

Nine Projects Planned For Pennsylvania Week

Nine projects, including films, flashcard designs, newspaper articles, posters, and displays, for the College's celebration of Pennsylvania Week, Oct. 13-19, were approved Wednesday at a meeting of the joint student, faculty and staff committee.

Two other projects are in doubt, but possible decisions will be made soon, according to Fred M. Coombs, chairman.

The distribution and showing of the films "This is Penn State" and "Research at Penn State"

Articles especially written for Pennsylvania Week by faculty members will be released through the Office of Public Information, Woodrow W. Bierly, news assistant, reported. A series of articles will be published in the Daily Collegian on Pennsylvania Week, and exhibits to be displayed that week.

Pennsylvania Week posters will be delivered to the various schools and campus dormitories. Alpha Phi Omega, Warrell said, will deliver the posters to the men's dormitories.

A display of work by Pennsylvania artists and architects has been planned under the direction of Dr. Harold C. Dickson, professor of fine arts, and Elsa Lisle, circulation librarian, in the Pattee Library, according to Dr. Philip S. Klein, professor of American history. He said the display will begin the opening day of Pennsylvania Week.

Motorcade in Doubt
A. H. Imhoff, assistant in agricultural journalism, will be in will be made to interested groups in sections of the state having centers, Thomas Hammonds, general extension editor, reported. The centers would be used as booking agencies, Hammonds said, and the only cost would be the shipping cost of the films.

Music Theme in Doubt
The committee also will schedule an evening film program on campus when several motion pictures, including the previously mentioned films, will be shown. Other films will also be shown.

Hammonds also reported that he had asked Hummel Fishburn, professor of music education, to help plan a Pennsylvania Week theme at the homecoming football game. However, no definite plans have been made by Fishburn, Hammonds said.

The plan for special Pennsylvania Week designs by the flashcard section will be used if no changes in the section are made before the homecoming game, Lincoln Warrell reported. A lib-

Prexy Lauds Administrative, Student Action

By MIMI UNGAR

In presenting the introductory address at the All-College Cabinet meeting last night in Schwab Auditorium, President Milton S. Eisenhower said that Penn State student government members and administration are partners working toward the same end—the development of new ideas for the improvement of the educational system.

He contended that every student in college should be induced to participate in student government in some way. Many students consider their student government a pressure group to see what it can get out of the administration, the President said. But this is a misconception. He advocated combined efforts on the part of all student, faculty, and administrative members.

Although Penn State's student government is high on the list of effective student governments, the Prexy said, our student government can go much further. Where the power of a student government stops is not known since we have not seen it reach its highest possible point of responsibility, the Prexy added.

The Prexy delivered his talk as an introduction to the second official cabinet meeting of the semester. The session was open to the student body in conjunction with student government day activities. Robert Smoot, chairman of student government day, presented opening remarks to the more than 200 persons in attendance.

Following the President's speech and the official opening of the cabinet meeting by John Laubach, All-College president, James Plyler, All-College vice president, requested that each member of cabinet select two persons from his respective group to serve on the Cabinet Project Council. The council is for the purpose of training student leaders.

Under the appointment of committees, cabinet unanimously approved the appointments of William Slepik as All-College Cabinet parliamentarian and Richard Grossman as booth chairman of the Spring Carnival.

AIM Elections Group to Meet

The Association of Independent Men's Town Council elections committee will meet at 7 p.m. Sunday in the Dean of Men's office in Old Main, Franklin Reese, committee chairman, said yesterday.

The purpose of the meeting is to set up the machinery for the election of ward representatives or chairmen to the Town Council. Post cards will be sent to students living off campus, explaining elections procedure.

Students living in town interested in the elections may attend the meeting.

Volunteer Guards To Protect Lion From Foe's Paint

Pledges of several fraternities, independent upperclassmen, and 50 freshman men in Irvin Hall tonight will arm themselves with baseball bats and a varied assortment of weapons to stand guard at the Nittany Lion Shrine near Recreation Hall.

Working in shifts, the men will stand guard from 9 tonight to 8 a.m. tomorrow. The shrine will be guarded to prevent any painting or disfiguring of the statue. Men from Nittany Dorm 29, McKee Hall, Irvin Hall, Sigma Phi Sigma, and Zeta Beta Tau will be on hand to stand watch.

