Greeks Launch 7-Day Program

Today begins a series of week-long activities aimed at the improvement of Greek-community relations. Greek Week, with the theme of "Civic Responsibility," is under the co-chairmanship of Gerry Gibson and Patricia Acosta.

This is the first time such a program has been tried on campus, and it is the hope of the co-chairmen that it will become an annual affair.

Starting at 10 a.m. today approximately 1000 fraternity and sorority members will cooperate to help clean up State College recreational areas. The work will consist of the cutting of trees for fire wood, pulling out weeds, raking, and painting and cleaning of the borough ambulance and fire equipment.

Plan Radio Program

Tomorrow the emphasis will be placed on religion and the observance of the principles of brotherhood that have been achieved in College. A member of the church attendance committee stated that over 500 fraternity men and about 380 sorority women have signed the list to attend church.

At 9:30 p.m. tomorrow the Greeks will present a half hour radio program based on the theme "Presenting Sororities and Fraternities Through Music." The songs will emphasize the spiritual aspect of fraternal life and the outlook of fraternities and sororities toward the social and academic side of College.

To Fete Faculty, Alums

The production of the program and its script is being done by members of the Radio Guild under the direction of Anthony Kibelbeck. Music director is David Margolf.

On Monday, the Greeks will hold functions for local alumni and for faculty members.

On Tuesday, the fraternities and sororities will hold exchange suppers. The co-chairmen of the exchange dinner, Barbara Norton and William Tritsch, have reported that 470 fraternity and sorority members will participate. The men eating in the dormitories should be at the fraternity houses before 5:15 p.m., the co-chairmen said.

Fraternities will hold open houses for faculty and town people at 7 p.m. Wednesday. About 15 sorority women will be sent to each fraternity to assist in the entertainment.

No formal activities are planned for Thursday so that fraternities can have more time to decorate for the week-end.

Trustees OK 25 Cent Increase

The College Board of Trustees last night approved a 25 cent general student fee increase designed to finance the College's nine agricultural judging teams.

With the 25 cent increase there is incorporated a 75 cent drop in the agriculture activities fee which relieves the School of Agriculture of the burden of financing the teams and places it upon the entire student body.

The fee changes adopted by the trustees were approved just as recommended by All-College Cabinet.

Cabinet gave final approval to the recommendation Thursday night after the agriculture student council had asked All-College Cabinet to help them defray the judging expenses.

The original recommendation carried to cabinet by David Stabler, agriculture student council president, called for a general fee rise of 10 cents, but under a proposal initiated by Marilyn LeVitt, Panhellenic Council president, cabinet chose to suggest that the entire cost of judging team support be placed upon the student body as a whole.

Although the agriculture activities fee is reduced by 75 cents, the fund will still collect 25 cents from each agriculture student to finance general agriculture activities.

This fee will still leave the activities fund with a higher total than under the previous setup after judging expenses were withdrawn, according to a statement made by All-College Secretary Treasurer Thomas Jurcak at a meeting of the agriculture student council this week.

The trustees were still in session when the Daily Collegian went to press last night and it could not be determined what other action the board had taken.

The Lion and State parties will select their candidates for All-College, senior, and junior class officers at clique meetings tomorrow night.

Students who wish to attend a nominations meeting must have attended at least one meeting of that party this semester, Carrol Chapman, All-College elections committee chairman, said yesterday.

The State Party will meet at 7 p.m. in 119 Osmond. The Lion Party will meet at 7 p.m. in 10 Sparks.

Each person entering a party meeting tomorrow night must present a matriculation card before he will be admitted, Chapman said. Students who are in the meeting room before the elections committee arrives will be sent out, he added.

Nominations for All-College, junior, and senior class offices were opened by both parties last week. Final nominations will precede tonight's elections.

No nominations for the offices were made at last week's Lion Party meeting, however.

Nominations made at the State Party meeting were John Laubach, president; Howard Wright and Theodore Kimmel, vice president; and William Griffith, secretary treasurer.

State Party senior class nominees were James Phylor and Margaret Hepler for president and secretary treasurer, respectively.

Richard Gibbs, Warren Haffner, and Richard Lemyre were nominated by the State Party for junior class president. Lemyre declined the presidential nomination following his nomination for the vice presidency. William Wagner was also nominated for vice president. Ann Quigley was nominated for class secretary treasurer.

The Lion Party will also close nominations for freshman and sophomore class clique chairmanships. The nominations were opened last week. Thomas Umholtz was nominated for the sophomore post and Norman Levin for the freshman post.

A Phi O 'Ugly' Contest Results Please Officials

The Alpha Phi Omega Ugly Man contest ended yesterday and contest officials were pleased with the results, which they termed far above all expectations. The money-votes for this year's Ugly Man contest will be counted tonight but the name of the Ugly Man will not be revealed until the IFC-Panhel Ball April 4 in Recreation Hall.

The proceeds of this year's contest will go to the Campus Chest.

The Ugly Man will receive a silver key and the group sponsoring him will receive a plaque.

This year's contest began Wednesday. Students voted for their favorite uglies at the booth on the Mall at Pollock road.

Some contestants campaigned for Ugly Man with sandwich signs, posters, window decorations, and acts to raise money.
