

Newsmen Will Hold Seminar

The annual seminar for the Society of Newspaper Editors, which will consider problems of political science this year, will be held today and tomorrow at the Nittany Lion Inn.

Dr. M. Nelson McGeary of the Political Science department will be chairman of the seminar. Prof. Lee E. Carter will give an introductory speech to the group this afternoon. He will speak on "Problem Areas in Pennsylvania Local Government."

Charles F. Leedecker Jr., acting executive secretary of the Institute of Local Government at the College, will be discussion leader for this afternoon's session. J. Orvis Keller, director of general extension services, will also speak at the seminar.

Elmore McKee, director of "The People Act" program, will address the group tonight at a banquet session to be held at the Centre Hills Country Club.

The final meeting of the seminar will be held at 12:45 at the Nittany Lion Inn. At the meeting Kermit McFarland, of the Scripps-Howard papers, will speak on "Making Democracy Work."

The Society of Newspaper Editors sponsor the closed seminars each year, with the emphasis on a different field each year. The topic of last year's seminar was the use of the atom for war and peace.

'Ike' Group Names Heads

Area chairmen were appointed last night by the campus Americans for Eisenhower organization and entrusted with "snowballing" a membership drive to culminate in an Eisenhower rally before the Pennsylvania primary, April 22.

The area heads, who comprise the executive committee of the organization, are John Baron, fraternities; Vincent Yakowicz, Nittany-Pollock; John Zamba, West Dorms, and George Smith, Windcrest.

Alexander Stamateris and Donald Douglas were named vice chairmen of the Nittany and Pollock areas respectively. Mark Unger is in charge of publicity and also holds a seat on the executive committee.

Fee Raise --

Marvin Krasnansky, chairman of the Board of Publications, said he favored the assessment because the judging teams represent the student body and the College, not only the School of Agriculture. David Stabler, Agriculture Student Council president who first presented the fee proposal to cabinet, cited the debate and athletic fees as partial to specific schools.

The original plan presented by Stabler last week called for only a ten cent fee raise but cabinet recommended the plan adopted last night. The modified plan was introduced last week by Marilyn Levitt, Panhellenic Council president.

Cabinet also approved an amendment to the constitution that will allow the Board of Publications to select new members by a three-fourths vote with the approval of cabinet. The vote was 19 to 2 with one abstention.

Inklings Still on Sale

Inklings will go on sale today in the women's dormitory area and the West Dorm area. Copies will also be sold at the Mall and Pollock road, in West Dorm courtyard and in front of the Corner Room. Milton Bernstein, managing editor, said this step has been taken to encourage sales which he said have been very poor.

Local Groups To Co-Sponsor Industry Meet

The Penn State chapters of the Society for Advancement of Management and the Industrial Relations Research Association will co-sponsor a conference on industrial relations today and tomorrow in 110 Electrical Engineering.

H. L. Jones, industrial relations director of Standard Pressed Steel, Jenkintown, formerly of the College, will speak at 7:30 tonight on "Organization and Management of an Industrial Relations Program."

"Selection and Placement of Personnel" will be the topic of R. C. Woolson, supervisor of personnel testing, York Corporation, at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow.

George Griffiths, Western representative of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, will speak on "Labor's Attitude toward Fair Employment Practices Legislation" at the luncheon meeting at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Reformed Church.

Trustees --

(Continued from page one) mended 75 cent drop in the agriculture activities fee, which was included in cabinet's suggestion. At present, a part of the judging teams' expenses is deferred by the agriculture activities fee.

Although the agenda for the trustees meeting was not available to the Daily Collegian last night, the grievance demands of the College service employees union were also expected to be discussed. The union last week voted to postpone strike action against the College until April 23 in order to give the trustees an opportunity to act on their grievances.

Another matter which might be included on the docket is the College regulation barring political speeches on campus unless a speaker from the opposite party also be on the platform.

The two campus political factions, "Americans for Eisenhower" and "Young Democrats," informed sources reveal, have asked the board for a ruling as to how they might bring political candidates and their backers on campus.

The trustees will also consider a proposal to construct an 181-car parking lot in Hort Woods along Beaver Field between Curtin road and Park avenue.

(Continued from page one) right to compete in the NCAA tournaments. It also opposed the basis that the distance of the tournaments from State College be considered as a determining factor in arriving at the eligibility of entries.

The resolution asked that the Senate plan not be a permanent one and that future decisions be arrived at by considering an Eastern title but also that the views of the coaches, the Dean of the School of Physical Education and Athletics, and the Graduate Manager of Athletics be considered.

Bernstein in his plan stated that the FM-AM system could be set up without much trouble, and that the system could go into operation on a limited basis with the funds presently available. The initial cost of establishing this station would be $5650, Bernstein said. This includes the cost of getting the antenna, transporting it to the College from Altoona, installation, studio equipment, and nine slave transmitters.

Under the initial plan nine areas would be covered. These are the West Dorms, Atherton, Simmons, McElwain, MacAllister, Grange, Women's Building, and Nittany and Pollock Dorms.

In addition, $2000 would be required annually to operate the station, with about $3000 for miscellaneous costs of broadcast preparation.
