Bell to Give Final Forum Talk Tonight

What American parents can do about the "crisis in education" in this country will be discussed by Dr. Bernard Iddings Bell, nationally known lecturer and writer on education, when he gives the final Community Forum lecture at 8 tonight in Schwab Auditorium.

The critical view which Dr. Bell takes toward this country's educational facilities is presented in his most recent book, "Crisis in Education," published last month. Dr. Bell's latest contention is that the blame is not the teachers, who he says, are not falling down on the job. He says that the job, ridiculously expanded, has fallen on to them.

Dr. Bell contends that the excessive expansion of the educational program in this country which places more burdens on the teacher is the crux, and the truth, of the entire problem.

Dr. Bell was graduated from the University of Chicago, attended the Western Theological Seminary in Chicago, and received his Litt. D. degree from Columbia University in 1929. He was a professor of religion at Columbia University from 1930 to 1933.

The forum lecturer is presently consultant on education to the Bishop of Chicago. Dr. Bell has written 19 books, including "Beyond Agnosticism" and "The Church in Disrepute." He has lectured in this country and in England.

A limited number of tickets for the lecture are still available for $1.20 at the Student Union desk in Old Main.

Interfraternity Council Heads To Be Installed

New officers of the Interfraternity Council will be officially installed following the annual IFC banquet at 6 p.m. tomorrow at the Nittany Lion Inn.

Stanley Wengert, retiring president, will preside at the installation of Arthur Rosfeld, Phi Delta Theta, president; William Hirsch, Tau Kappa Epsilon, vice president; and Thomas Fleming, Pi Kappa Alpha, secretary treasurer.

Each fraternity will be represented at the banquet by its IFC representative, house president, and adviser.

H. K. Wilson, Dean of Men, will be guest speaker and Jack Flannigan, Sigma Chi, will be toastmaster. Guests of honor will include Harold W. Perkins and Daniel A. DeMarino, assistant deans of men, and Luther H. Harshbarger, College chaplain.

Other retiring officers are James Wharton, vice president, and John Allison, secretary treasurer. The new officers were elected April 7 and will assume their duties immediately following installation.

MI Honorary to Meet

'Sigma Gamma Epsilon,' mineral industries honorary, will meet at 7 tonight in Willard Hall.

Edwin J. Anderson, professor of agriculture, will speak on the study and culture of bees.

Students, Alumni, Prexy Get Honors Day Awards

By MIMI UNGAR

While 12 students, five alumni, one sorority, and one fraternity were being honored last night at the Honors Day program in Schwab Auditorium, James Worth, retiring All-College president, presented a surprise award to President Milton S. Eisenhower.

John Laubach, newly elected All-College president, was sworn into office by David Mutchler, chairman of Tribunal, following Worth's presentation of a student government key to the Prexy. Such a key is ordinarily given only to students.

Individual's Role
In presenting the key to President Eisenhower, Worth said the Prexy had aided student government even to the extent of breaking previous engagements.

President Eisenhower, in presenting the introductory address, charted the role of the outstanding individual in a democratic society.

"We are doing more than expressing admiration for unusual competence," he said. "We are recognizing essential qualities of leadership and, through this convocation, we are trying to emphasize the vital importance of the outstanding or uncommon person in a democracy."

8 Get Pugh Medals

Robert L. Weber, chairman of the Senate committee on scholarships and awards, presented the John W. White Medal, awarded to the highest ranking senior, to Jean Black. Ralph Clark received the John W. White Fellowship of $600 to do graduate work. The President Sparks Medal, awarded to the student making a 3.00 average each semester and showing the greatest degree of improvement, was given to Richard Grostefon.

The Evan Pugh Medals, presented by Agnes R. McElwee, president of the Honor Society Council, went to Julian Gordan, James Prete, Jean Richards, John Jeffries, Robert South, Guy McKee, Rocco Narcissi, and George Alleman. These are awarded to high ranking students who do not receive the White awards.

The Sigma Chi Scholarship Trophy, given to the fraternity showing the greatest improvement in scholarship, was presented to Robert Gray, president of Phi Gamma Delta, by James Wharton, vice president of Interfraternity Council.

