'Miss State' to Enter Max Factor Contest

By EVVIE KIELAR

Nancy Queer, Miss Penn State of '52, has blond hair, hazel eyes, 22 years of living behind her, and a determination to enter the nationwide contest to choose the Max Factor Girl, who will personify the "fresh, young, American look."

Actually, she says, she has little choice. She got out the tape measure in the wee hours of the morning in response to the insistence of the Spring Week committee that statistics accompany her photo. Incidentally, in this case statistics read 34-22-33. Nancy has proved you don't have to be tall to win a beauty contest. She is a mere 5'3" and weighs 110 pounds.

Nancy will be one of six entries sent by the College. The other five will be Barbara Klopp, last year's Miss Penn State, and this year's runnersup for the title—Nancy Scofield, Patricia Hathaway, Joan Terhune, and Louise Robertson.

'Terribly Surprised'

Nancy refused to comment upon her chances. She said she had never been in a beauty contest until she entered the Miss Penn State contest. She is an eighth semester senior in home economics and Pittsburgh is her home town.

When asked how she felt when she was named Miss Penn State, she said she was "terribly surprised" and "unable to say a single word," mostly because she "didn't get a chance."

Likes Many Activities

Her desk is piled high with gifts, with her winner's cup filled with withered red roses. She also receives a month's pass to the movies. "For a change, I won't be a drain on my date," she laughed.

Nancy's favorite activities include swimming, golfing, and horseback riding. She first rode at the age of nine and has been thrown only once, when she misjudged a jump.

She is a Belle in the 1952 Lavie and is an active member of the Home Economics Club and Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. She is not independent romantically, either. She is pinned to James Wharton of Sigma Nu fraternity.
