

Lions Host Owls Today

by JAKE HIGHTON

Undertaking its first 10 game schedule in 21 years, Penn State's football team will kickoff its 66th intercollegiate grid campaign since 1887 against the Temple Owls at 2 p.m. today on Beaver Field.

Coach Rip Engle will be starting the first leg of his third season at Penn State with an eye to improving his 5-4 record of last year.

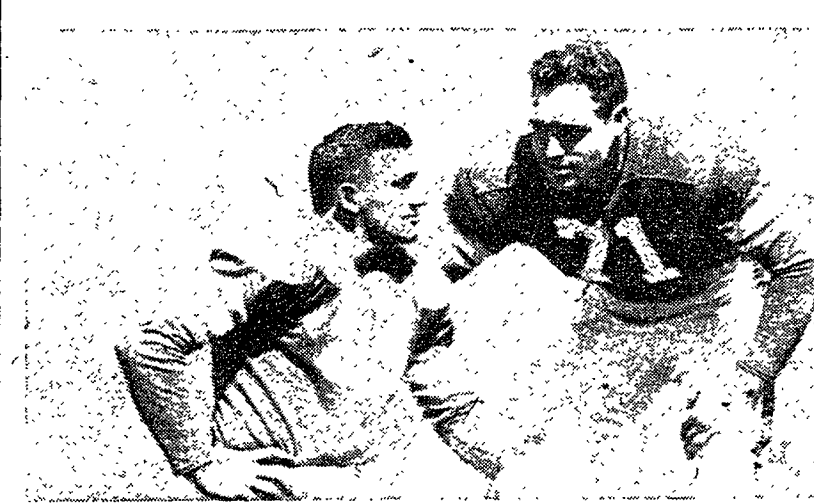

State, never having been beaten by Temple on Beaver Field, holds a decisive 8 and 3 edge in the series. This largely accounts for the 13 point favorites role in which State has been cast.

Penn State supremacy in the series dates back to 1941 when the Andy Tomasic led Owls scored their last victory, 14-0 in Temple Stadium. Since then, the Templars not only have failed to win but went down without a score five times.

Engle, however, aware that past performances mean nothing with the opening of a new season, figures the game to be "awfully tough" for the important reason that the Owls boast an array of "great backs." As a matter of fact, Temple has an outstanding corps of leather-luggers which few teams in the East would blush to own.

As for his own team, Engle was greatly

Mapping Strategy for Lions

—Photo by Sussman
CO-CAPTAINS JOE GRATSON (left) and Stew Scheetz get together to draw up battle plans for today's game with Temple University's Owls. Gratson is slated to see both offensive and defensive duty while Scheetz will hold down a defensive tackle slot.

pleased with the spirit, the "lot of go" and the swiftness in getting off the marks which has been so characteristic of the 1952 team all during fall practice.

State's sophomore studded football team, 24 of the 52 man squad are second year men, is neither too big nor too small this year. The offensive line will average about 202 pounds for today's game. The defensive forward wall will weigh about the same thanks to two 230 pound giants, Co-Captain Stew Scheetz and Rosey Grier.

The backfield offensively will be of the light destroyer type with an average weight of 173 pounds. However, only starting wingback Bill Leonard weighs more than 170.

Injuries have slowed down the Lions in the backfield with shifty lefthalf Buddy Rowell hospitalized, fullback Bob Pollard not quite ready for offense yet and quarterback Tony Rados hobbled with a bad knee. Pollard will definitely play on defense at righthalf back but Rados will probably sit out the game.

Although Temple Coach Al Kawal suffered a loss with the injury this week of tackle Lou Grandizo, he still has a tremendous backfield which predicted clear sky and cool air weather will do no harm. Duke Wuzzardo and Tex Robinson are the Temple merchants the Owls will be relying on but Ed Charters and Jack Ramsey are no one's fools.

(Continued on page six)

Freedom of Press
See Page 4

The Daily Collegian

FOR A BETTER PENN STATE

Beat Temple!

Vol. 53, No. 8

STATE COLLEGE, PA., SATURDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 20, 1952

FIVE CENTS

Cannon to Sound Nittany Lion Roar

The mighty roar of the Nittany Lion may highlight spirit-boosting demonstrations at today's game.

Mario Todaro, College gymnast who competed in Olympic try-outs last spring, has constructed a cannon firing a 10-gauge blank shot. The cannon will be used at the game to symbolize the roar of the College's traditional Nittany Lion. Alan McChesney, head cheerleader, said yesterday.

