

Strength Called War Preventive

By DAVE JONES

The only way to prevent a world conflict today is with strength, Kurt von Schuschnigg, former chancellor of Austria, said Tuesday night in an interview following his talk at the Community Forum.

Schuschnigg is now on a short lecture tour during mid-semester at St. Louis University where he teaches political science.

With the controlled contribution of Germany in European defense, white-haired Schuschnigg said, the West will increase its strength to combat what he termed "a very substantial, Russian threat in Europe."

Cannot Remain Neutral

The United States must force a union of European nations if the nations themselves are not willing to unite, Schuschnigg continued. Europe must have this union or the money the United States is spending there will be wasted. The former chancellor referred to the United States as the leading power in the world today.

Germany must be able to defend itself under the political and military leadership of a common European commander, he said, touching on the Germany rearmament question. Germany cannot remain neutral, he added. Eastern aggression may result from a German arms build-up as opponents to the plan predict, he continued, but this is the risk that must be taken.

Many Germans, including many of the youth, are pacifists, he said. They have been told they were never again to wear a uniform and now they are asked to put one on, he continued. This is confusing contradiction, Schuschnigg said. No one can foresee what decision would be reached by the German people on the question if a new election would be held, he said.

'No Occupation is Popular'

Most Europeans see the United States as a friend and protector and are grateful for American aid despite Russian propaganda, Schuschnigg said. Russia tells Europe that the United States is spending money for a new war, but only the minority believe this, he added.

Most Germans do not like the military occupation of their homeland, the ex-statesman continued, since no occupation can be popular. They would prefer occupation on a protective basis alone with the occupation troops having no hand in national affairs as they have today, he said.

Blue Band To Perform In Schwab

The Penn State concert Blue Band, under the direction of James W. Dunlop, will present its annual spring concert at 3 p.m. Sunday in Schwab Auditorium. Doors will be open at 2:30 p.m.

The 90 members of the band will present a program similar to the concerts they gave during their recent spring tour which took them to Brookville, Sharon, Slippery Rock, and Brockway.

David Fishburn, trombonist, will be featured soloist for "Thoughts of Love" (Pryor), the third number on the program. Robert Manning, Grayce Hope Jeffries, and Neil Andre will be soloists for "Alpine Fantasy" (Leidzen), a horn trio. "Nanine" (Marsal), a clarinet duet, will feature Thomas Hahn and Richard Crosby as soloists.

The Blue Band will open the program with the national anthem, followed by "Emblem of Unity" (Richards), march; "The Sicilian Vespers" (Verdi), overture; "Thoughts of Love"; "Royal Decree," an English march; "Alpine Fantasy"; "Death and Transfiguration" (Strauss), and "The Shawl Dance" (Skinner).

After the intermission, the band will continue with "Symphony in F minor No. 4" (Tschaiikowsky); "Nanine"; "Jugoslav Polka" (List); "River Jordan" (Whitney); "La Sorella" (Gallini); medley of Rogers and Hart songs (arr. Leidzen), and "Stars and Stripes Forever" (Sousa).

Reed Speaks At 1st Meeting Of Democrats

To win a presidential election, a party needs an organization which reaches to the grass roots, Arthur H. Reede, professor of economics, told about 20 Young Democrats last night at their first meeting.

Joseph Stratos and Kenneth Doverspike, temporary co-chairmen, said the major aim of the organization was to get students interested in politics. The campus group is affiliated with state and national Young Democrats organizations.

Stratos said the group would join with borough residents in sponsoring a Jackson-Jefferson Day Dinner early in May at which Richardson Dilworth, Philadelphia district attorney, will speak.

Co-ordinators for living districts were chosen. Stratos said officers will be elected at the next meeting which will take place before Easter vacation. Doverspike said the group was planning to publish a newsletter.

Reede, who is helping to organize the group, said politics is a method of correcting injustice and a matter of ringing door bells. "If you want good government, you have to work for it," he said.

Guild to Broadcast 'Sometime' Tonight

"Sometime Every Summer-time," by Fletcher Markle, will be presented by the Radio Guild over WMAJ on the program "Thursday at Eight" tonight.

The play, divided into three parts, relates how a summer romance affects the lives of the three main characters.

The cast includes Norman Eisenstat as MacFedries, Peter Twaddle as Clem Waldron, and Regina Friedman as Mary Thomas. Gordon Greer will be the announcer.

Other members of the cast include Ann J. Jones, Anna Peifer, Eugene Kolber, Moylan Mills, and Guido Schiazza.

Sound is under the direction of Diana Koppelman. Patricia Hathaway is technical director, and Donald Wahl is student director.

Association of Colleges Makes State Aid Query

Screening of how some $50,000,000 in state aid to colleges is actually spent has been called for by the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Universities, according to the Associated Press.

Executive Secretary Carl Seifert said a new law to establish a bureau of higher education may lead to such a program.

The 1951 legislature approved appropriations ranging from $2,000,000 to $16,000,000 to the College, which is state supported, and the state aided Universities of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and Temple.

Seifert said these grants were made without clearance by the public instruction department and without any detailed accounting by the four institutions of exactly how the money is being spent.

In the past, representatives of each of the colleges approached the House and Senate appropriations committees on an individual basis and explained their needs. State grants are intended for maintenance and not for capital outlays, Seifert said.

He said: "Pennsylvania appropriates considerable funds for

Annual LA Mixer At TUB Tonight

Student entertainment and refreshments will highlight the annual LA Mixer from 7 to 9 tonight at the TUB.

Patricia Marsteller, Edward Rolf, and Rodney Stegall will perform at the affair, which is open to all students and faculty members free of charge.

Music will be provided by Jack Huber and his orchestra.

Members of the committee include chairman Thomas Farrell, Elizabeth Agnew, Betty Buchanan, Mark Loevner, Ann Quigley, Ronald Safier, and Guyla Woodward.

'Ike' Supporters Meet Tonight

The second "Americans for Eisenhower" meeting will be held at 7 tonight in 202 Willard.

Final plans for a rally to be held next week will be discussed, and one or more speakers will be named. Chairman Ben Sinclair announced that he has been arranging with Senator James Duff and other leaders of the Eisenhower movement to obtain speakers.

Also included on the agenda are the naming of committees and setting up of organizational structures.

Students interested in the Eisenhower campaign may attend the meeting, regardless of their voting status, according to Sinclair.

IFC-Panhel To Present Radio Show

This is the third article in a series explaining the Greek Week program. The Week starts this Saturday and will be concluded April 5 with the IFC-Panhel Ball.

The third activity scheduled for Greek Week is the Interfraternity and PanHellenic councils' radio program Sunday night over WMAJ.

The half-hour program is taking the place of the usual IFC-Panhel sing which has been moved back to May 11.

Starting at 9:30 p.m., the program will be based on "Presenting Sororities and Fraternities Through Music." The songs will emphasize the spiritual aspect of fraternal life and the outlook of the fraternities and sororities toward the social and academic side of College.

The production of the program and its script is being done by members of the Radio Guild under the direction of Anthony Kibelbeck. Music director is David Margolf. The music will be presented by a choral group composed of Melvin Boyd, George Jeffries, Robert Burns, Richard Spriggs, James Shaw, David Margolf, Donald Carlson, Martin Benson, Lucy Barr, Patricia Blaney, Georgia Gianopoulos, Barbara Bright, Norma McCormick, Patricia Uplinger, and Suzanne Scurfield, soloist.