Two Debate Teams Place in Tourneys

Two Penn State debate teams placed third and seventh, and another lost out in the quarter-finals in two tournaments last weekend.

The men's team placed third and the women's seventh at the Carnegie Institute of Technology Tartan Tournament. Debating affirmatively for the men, Eugene Kolber and Mark Unger went undefeated. The negative debaters, John Baron and Thomas Durek, won two and lost two.

The women's affirmative team, composed of Audrey Rothschild and Marjorie Kahn, and the negative debaters, Barbara Menapace and Peggy Fahringer, each won two and lost two debates.

The undefeated men's affirmative team beat University of Pennsylvania, Geneva College, Houghton College, and University of Pittsburgh. The negative team won over Xavier University and Carnegie Institute of Technology but lost to Kent State University and the University of Pittsburgh.

Heidelberg College of Ohio, won the championship.

New Senior Board Starts Staff Duties

The new senior editorial board of the Daily Collegian with David Pellnitz as editor and Andrew McNeillie, as managing editor, takes over publication of the paper with this issue.

The new senior board of the advertising staff, headed by Franklin Kelly, business manager, and Phyllis Kalson, local advertising manager, will take over Thursday.

The Daily Collegian's Associated Press news wire was converted to teletypesetter operation on Saturday. All Pennsylvania papers carrying the AP wire now receive the teletypesetter copy.

'Miss State' Finalists Chosen

Patricia Hathaway, Nancy Queer, Louise Robertson, Nancy Scofield, and Joann Terhune have been chosen as finalists in the Miss Penn State contest, James Geffert, chairman of the Spring Week committee, announced yesterday.

Geffert also announced that the deadline for applications for Spring Week carnival booths and the All-College He-Man contest has been extended to noon Saturday.

The deadline for these events was originally set for noon today. Geffert said he had received several requests to extend the dates for applications.

The five Miss Penn State finalists and Barbara Klopp, Miss Penn State of 1951, will be entered in the national "Max Factor Girl" contest.

College graduate and film star Don Taylor, picked the finalists.

Taylor wrote, "that of the 55 girls entered, there are about 55 beautiful women." Taylor hopes the girls he picked will meet the approval of the student body.

When speaking of the "55 beautiful women" Taylor added, "this particular branch (the

Elections Continue in Six Schools

Council elections in six schools will continue today and tomorrow. The Liberal Arts school has reported that 23 per cent of the eligible students have voted so far. Other figures are unavailable as yet.

All participating schools will complete balloting tomorrow, except for the Engineering school, which will end its voting today. The Agriculture and Physical Education schools are not holding elections.

Voting stations have been set up for Chemistry and Physics students in the lobby of Osmond laboratory; Education, Burrows building; Engineering, on the Mall in front of Main Engineering, weather permitting, otherwise in the Main Engineering library; Home Economics, the lobby of the Home Economics building; Liberal Arts, outside south door of Sparks building; Mineral Industries, main lobby of Mineral Industries building.

Nittany, Pollock Group Housing Deadline Now

Applications for group assignments in Nittany and Pollock dormitories will continue to be accepted until 5 p.m. today, Russell E. Clark, director of housing, announced yesterday.

Individual junior applications will be considered from 7 to 9 tonight in 108 Old Main. Sophomores will be processed tomorrow and freshmen Thursday. All reservations will be accepted between 7 and 9 p.m.

About 14 groups have already been assigned rooms in the East dormitories in accordance with the group housing plan, Clark said.

Under the group plan 12 upperclassmen may apply in a body for reservations in Nittany dormitories and 16 may apply for rooms together in Pollock.

Froth to View 'Things to Come'

"The Shape of Things to Come," a look into the year 1972, is the theme of the April issue of the Penn State Froth which goes on sale today.

"One of the lovely young reasons the men raided Thompson Hall," Beverly Dickinson, is pictured as Froth's girl-of-the-month.

Featured in this month's issue of the humor magazine are "Quarter Classics," illustrating the pocket book editions of the classics 20 years from now; "Wall Street Women," Lenore Feinberg's description of women in '72; and "72 Olympics," by Max Talus.

Dick Neuweiler's "The Slime Drops Show," a radio script, shows that not everything in the American way of life will be changed in '72.
