

Spring Carnival, He-Man Entries Due Tomorrow

Applications for Spring Week carnival booths and applications for All-College He-Man contestants are due at noon tomorrow at the Student Union desk in Old Main.

Any student organization, fraternity, sorority, or independent, may participate in the Spring Week activities.

Carnival booths earn 50 points toward the Spring Week prizes for every block of 25 carnival tickets sold.

He-Man contestants earn 75 points for the group they represent.

Applications for carnival booths are due at noon tomorrow. These applications should include the name of the sponsoring organization, and the name, description, and dimensions of the booth. A $20 deposit must accompany the application. This deposit will be returned if the booth is cleaned up after the carnival.

Deduct Expenditures

A fraternity and sorority jointly sponsoring a booth submit only one entry. James Geffert, chairman of the Spring Week committee, has expressed a desire for entries from independent groups. Expenditures for construction and booth prizes may be deducted from the gross receipts of the booth, if desired, but points toward Spring Week prizes will be given for the net receipts.

Applicants for the He-Man contest must submit their name, age, address, phone number, height and weight, and the name of the sponsoring organization.

Points will also be awarded for participation in the pajama parade and the Mad-Hatter's day contest, as well as for entrants and finalists in the Miss Penn State contest.

Mad-Hatters Day

In the parade, the best costumed group will be awarded 150 points, the best comic group 100 points, the most talented group 90 points, and 75 points will be given for the most original idea.

Ten points will be given for each entry in the Mad-Hatter's day contest. Each group that entered a contestant in the Miss Penn State contest has received 15 points per entry.

The carnival will be held from 1 to 11 p.m. May 15 in the west parking lot.

2 Honored By Mining Engineers

John Young and Gunther Badorrek received awards at the annual banquet held Wednesday evening at the State College Hotel by the Penn State chapter of the American Institute of Mining Engineers.

Young, an eighth-semester student in mining engineering, was awarded the Old Timers Club gold watch in recognition of his selection by the faculty and his fellow students as "most likely to succeed." The presentation was made by M. D. Cooper, director of mining engineering education, National Coal Association.

A member of Sigma Phi Sigma, social fraternity, Young also belongs to three honoraries: Tau Beta Pi, Sigma Tau, and Sigma Gamma Epsilon, national mineral industries honorary. He is a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers.

Badorrek, fifth-semester mining engineering student, was presented a $500 scholarship by the American Smelting and Refining Co. The scholarship, awarded by Edward Steidle, dean of the School of Mineral Industries, was given both on the basis of scholarship and personality.

The principal address of the evening was given by Charles W. Connor, administrator of the Defense Solid Fuels Administration. He spoke on the country's present fuels, new fuels, and fuel reserves.

During the past three years, Old Timers Club watches have been awarded to students at seven universities and colleges. Previous winners at the College include Allen Gray Jr., 1949; William Bates, 1950; and Stoddard Burg, 1951.

Dairy Judging Contest Slated For Tomorrow

The annual dairy judging contest, sponsored by the Penn State chapter of the American Dairy Science Association, will be held at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow at the Pavilion.

The judging contest is a preliminary to the Dairy Exposition to be held May 9 and 10.

Any student may enter the competition, Charles Brosius, manager of the Dairy Exposition, said. A 50 cent entry fee will be charged, and the money received will be used solely for prizes.

All contestants will judge ten classes of dairy cattle. Contestants will be divided into two groups: amateur, those who have never taken dairy judging courses; and professional, those who have taken Dairy Husbandry 31. Contestants in the professional group will be required to give reasons for their choices in five out of ten classes.

