

Festival to Feature Strawberry Dessert

By HELEN LUYBEN

If you don't like your dessert tomorrow night, try going out for strawberries and ice cream at the Frazier street playground. You'll be helping Cwens obtain $90 for their adopted Dutch war orphan, Theodora Buurman.

The sophomore women's activities honorary, with the cooperation of the State College High School, is mixing up a real old-fashioned strawberry festival, complete with cakewalk and a high school king and queen of the festival.

Cwens got the idea of working with the high school on the festival in order to more closely integrate the school and the College.

Supports Orphan

"Without the cooperation of the high school, the strawberry festival wouldn't have been possible," Nancy White, general chairman for Cwens, said. "The kids have been working along with us and helping a lot with publicity."

The whole festival is part of a larger plan to support the 12-year-old war orphan, Theodora. Cwens and the Women's Recreation Association jointly contribute $180 to the little girl each year. Each organization raises $90—WRA sent profits from its Sweetheart Dance this year, and now Cwens is sponsoring the strawberry social.

In addition to the $180, Theodora receives a letter from a Cwen each month. At Christmas last year, a large box of clothing, blankets, food, and soap arrived at the orphan's home in Holland. Following is part of the letter of thanks Cwens received, which, written in Dutch, accompanied a very American-looking greeting card.

Happy With Money

"Dear Friends, Now I may quickly drop you a line and thank you for the money order at once and for the Christmas present that I was so lucky to get from you through the organization. The box contained a corduroy skirt, an interlock undershirt and knicker, a woolen blanket, two pairs of socks, three tins of pure lard, and three pieces of soap. "And all of us" also were quite happy with the money order, and Mamma too, as she can use the money quite well for the house-keeping.

Students Enthusiastic

"Many greetings from all of us but especially from me, Your friend, Theodora Buurman." The high school pupils, perhaps because Theodora is near their age, have come out in full support of the project. A high school girl is baking the big cake which will be the prize of the 7:30 p.m. cake-walk.

Voting for the king and queen of the strawberry festival has the high school kids wide-eyed and digging deep in their pockets for pennies, and more pennies. Each home room, sophomore, junior, and senior, picked one candidate for king and queen. Pictures of the six candidates were hung over empty milk bottles, which have long since been filled with penny votes.

Each clank means one boy or girl is one step closer to the royal paper crown and throne of the festival. At 8:15 p.m. tomorrow Peggy Crooks, president of Cwens, will crown the popular king and queen and award them prizes.

The affair will get under way at 6:30 p.m. and if rain should dampen the festivities the strawberries will move to the high school gym.

Discussing Festival Plans

Cwens Taps 13 Frosh Coeds At Breakfast

Thirteen freshman tappees of Cwens, sophomore women's activities honorary, and active members attended a breakfast at 7 a.m. today in McElwain Hall.

The coeds who were tapped at 6 a.m. today are Aurelia Aurrie, Nedalyn Charnbury, Ann Cunningham, Patricia Ellis, Baylee Friedman, Louise Glud, Sylvia Grube, Janice Lea Holm, Nani Ku, Joanne Llewelyn, Barbara Pick, Joyce Schusman, and Maud Strawn.

Qualifications for membership include participation in two major activities and a 1.5 All-College average. The honorary previously choose 14 sophomore members in December.

Before the years when coeds were sent to freshman centers, Cwens always tapped in the spring. Recently women were tapped in their sophomore year when they came on campus.

Today's selection of members renews the older custom of a spring tapping.

Osterhout Wins IM Discussion

Dorothy Osterhout, sponsored by Zeta Tau Alpha, took first place in the final round of the women's intramural discussion held Wednesday.

That colleges do educate and that it is up to the individual student to get intellectual stimulus was the main theme of Miss Osterhout's remarks. She received a silver cup which will remain in her possession for one year.

Second place honors went to Theresa Horrigan, sponsored by Delta Gamma. This marked the first time that a second place winner has been named.

The contest was sponsored by the women's debate squad and Delta Alpha Delta, local women's speech honorary. Eight finalists participated in the discussion on the topic "Do Colleges Really Educate?"

Miss Osterhout gathered her ideas from talking with people and reading material on the subject.

Players Crew Sign-up

Students interested in working on the house crew for the next Players' production, "She Stoops to Conquer," may sign up in the Green Room of Schwab Auditorium, John Price, vice president, announced yesterday.

Hillel to Hear Talk On Summer Projects

By LA VONNE ALTHOUSE

Daniel N. Hoffman of New York, field representative of the American Jewish Society for Service, will speak on two summer service projects at Sabbath Eve services at 8 tonight at the Hillel Foundation, 133 W. Beaver avenue.

Hoffman will describe projects for college men and women sponsored by the American Jewish Society for Service. One is the building of a dining hall at an interracial camp for underprivileged children in Winchester, N.H. The other is the building of playgrounds for a trailer community for more than 100 Negro, white, and Mexican flood victims in Kansas City, Kan.

These projects are open to volunteers of all races and creeds and the service is open to the public, Rabbi Benjamin M. Kahn, director of the foundation, said. Hoffman will be available for conferences this afternoon and tomorrow. Conferences may be arranged with Rabbi Kahn at Hillel.

Members of the Lutheran Student Association will work tonight to prepare food for their annual senior banquet, to be held in the LSA fellowship hall tomorrow night. Tickets for the banquet, priced at $1, may still be secured today from LSA members or at the Lutheran student center, 412 W. College avenue.

Wesley Foundation will sponsor an International Party in the Wesley gymnasium, 256 E. College avenue, at 8 tonight. Chauncey P. Lang, professor of agricultural extension, will call folk and square dances and refreshments will be served. Foreign students will present entertainment.

Dr. Allen MacRae, archeologist and president of Faith Theological Seminary, will speak to the Penn State Bible Fellowship at 7:30 tonight in 405 Old Main on "The Universe—Friend or Foe?"
