

55 Coeds Are Entered In Miss 'State' Contest

The portraits of 55 coeds who have been entered in the 1952 Miss Penn State contest have been sent to Hollywood where motion picture star Don Taylor will choose the five contest finalists.

Final judging of the finalists will take place on May 12, when the winner will be crowned Miss Penn State of 1952 at a special coronation ceremony in Schwab Auditorium. Barbara Klopp, last year's contest winner, will bestow the crown on the new queen who will then reign over the ensuing Spring Week activities.

Three judges have been chosen so far for the final judging, Janet Herd, coronation director, said yesterday. Martha Nold of the Grace Down Model and Air Career School in New York, Norma West of the Barbizon Studio of Fashion Modeling in New York, and Charles Petnick, owner of the Charles Shop, have agreed to act as judges in the contest.

Priestly Lecturer

Dr. Joseph W. Kennedy

Kennedy To Speak On Atoms

Dr. Joseph W. Kennedy, chairman of the Department of Chemistry at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., will deliver the 26th annual series of Priestly lectures which begin Monday and continue until Friday. The subject for the five lectures will be "Radioactive Atoms and Isotopic Tracers."

The Priestly lecture series was founded at the College in 1926 in honor of Joseph Priestly, a noted English chemist and physicist who came to this country and lived at Northumberland, Pa.

A leading scientist is presented annually to lecture on a subject that is bordering between physical chemistry and another field.

Dr. Kennedy was the chemistry and metallurgy leader at the Los Alamos Laboratory prior to his present position. He was awarded a merit medal for his work on the Manhattan project.

Osborne Art Work Now on Display

Nearly 100 drawings and paintings, including oils, water colors, pencil sketches and pastels, are being exhibited at the Schlow Gallery, S. Atherton street, this week.

The paintings and drawings were done by Milton S. Osborne, head of the Architecture department, and Mrs. Osborne, and represent travels through the United States and Europe. The works have been shown in galleries in Canada and the United States.

Architectural drawings by Osborne have previously been shown at the National Gallery of Canada, Brooklyn Museum, Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, and other prominent galleries across the country.

Independents Plan Dance

An independent dance, sponsored by the Association of Independent Men and Leonides, will be held from 9 p.m. to midnight tonight in the West Dorm lounge. Music will be provided by the Campusers and no admission will be charged.

Kahn to Speak Tonight

Kitzmiller Finds Honors, Thrills At NISA Meeting

A ring-side seat at her first earthquake, and semi-finalist honors were the reward of Mary Anne Kitzmiller, Penn State's first Independent Sweetheart, who attended the National Independent Student Association convention last weekend at the University of Oklahoma.

Miss Kitzmiller was one of 35 contestants vying for the title of National Independent Sweetheart of 1952. She was among 18 chosen as semi-finalists.

"We got there just in time for an earthquake," she said. Miss Kitzmiller recalled that the earthquake gave much the same sensation as the train on which she had been traveling for two days to reach the convention.

Activities for Miss Kitzmiller at the convention included interviews on Friday morning, the contest, and the Coronation Dance Saturday night.

Patricia Berry of Purdue University was crowned National Independent Sweetheart at the dance.

Square Dance at TUB

The Clover Club will hold a square dance from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight tomorrow at the TUB. Dances will be called by Chauncey Lang. Donations will be accepted.

Dormitory Housing Explained by Clark

Russell Clark, director of housing, gave a brief explanation of the financial system of the College compared with other educational institutions and explained the operating procedures of the College housing service last night at a meeting with the Dean of Men's advisory committee.

Expressing his approval of the College's dormitory system, Clark said Pollock Circle, the most inexpensive of the dorm areas, is something of which to be proud in comparison with the living quarters of some Western and Middle Western institutions. He explained that the Pollock Circle dormitories were given to the College and therefore did not cost anything to build.

Clark said the new dormitories were financed with money borrowed from the state's retirement fund. The retirement fund, he explained, required investments which would bring in a four per cent interest rate. The decision to use this money was based on the idea that it would aid the taxpayers and the employees of the state.

The building of the Nittany dormitories, he said, was limited by the allotment of steel. Unofficial plans for the future include construction of new dormitories for the Pollock Circle area, he said.

The College, Clark said, incurred a debt of $16,300,000 in building the Nittany dormitories, the faculty housing facilities at East

View, Simmons Hall, McElwain Hall, and the three new dormitories in the West area.

He said the College established a good credit rating when it cleared a housing debt, which was to be paid in 14 years, in a seven year period. The 14 year bill was to be paid off at the rate of $100,000, plus interest, per year.

Fiesta Tonight At Phi Kappa

Dances of the Americas will be played and taught at the Fiesta at 9 tonight at Phi Kappa in celebration of Pan American Day.

The affair is open to the public and no admission will be charged.

Since April 14, the day nationally celebrated, fell during the College's spring vacation, the Pan-American Day committee planned activities that began last week and will end with lectures by South American students next week.
