

'The Boy President'

—Photo by Schroeder
GEORGE GLAZER, clothed in a diaper, portrays Stanley Wengert, Interfraternity Council "Boy President," at Sigma Delta Chi's annual Gridiron Banquet last night at the Nittany Lion Inn. Glazer is sitting on Wengert's lap.

Personalities Roast At Gridiron Banquet

By MARSHALL DONLEY

Scores of College and town personalities were "lamponed" last night at the annual Gridiron Banquet, sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity, at the Nittany Lion Inn. More than 100 men from the student body, the faculty, administration and town attended the banquet, which featured six satirical skits and numerous comic episodes presented by members of Sigma Delta Chi.

Guests of honor at the affair were President Milton S. Eisenhower and Louis H. Bell, director of public information. President Eisenhower spoke following the personality-roasting skits and introduced Bell, who spoke in rebuttal to the lamponing. Both the president and Bell were "roasted" during the performance.

Among the administration and faculty members who were lamponed were Capt. Phillip A. Mark of the campus patrol; Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs; Walter Wiegand, director of the department of physical plant; Pearl O. Weston, dean of women; and Ben Etwema, dean of the School of Liberal Arts.

All-College President James Worth, and many other students, including Stanley Wengert, president of the Interfraternity Council; William Klisanin, NSA chairman; Donald Maurey, wrestling captain; and Thomas Jurchak, All-College secretary-treasurer were lamponed in the skits and episodes.

The theme for the affair was "The South Shall Rise Again."

Debate Team Slated to Meet Mt. St. Mary's

The Penn State women's debate team will meet the Mount St. Mary's men in four non-decision debates tonight in 1 and 2 Sparks.

In the first two debates at 7:30 p.m., Ethel Brown and Barbara Kaufman will debate the affirmative for Penn State while Susan Holtzinger and Greta Weaver will debate the negative.

In the last two debates, scheduled for 9 p.m., Nancy Nelsen and Peggy Crooks will represent the affirmative, with Constance Matlavage and Mary Yandow representing the negative.

All four debates are on the national intercollegiate debate topic, Resolved: That the federal government should adopt a permanent program of wage and price controls. Clayton H. Schug, coach of women's debate, announced that all the debates are open to the public.

Radio Report to Be Heard by Cabinet

A progress report of work on the proposed campus radio station and a request for student opinion on the report will be brought before All-College Cabinet tonight, David Mutchler, radio committee co-chairman, said yesterday.

Cabinet will also vote on the proposed 25 cent a semester fee raise for the College judging team expenses; vote on a proposed amendment to the constitution concerning the Board of Publications, and hear a second reading of the joint Freshman Customs Board plan.

Particular interest will be taken in how off-campus students receive the campus radio station plan, Mutchler said. Last year's senior class granted $6000 to the establishment of the station. Mutchler said the senior class

PSCA Is Recruiting Salesmen

Sales personnel for the Penn State Christian Association's College Sportswear project is, now being recruited, Doris Price, personnel manager for the project, said yesterday.

The PSCA is taking over College Sportswear, Inc., corner of S. Allen street and E. Beaver avenue, next week, to raise money for the PSCA treasury. Students who volunteer their services during free hours will replace the regular sales personnel. The profit made on sales during the week will go to the PSCA treasury.

This is the second year PSCA has undertaken the project.

College Sportswear, Inc., will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday next week.

Sheets have been posted at the Student Union desk in Old Main, in the TUB and at several local student foundations. Students who wish to volunteer their services should sign up on one of these lists and indicate the hours during which they can work, Miss Price said.

A work schedule, showing the hours during which each student will work, will be posted at the SU Sunday, Miss Price said. Schedules will also be placed in the PSCA office, 304 Old Main, and in the College Sportswear store.

A prize will be given to the student making the highest amount of sales during the week. Last year Evelyn Sebastian won the prize, then a $50 war bond.

Inklings on Sale Today At Three Stands

Inklings, literary magazine, will be on sale again today at the Mall and Pollock road, in the West Dorm courtyard, and in front of the Corner Room. The price of the publication is 25 cents.

Complimentary copies of Inklings are available at the Student Union desk for the staff and contributors.

Actor to Judge 'Miss State' Pics

Don Taylor, motion picture star and a graduate of the College, will select the five finalists for this year's Miss Penn State contest, James Geffert, Spring Week chairman, announced yesterday.

In his letter to Geffert, Taylor said he would be "delighted" to act as the judge and added that if he is anywhere in the vicinity at the time of the ceremony he would try to be present for the coronation.

Any undergraduate woman is eligible to enter the contest, Geffert said, providing she is sponsored by a campus organization. Portraits of the entrants must be turned in to the Student Union desk by April 5.

Crowning on May 12

The portraits must be five by seven inches and must be properly identified. The following information is required with all entries: name of the sponsoring organization, name of the contestant, curriculum, age, height, College address, and hometown.

