius, Theta Kappa Phi, 7-0. In the other match, Sigma Pi's Ken Wolfe edged George Resh, LCA, 1-0.

A pair of "Shafers" battled each other in the 155 class with Paul Schaeffer, KDR, taking a ref's decision from Rex Shafer, Phi Kappa Sigma. The regulation match ended 5-5. Schaeffer scored a takedown, reverse and escape against Shafer's takedown, two escapes and one-point time advantage.

Forfeit Wins

The other bout in this class saw Cliff Holgate, Phi Delta Theta, decision Bob Cronenwett, Alpha Sigma Phi, 5-2.

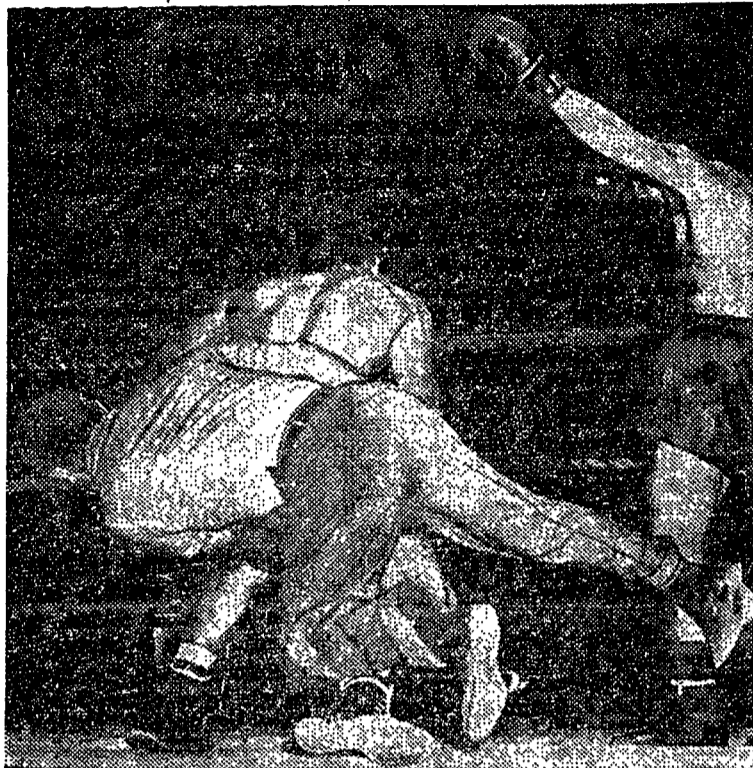

In the 165 class, independent Jim Brownell, beat Dick Cook, 5-2, and Ed Ricci, Alpha Phi Delta, mauled Bob Hess, Delta Chi, 10-1.

Forfeit wins were registered independent by Harold Nawrocki; Joe Policastro, TKE; Paul Heitzenrater, independent; Bob Brubaker, DU; and Keith Horn, independent.

Teacher Versus Pupil

Teacher and pupil will come to grips a year hence when Penn State and the University of Pennsylvania meet on the wrestling mats. Charlie Speidel's former aide, Charlie Ridenour, is in his first year as head coach at the Philadelphia institution.

Referee Pulls Off Nardico

Farrell, Swoyersville Favored in PIAA Tilts

HARRISBURG, March 21 (P)—Farrell and Swoyersville are favored to win tomorrow night's regional semi-final clashes as the month-long PIAA basketball eliminations near their climax.

Farrell's Steelers, winners of 26 of their 27 games as defending western champions, meet a determined band of Westmont Hilltoppers at the Pitt fieldhouse.

Swoyersville's Sailors, Class A contenders for the third straight year, take on Coatesville's Raiders at the Penn Palestra.

Westmont Eliminated Somerset

The Steelers' attack is built around their All-State Julius McCoy, probably one of Pennsylvania's all-time great schoolboy stars. However, Farrell also has other standouts in Bob Hoffman, Ronnie Crosby and Si Alli in case the Hilltoppers concentrate the bulk of their defense on McCoy.

Westmont will pin its hopes on 6 feet 6 center Bob Sharkey to control the boards for the rebounds. The Hilltoppers showed that they, too, have the scoring know-how when they eliminated District 5's Somerset, 74-37.

Farrell drew a bye through the preliminary inter-districts after ending Washington's unbeaten streak, 52-43, to win the District 7 (WPIAL) title.

Farrell Lost One

When Farrell defeated Westmont last December in the Johnstown War Memorial tournament, McCoy scored 27 points to Sharkey's 21. Sharkey had 27 rebounds to the 6 feet 1 McCoy's 17.

The Steelers have a 61.7 point average for the season while Westmont has scored 61.2 points per game. Farrell's only loss was to Sharon, 62-51, while Westmont lost to Swoyersville, 48-42, in the Johnstown tourney and a 60-40 upset to Altoona in addition to Farrell.

Swoyersville also will be counting on an All-State player to carry it over Coatesville. He's 6 feet 5 Joe Holup who is averaging a shade under 29 points per game.

Sailors Seek Revenge

The Sailors' only losses were to Ford City in the Johnstown tourney, defending Class A state champion Allentown, and Coatesville while they won 27 games.

So the Sailors will have revenge on their minds when they meet Coatesville for the second time. Coatesville had piled up a 15-point lead before Swoyersville warmed up and that accounted for the 60-50 score.

Coatesville Palestra-Wise

Coatesville, Ches-Mont League and District I champion, has a 12-game winning streak to protect as the Raiders enter the contest with a 21-3 record.

Coatesville will have the advantage of playing four games on the Palestra floor while Swoyersville has yet to make an appearance at the Philadelphia court this season.

However, Coach Eddie Chiampi has taken the Sailors down to the Palestra yesterday and today for practice sessions on the floor where Swoyersville lost the 1950 Class A state title game to Homestead.
