

Over the Hurdle

MARION WHITMORE, graduate student, rides Gretchen to win third place in the jumping class of the third annual Horse Show, sponsored by the Penn State Riding Club, held at the College Saturday and Sunday.

Penn State Takes Horse Show Trophy

Penn State won first place in each of the three phases of the intercollegiate modified Olympic at the third annual Horse Show Saturday and Sunday. Penn Hall came in second with 740 points against a total of 748 points collected by Penn State. The trophy was also won by Penn State last year.

The 22 classes of the horse show were classified into horsemanship, children's gaited, modified Olympic, western Morgan, Arabian, jumpers, and hunters divisions. A trophy and six ribbons were awarded in each class.

State Wins Jumps

The Pennsylvania State Police were featured Saturday afternoon in an exhibition of mounted troop drills.

The main jumping class of the horse show took place Saturday afternoon, with Penn State taking first, second, and third prizes. This class was judged mainly on speed and form. Any fault eliminated the horse and rider.

Hunt Class Featured

Donald Duncan was awarded the Riding Club trophy sponsored by the Penn State Riding Club on Sunday afternoon when his horse took first place in jumping and speed. Second place was won by Bud Douglas, who rode a privately owned horse, "Want-A-Do." Penn Hall took third place in the competition for the trophy.

Featured on Sunday afternoon's program was the hunt team class, in which Penn Hall took the first place trophy. Penn State came in second and third in this class.

The Horse Show, held annually at the College, was sponsored by the Penn State Riding Club.

Penn State Club To Elect Officers

The Penn State Club will elect next year's officers at 7 tonight in 465 Old Main.

Nominations have been held open from the previous meeting and further nominations will be accepted tonight before the election is held.

12 Concert Directors Announced

Six directors with two-year terms and six with one-year terms have been named to the Community Concert Association. Dr. Frederick R. Matson, president, announced recently.

New regulations adopted by the association provide for six directors to be named to two-year terms each year.

Those who will serve for two years are Hummel Fishburn, professor of music education; Mrs. Willa C. Taylor, associate professor of music education; Leland S. Rhodes, professor of civil engineering; Dr. Matson, professor of ceramics; Mrs. J. C. Hess; and Mrs. Lyman E. Jackson.

Those named for one-year terms are Henry S. Brunner, professor of agricultural education; Mrs. Elizabeth D. Reynolds, instructor of music; Mrs. E. Scott Roscoe; Robert L. Weber, associate professor of physics; Pearl O. Weston, Dean of Women; and Henry L. Yeagley, associate professor of physics.

Dr. Matson is serving his second year as president. Other officers are Rhodes, vice president; Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, secretary; George L. Donovan, Student Union director, treasurer; and Woodrow W. Bierly, news assistant for public information, publicity director.

Greek Sing Trials To Be Held Tonight

Four fraternity and four sorority choruses will be chosen from the elimination round of the Interfraternity-Panhellenic Council sing, beginning at 7 tonight in 110 Electrical Engineering.

The winners of tonight's round will vie for gold cups in the finals to be held at 7 p.m. Sunday in 10 Sparks, according to Joseph Browne and Marlene Heyman, sing co-chairmen.

Scoring System Costs Chessmen State Victory

There was an interesting twist to Penn State's chess team losing its state championship in Harrisburg Sunday to the University of Pennsylvania.

The Lion chessmen entered a three-way tourney which included Geneva college. Although Penn State beat both opponents, 3-2, Penn shut out Geneva, 5-0, and won the match with the most total points.

Donald Averbach, David Keller, and Karl Segner scored wins for State against Geneva. Peter Betley and Howard Kalodner lost.

Keller and Betley racked up wins against Penn, while Kalodner and Averbach received draws, and Segner lost.

Another sidelight was the trip to Harrisburg itself. Since the College gives no money to the chess team, the members decided to hitch hike to defend their state championship.

Psychology Fraternity To Elect Officers

Psi Chi, national honorary psychology fraternity, will meet at 7:30 tonight in the Hillel auditorium.

Officers will be elected and new members will be initiated. The entertainment will include a symposium on psychology therapy.

Chem Society Fuel Meetings Continue Today

More than 100 chemists and chemical engineers will attend the second day of meetings of the American Chemical Society's Division of Gas and Fuel Chemistry today in the Mineral Industries' art gallery.

At 9 a.m. the group will discuss papers on selected subjects of general interest. George D. Creelman, chairman-elect of the division and research coordinator of the M. A. Hanna Co., Cleveland, O., will preside. College professors participating in the discussions will be Dr. C. R. Kinney and T. S. Polansky, both of the Department of Fuel Technology.

"The Future of Fuels and Energy Sources" will be the subject of the afternoon symposium starting at 2 p.m. It will be presented by Dr. John F. Foster, chairman of the division and supervisor of the fuels division of the Battelle Memorial Institute, Columbus, O.

Williams to Explain New Registration Plan

C. O. Williams, dean of admissions, will explain the new centralized registration procedure to the Dean of Men's Advisory Board at 8 tonight in 109 Old Main.

Centralized registration will be used during fall semester registration, to be held Sept. 10 to 13.

Recreation Conference To Feature Dancers

The annual Folk Dance Festival, workshops, and speakers on recreation will be included in the fifth annual Pennsylvania Recreation Conference, tomorrow through Friday.

The conference, using the theme "Meeting the Challenge of Recreation in Pennsylvania," is planned particularly for recreation directors of schools, municipal departments, camps, industries, youth-serving agencies, park directors, and municipal officials. F. M. Coombs, professor of physical education and chairman of the program, said that any faculty members and students interested are invited to attend the sessions.

Opening the session at 2:10 p.m. tomorrow in 121 Sparks will be Sen. Roland Mahoney of Titusville with the subject "Government's Responsibility in Recreation." Robert E. Woodside, attorney general, Department of Justice, will speak on "Recreation, a Challenge to Local Government," at 6:15 p.m. tomorrow at the dinner meeting at the Nittany Lion Inn.

Among the workshops scheduled on summer playgrounds, park design, recreation for the elderly, midget sports, and camping, will be a folk dance workshop Thursday afternoon in the West Dorm lounge. Edward Durlacher of Square Dance Associates, New York City, will conduct the workshop, which is open to the public. The Folk Dance Festival will be held from 8:15 to 11 p.m. Thursday in Recreation Hall. Durlacher will preside over the festival, also open to the public.
