

Qualification Tests Slated for Dec. 4

College qualification tests will be held December 4, the Selective Service has announced.

Scores on these tests are used by local draft boards as a basis to defer college students. To date, 413,395 students have taken the test, given by the Educational Testing Service in Princeton, N.J. A student is allowed to take the test only once.

Stuart Informs Republicans Of Fall Duties

H. L. Stuart, Centre County Republican chairman, addressed the Penn State Young Republican Club Tuesday night and informed members of the part they might play in the fall elections.

After describing the voting day process employed by the local Republican group, Stuart invited the College club to participate. It was asked to help in the campaign and on election day by contacting possible voters, encouraging them to cast a ballot, and transporting them to the polling places.

At a business meeting before the talk the group set up a social committee and named Robert Hance chairman. Other members of the committee are Susanne Berleue, Judy McWilliams, and Emily Matras. The committee will plan a mixer for the next meeting, to be held Thursday.

Other committees provided for at the meeting were a research committee, to maintain a file of campaign issues; a publicity committee; a program committee, to stage rallies and provide speakers; and a campaign committee. The group also voted to assess each member $1 dues a year.

Forum Series Ticket Sale Starts Monday

Season tickets for the 1952-53 Community Forum series will go on sale Monday through Oct. 4 at the Student Union Desk in Old Main and at the Commerce Club, 108 W. College avenue.

Tickets, priced at $3 including tax, will also be sold by faculty, student, and town representatives of the organization.

A season ticket entitles the holder to attend all five lectures in the forum series. The series will open Nov. 10 with Marquis Childs, Washington columnist and foreign correspondent.

Schilling Addresses Graduates

At Pennsylvania State College the purpose of the Graduate School is to act as an educational leader and a guardian to preserve the standards of the undergraduates, Dean Harold K. Schilling told several hundred graduate students last night in Schwab Auditorium.

Speaking at the first convocation of the Graduate School, Schilling welcomed new students to the campus and encouraged all graduates to cross the "boundaries of academic reserve" and interest themselves in all fields of the College.

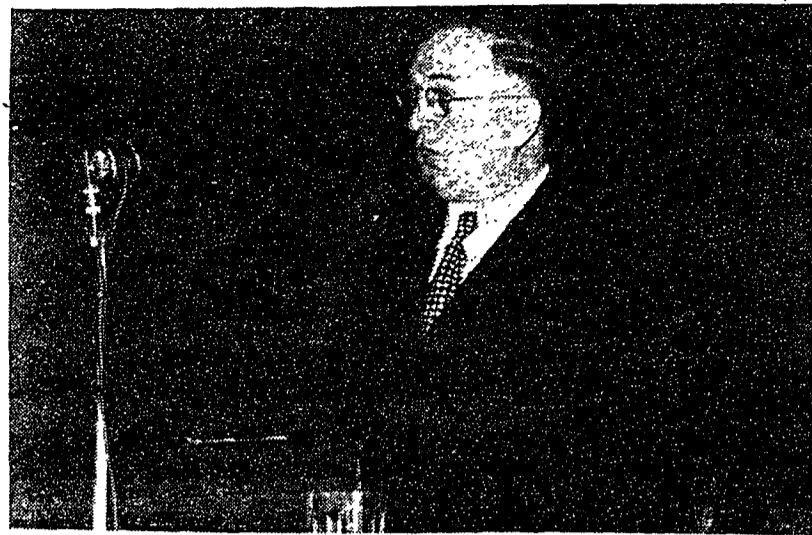

At the general session Woods Thomas, chairman of the steering committee of the Graduate Student Organization explained the functions of the organization and outlined a program of activities for the year. The steering committee was organized last year to coordinate the needs of graduate students. At that time a tentative constitution was drawn up and a temporary committee was appointed to meet with faculty members. Plans were also made for a permanent Graduate School student council.

After the convocation students reconvened according to schools to elect representatives and set the plan in action. Three representatives were chosen from each school. One member was elected for a term of two years with the other members being elected for one year. The student council will meet once a month. From the council an executive board will be chosen to direct the activities of graduate students.

According to Thomas, the Graduate Student Association will sponsor social and academic functions during the year and will serve as an agency to encourage better student-faculty relationships.

College chaplain, Luther H. Harshbarger gave the benediction at the convocation. A speech of welcome was given by Adrian O. Morse, College provost.

HAROLD K. Schilling, dean of the Graduate School, spoke in Schwab Auditorium last night on "What is the Graduate School?" He told a large group of students that the school is an educational leader and a guardian of undergraduate standards.

It's a Bargain! Men's Trousers For Sixty Cents

"For sale: One pair of brown striped pants. Price, 60 cents." Any male with a 36 inch waist who wears his trousers 32 inches long can have these for the price of the cleaning bill.

They are just one of many articles left unclaimed yearly at the Student Dry Cleaning Agency. Barbara Benning, manager of the agency, recalls a "beautiful labeled suit," an original dress, and men's suits which have been unclaimed for in other semesters.

The lowest cleaning bill she can remember is one for five cents, while the highest was $19. (The student hadn't gotten around to taking his clothes to the laundry or cleaners for three months.)

Miss Benning stresses that the agency is operated by students for the benefit of students only. No faculty member may use it. Students are saved making the trip downtown while paying only town prices.

Debate Meet For Women Set Tonight

A preliminary meeting for upperclass women wishing to join the women's debate squad will be held at 7 tonight in 2 Sparks.

Upperclass women will try out for the team Oct. 2. All upperclass women who were not on the squad spring semester of last year must try out by presenting a five-minute speech on either side of the national intercollegiate debate topic, Resolved: That the Congress of the U.S. should enact a compulsory fair employment practices' law.

Professor Clayton H. Schug, women's debate coach, will explain the principles of debate at tonight's meeting. An explanation will also be made concerning the writing of the tryout speeches and handling of the debate topic.

Freshman women who signed up for debate at a preliminary meeting last night will meet at 7 p.m. Oct. 1 in 2 Sparks.

Dairy Students Enter Contest

Four dairy husbandry students will compete with 27 other college and university teams in International Contests at Navy Pier, Chicago, today, it was announced by Dr. D. V. Josephson, head of the dairy department.

The Penn State team, coached by Dr. F. J. Doan, professor of dairy manufacture, and Dr. George H. Wattrous, assistant professor of dairy husbandry, has won the overall team trophy once in the long series of intercollegiate contests. Research fellowships for graduate study are awarded the three highest scoring teams in addition to cash prizes and gold medals.

Representing the College are Robert Jensen, Philadelphia; Leslie M. Shallenberger, Uniontown; and David A. Evans, Carbondale. Charles E. Shearer, Spring Grove;