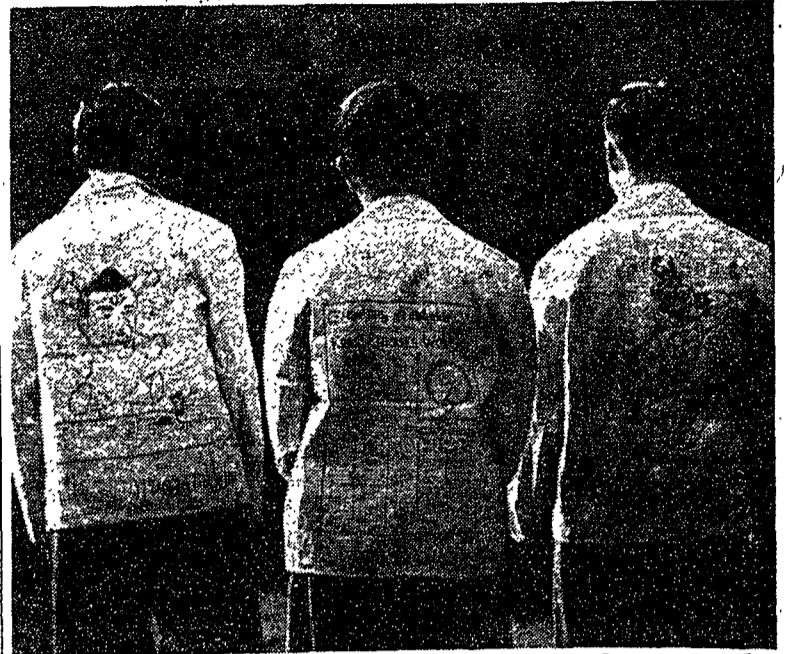

Judges for the event include Joseph Taylor, dairy extension agent, Jerseys; Clyde Hall, dairy extension agent, Brown Swiss; Ira Porterfield, coach of the University of West Virginia dairy cattle judging team, Holsteins; Robert McKown, members of the College dairy judging team in 1949, Ayrshire; Gene Harding, member of the 1950 judging team, Guernseys.

Members of the University of West Virginia dairy cattle judging team will make their annual trip to Penn State to attend the contest.

Seniors May Buy Coats Today at SU

THREE SENIORS, George Glazer, Marvin Krasnansky, and Carrol Chapman, (left to right) display their lion coats yesterday. Each of the traditional coats depicts some of the activities in which these eighth semester students are engaged. Seniors have worn similar coats since 1926 when the tradition was first introduced to the campus.

8 Winners Named In Pony Contest

Eight winners of the pony weight-guessing contest were named yesterday by Edna Grabiak, publicity chairman of the third annual Horse Show to be held tomorrow and Sunday at the College stables.

The eight winners, all men, each came within one-half pound of guessing the pony's correct weight of 468½ pounds. Seven guessed 468 pounds and one guessed 469 pounds. They each won two free tickets to the Horse Show.

Those who guessed 468 pounds were George Colbert, William Edwards, Robert Heckelman, Foster Boyce, Henry Gruber, William Klisanin, and Harry Whitesell. Raymond Galant guessed 469 pounds.

Approximately 600 persons, including faculty, students, townspeople, and children, entered the weight-guessing contest. The youngest contestant was a three-year-old who guessed 510 pounds as the pony's correct weight. The highest guess made was 2200 pounds; the lowest, 153 pounds.

The pony weight-guessing contest was sponsored by the Penn State Riding Club.

The Horse Show will begin at 9 a.m. tomorrow and at 1 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are 50 cents and will be available at the stables.

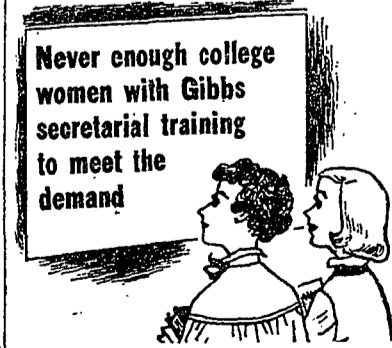

Class division in the horse show will include horsemanship, children's gaited, modified Olympic, Western, Morgan, Arabian, jumpers, hunters, and miscellaneous.

Saturday afternoon the horse show will feature the Pennsylvania Mounted Police from the Wyoming barracks. They participated in last year's show.

Nittany Awards Deadline Extended

The deadline for nominating outstanding Nittany area men for special awards has been extended to 7 p.m. tomorrow by the Nittany Council, Frederick Grout, co-chairman of the special awards committee, said yesterday.

Grout said that the extension had been granted due to the "very slight" student response to the initial deadline. Nominations are open to all men residing in the Nittany dorms.

Awards will be given for scholarship, athletic ability, and participation in extra-curricular activities. Independent students may nominate themselves by turning in a list of their qualifications to Grout, Nittany Dorm 34, Room 11.

Garratt to Speak Tonight

George A. Garratt, dean of the Yale School of Forestry, will speak at the 40th annual banquet of the Penn State Forestry Society tonight at the Nittany Lion Inn.

Senior, Junior NROTC Summer Program Set

The names of 12 Navy ROTC students who will take the NROTC senior contract Caribbean cruise, and 35 NROTC junior regular students who will take amphibious and aviation training for their summer training program, have been announced by Com. Richard N. Billings, associate professor of naval science.

The contract seniors will leave Norfolk, Va., Aug. 10, and return Sept. 5, Commander Billings said.

Midshipmen in the contract program from all 52 of the NROTC units in the United States will make this cruise, Billings said. Contract students only go on a cruise at the end of their junior year.

The junior regular students will report to Little Creek, Va., June 27 for a three-week course in amphibious operations, Commander Billings said. They will transfer then to the Naval Air Station at Corpus Christi, Tex., for aviation instruction. They will be stationed in Texas from July 29 to Aug. 8.

The students on the senior contract cruise are Donald Brainerd, Samuel Engle, Joseph Etter, Frank Feraco, Harry Gribben, James Grove, John Harrison, Frederick Horstman, Matthew Pinto, Irwin Saft, Hudson Samson, and Paul Zanoni.
