Panhel OK's Two Cabinet Proposals

Panhellenic Council last night unanimously favored the proposed amendment to the All-College Constitution before cabinet to establish a joint freshman customs board and the 25 cent per semester fee raise to pay expenses of agriculture judging teams.

Nominations for Panhel officers were made and the revised constitution was read. Election of officers and voting on the constitution will take place at the next meeting.

Nominated for recording secretary were Patricia Wertz and Ona Lee. Sally Diehl, Nancy Graham, and Lynn Olevre were nominated for corresponding secretary and Gwen Griffith, Mary Martin, and Janet Melzer for treasurer.

The offices of president and vice president are rotated yearly among the sororities.

Revisions in the constitution include changing the terms of the officers in May instead of April, limiting the number of pledges and actives in any sorority to 50, limiting the period a girl may remain a pledge to one calendar year, and making the president and rushing chairman of a sorority the official Panhel delegates.

Marilyn Levitt, president, said Panhel's scholarship cup will be awarded April 28 at the Honors Day ceremonies.

Barons, Mac Hall Dinner Canceled

The exchange dinner between the Barons, Nittany-Pollock social group, and MacAllister Hall dining room which was planned for Friday night has been canceled.

Instead, the Barons will sponsor a dance from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. Friday at the TUB, Thomas Nelson, president of the group, announced. Both round and square dancing will be featured. The dance will be open to the public.

PSCA Nominations To Be Held Tonight

A general membership meeting of the Penn State Christian Association will be held at 7 tonight in 304 Old Main, Alan Marshall, vice president, announced today.

The slate of nominees for the coming elections will be presented and the floor will be open for further nominations. Elections will be held April 4-6.

Deadline Extension

The deadline for accepting invitations to the annual Matrix Table, sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism fraternity, has been extended until 2 p.m. Friday.

Invitations will be stamped upon payment of $2.75 at the Student Union desk in Old Main.

Co-Edits

Zeta Beta Tau

Members of Zeta Beta Tau entertained Phi Sigma Sigma at a dinner Sunday night. The members of the sorority prepared the meal of spaghetti and meatballs, with the pledge class of the fraternity doing the serving.

The Martin U. Rockwell achievement award given for outstanding scholarship, leadership, and personality was presented to Boyd Wolff, a junior in dairy husbandry.

A square dance was held Saturday night at the chapter house. Joe Corrado's orchestra furnished the music. Refreshments were served at intermission.

Coed's Wit Triumphs, Gets Setter on Bus

By BARRY FEIN

There is very little that a Penn State coed can't do—and when she is a future reporter, watch out!

This, then, will be a tale of cool thinking under the most trying of circumstances, a saga of wit and wisdom. A story of a girl who isn't blind—and her seeing-eye dog.

Jean Lathlaen, a sixth semester journalism student, took her pooch to the dog show in Harrisburg. Said doggie is a fine Gordon Setter who goes under the unassuming appellation of Champion Fast's Firebrand of Windy Hill, C.D. "Fastie" for short.

Came time to come home from the show, at which Fastie was judged best of breed in his class, and Jean couldn't find a ride back to the College.

A Transformation She looked all over Harrisburg, but not a returning student with a car could be found. Desperate, our heroine decided to take a bus.

Since local bus lines do not usually consider Gordon Setters desirable passengers, Fastie had to be disguised. With a few creative twists Jean created a harness from some dog collars, and her champion was soon adorned as a seeing-eye dog.

That took care of Fastie. Now for Jean. She took off her glasses and watch, and assumed a blank stare.

Her girl friends assisted her in getting on the bus. The driver took one look at Fastie and apparently decided that a Gordon Setter could be a seeing-eye dog.

Temporary Calm Everything went smoothly until someone called, "Jean, what are you doing with a dog?" This faux pas was greeted with tomb-like silence and a blank stare.

Jean then spent the next three hours trying not to look out the window. Fastie fell asleep. The girls quieted down. Everything was going fine.

When the bus pulled in at the Post House some unidentified student uncooperatively asked of Jean, "How did you get the dog on the bus?" Nonplussed, the driver assisted Fastie and his owner off the bus.

Fastie looked at the Greyhound. The Greyhound looked at Fastie. Jean looked at both of them, took the harness off Fastie, put on her watch and glasses, and took off to her dormitory.

Thus endeth this tale of a girl and her dog.
