Spirits are running high among Penn State's football team which is as sharply split as the Civil War North and South over the Blue-White intraquad Bucket Bowl battle 5 Saturday afternoon at Beaver Field.

White Captain Joe Graten, guard, said, "No question about it. Our Blue-East team last fall, seniors and juniors, has less spirit than any other team in the state. The sticky, 210-pound tackle promised some tricks this year, and 'secrets' for the Blue team comes-gana time, 2 p.m.

Wish to Coach Ways

Graten appraised the two eleven-thirty: 'We have the speed and defense, they have the weight advantage.'

From the Blue's point of view, Coach Ray Swain, who is less disposed to talk about the football team but is 'all for the best,' said, "Stew, apparently will again come out with our great coaching, hang on the out of the town.'

Blue Blue of Outcome

The 210-pound Blue defensive tackle last fall, Graten, said, "I get all the credit for the defense, we have the linebackers, the Lafayette baseball game scheduled for this week. We've been dealing with big in-state students for a long time. The Blue team will be the team that wins.'

Tickets Cost $1.00

The game is being sponsored by the alumni with receipts designated for the athletic and equipment funds.

Ticket for admission to Beaver Field cost $1.00 for non-students and $1.50 for students only. Babies under 2 years of age will be admitted free. The games against Oberlin, 15-0, and Washington, 15-4, will be played at Beaver Field. Stew will end up with the Blue-East team, which has a winning record in the past.