The crowning of Miss Penn State will take place in Schwab Auditorium May 12 and will be the first big event of this year's Spring Week activities. Barbara Klopp, last year's contest winner, will crown the 1952 queen. The winner will then reign over the Spring Week affairs with the other four finalists comprising the queen's court.

Portraits to be Displayed

The winning contestant comes in for a large share of state and national publicity, Geffert said, and also receives numerous prizes from town merchants. The Spring Week committee also hopes to present the queen with a trophy in the form of a loving cup which would be purchased with funds donated by local businessmen.

The portraits submitted in the contest will be displayed in a local store window once a large enough group has been turned into the Student Union desk, Geffert said.

ALL-COLLEGE CABINET Agenda

- Roll Call
- Minutes of the previous meeting
- Adoption of the agenda
- Reports of officers
- Reports of committees:
 1. Religion-in-Life Week
 2. Campus radio station
- Old business:
 1. Penn State Judging Teams
 2. Board of Publications
 3. Freshman Customs Board
 4. NSA dues
- New business:
 1. Senate committee on athletics
 2. Association of College Unions Convention
 3. Committee appointments

grant will provide only enough money to set up the station but not enough money to operate it. He said he hopes enough money will be forthcoming from other sources for operation of the station. Under the plan, the station will broadcast from Sparks with a transmitter somewhere on campus.

The fee change recommendation up for a vote tonight provides that all students be assessed 25 cents a semester to support the College intercollegiate judging teams and that the present agriculture activities fees of $1 be reduced by 75 cents.

The plan originally presented to cabinet called for a ten-cent (Continued on page eight)

'Ugly Man' Polls Open Successfully

Although the March winds attacked the Alpha Phi Omega Ugly Man booth yesterday, blowing the photos of Penn State's ugliest crew up Pollock road, the contest opened successfully as far as officials were concerned.

William Slepik, contest chairman, said voting was "moving along well." He said no tabulations on leaders in the contest will be given since the "Ugly Man of 1952" will not be named until the IFC-Panhel Ball is held April 4 in Recreation Hall.

Slepik said gusts of wind tore the contestants' photos from the booth and officials had difficulty rounding up the loose photos. Two photos were missing at closing time yesterday, but Slepik said they will be replaced today.

Students may vote for their favorite ugly at the booth on the Mall at Pollock road. Votes may be cast by placing money in designated containers. Students may vote as often as they wish. Proceeds of the contest will go to the Campus Chest.

The contestant getting the most money-votes will be crowned Ugly Man and will receive a silver key. The group sponsoring him will receive a plaque.

WSGA, WRA Final Elections Set Today

Polls in women's dormitories will be open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. today for final election of seven Women's Student Government Association and five Women's Recreation Association officers.

As in the primaries, women from Grange will vote in McAllister Hall, and women living in town, the Co-op, and home management houses may vote in either Woman's Building or McAllister.

All coeds are eligible to vote for WSGA president, vice president, and treasurer, and all WRA officers. In addition, juniors vote for senior senator, sophomores vote for junior senator, freshmen vote for sophomore senator, and town women vote for town senator.

Final candidates for WSGA president as a result of the primaries are Yvonne Carter and Joan Hutcheon. Runner-up for president will be WSGA secretary.

Other WSGA finalists are: For vice president—Marian Ungar and Barbara Werts. The runner-up will be a junior senator.

For treasurer—Maud Strawn and Baylee Friedman.

For senior senator—Carolyn McElroy and Joanne Williams.

For junior senator—Marilyn Buzby and Nancy White.

For sophomore senator—Beverly Dickinson and Sylvia Grube.

WRA finalists are: For president—Mable Marple and Meredith Williamson.

For vice president—Ethel Brown and Barbara Wallace.

For secretary-treasurer—Carole Avery and Eleanor Gwynn.

For intramural chairman—Patricia Colgan and Virginia Hinner.

For assistant intramural chairman—Beate Maron and Marie Wagner.

Art Exhibition Opens Tonight

A community art gallery, to be available for exhibitions of individual and group work, will open at 7 tonight in the new Schlow furniture store on S. Atherton street.

Thirty oil paintings and water colors, including work by seven faculty members, will be on display.

Faculty members who will show paintings in the invitation exhibit are David A. Campbell, associate professor of engineering drawing; Andrew W. Case, professor of fine arts; Yar G. Chomicky, instructor in art education; and M. Robert DesMarais, assistant professor of architecture.

Coed Improved

The condition of Rhea White, who was seriously injured March 13 in an automobile accident near Syracuse, N.Y., was reported improved yesterday by the Associated Press. Miss White is being treated at the Crouse-Ingov Hospital, Syracuse.

TODAY'S WEATHER

CLOUDY AND COOL