He said use of the cannon has been approved by Coach Rip Engle and Ernest B. McCoy, new dean of the School of Physical Education and Athletics. McChesney added that all safety precautions have been taken concerning firing of the cannon.

Seats Reserved

McChesney reported that 46 seniors, 37 juniors, and 135 sophomores have registered to date for participation in the newly-developed flashcard system which will be inaugurated at today's game.

He explained that the top 12 rows plus four seats in the EH section of the stands will be reserved until game time for those who have registered for the system. Other seats may be filled in by seniors who will be asked to flash the cards at their seats.

McChesney emphasized that those who have signed up for seats in the flashcard system should get there early. He requested that hatmen not forming part of the guard of honor for the team aid in protecting the reserved seats.

Experimental Proposition

McChesney said the flashcard system will be able to work the words: TEMPLE, PENN STATE, BEAT TEMPLE, and TEAM.

The working of the system for this game will be an experimental proposition, he said, and procedures can be revised later if any difficulty arises.

Hort Show Set For Homecoming

The livestock pavilion of the School of Agriculture will be the scene of the 39th annual Hort Show to be held as a special feature of Homecoming Weekend Oct. 18-19.

James D. Boodley, president of the Horticulture Club, will be manager. Helen Stender will assist him.

"A Parisian Market" will be the theme of this year's displays. Fruits and vegetables from the College orchards and plots will be used in the displays, along with ornamental flowers grown especially for the show by the Horticulture Club members.

3500 Cheer Lions At Rec Hall Rally

C'Mon! Let's Go!

—Photo by Schroeder
HATWOMAN DIANE MILLER, assisted by two other hatwomen, "drag" the frosh women out of Thompson Hall to take part in the "Kickoff" pep rally last night.

(Pictures on Page 2)

Parade Starts 'Kickoff' Night; Dance Follows

About 3500 students jammed the grounds around Recreation Hall last night to cheer the football team on for its game with the Temple Owls today.

The pep rally followed a parade of Blue Band men, cheerleaders, and hatmen, which began downtown and wound its way around campus to Recreation Hall.

Immediately after the rally about 800 crowded into Rec Hall for the Kickoff Dance which climaxed the pre-Temple game festivities.

President Milton S. Eisenhower was scheduled to speak at the rally, but was out of town and could not appear. Richard Neuweiler, seventh semester journalism student, acted as master of ceremonies and introduced Ernest B. McCoy, dean of the School of Physical Education and Athletics.

Co-captains Introduced

McCoy praised the team and said we should start out our football schedule by "knocking the ears off that team from Philadelphia."

Neuweiler also introduced co-captains Stewart Scheetz and Joseph Gratson. Gratson told the crowd the boys were really serious this year and expected to "go for broke." He said that undoubtedly there will be mistakes, but the best thing needed to help

(Continued on page eight)

Special Rules to Govern Game Traffic Today

Special traffic regulations will be used in State College today for the opening of Penn State's football season.

After the game, no eastbound traffic will be permitted on College avenue from Pugh street to Atherton street and only eastbound traffic will be allowed on Beaver avenue from Atherton to Pugh. No parking will be allowed on North Atherton street from College avenue to the borough line.

MacRae Dismissal Will Be Discussed

The dismissal of Wendell S. MacRae by the College will be discussed at a meeting of College faculty and staff and other interested persons at 7:30 p.m. Monday in 110 Electrical Engineering, W. L. Werner, chairman of the group, has announced.

Werner said that his committee has prepared a 3000 word analysis and commentary on President Milton S. Eisenhower's statement on loyalty procedures. The analysis was delivered to the President's office Tuesday, he said, and will be the subject of discussion at the meeting.

Included in the committee's statement are the following points:

1. While the President's statement says that local department heads opposed the idea of certifying the loyalty of their employees, the staff did not know that this procedure was being followed at Penn, Pitt, and Temple with satisfactory results. As far as is known, even new employees at these schools are not confronted with oaths and questionnaires.
2. The committee objects to the repeated use of the word "tentative" applied to "the only published regulations available to the staff and faculty from May 13 until Aug. 20." The procedures issued on May 13 were labeled "Special Procedures" and the word "tentative" was never used in title, text, or any references before Sept. 9.

3. The committee has found no evidence that department heads and other certifying officers knew or told their employees that these rules were tentative.

4. Both the old and the new rules state that the review board "shall make a thorough investigation." There was no evidence

(Continued on page eight)

TODAY'S WEATHER:

PARTLY CLOUDY
AND COOL

A freshmen rebellion was
(Continued on page two)