Sigma Delta Tau sorority announced that it would be at the shrine at midnight to serve coffee and doughnuts to the guards.

Philip A. Mark, captain of the Campus Patrol, asked that some of the men be on hand Saturday night after the game to protect the Lion. He said that he was glad to know that so many were willing to care for the "old boy."

The Lion Shrine was erected in 1941 by the Class of '40, and since has been subjected to several paintings. Now the lion is covered with a wax to keep the paint from seeping into the pores of the stone.

Progress Reported In Labor Negotiations

"Satisfactory progress" was made in the labor negotiations held Wednesday between the College and Local No. 67 of the State, County, and Municipal Employees Union, AFL, according to College officials.

Students Have Choice Of Medical Service

Students have a choice of being treated for illness by the College Health Service covered by College fees, or by private physicians, who will render bills to students for their services, according to College officials.

No matter where the student lives he will be treated by the College Health Service. However, treatment will be given only at the dispensary or infirmary. Health Service physicians do not make dormitory or house calls.

Procedures have been set up for the student in case of accident or illness.

Women students should get in touch with their hostesses, who will help them follow this procedure.

The student must decide whether he will go to the dispensary or infirmary, or will call a private physician.

If the student chooses the College Health Service, he should go to the dispensary between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. or to the infirmary at other hours. If the student feels that he cannot be taken to the infirmary, the infirmary should be called for advice.

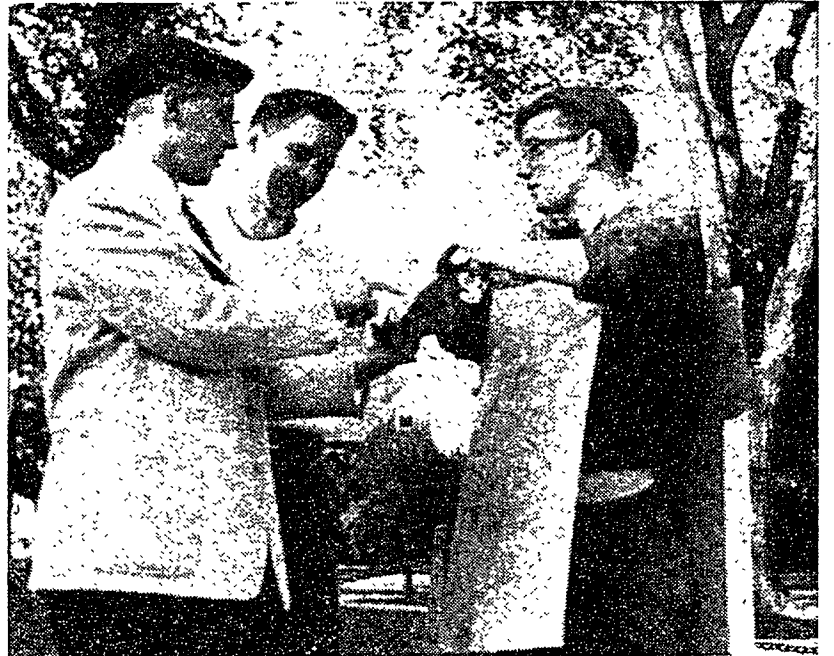

Officials added that an ill or injured person can be moved in most cases. If there is doubt, someone should call for advice. The situation should be described calmly and without any attempt to diagnose the trouble.

If the student wishes to have a private physician come to see him, he should call one. In the event that the physician advises the student by telephone, or after a visit, to go to the infirmary, the student should take his advice.

Officials warned that unless the student or a fraternity has made previous arrangements, his call will be considered the same as that from any other person. The doctor does not have to accept

Flashcard Holders To Get Instructions

Instructions will be given students who have signed for participation in the flashcard system a half hour before game time tomorrow, Alan McChesney, head cheerleader, said yesterday.

He requested that these students report to their seats as soon after 12:30 p.m. tomorrow as possible. Members of men's hat societies have been asked to protect the 268 seats in the EH section of the stands reserved for flashcard participants. McChesney said cards will be on the seats. During demonstrations, cards are to be raised above the students' heads upon signal, he added. Last week's inauguration of the system showed that it can work, according to reports voiced after the attempt. Tomorrow's pre-game instructions should insure a more coordinated demonstration, McChesney said.

In a further attempt to clear up questions about card procedure, letters have been sent to the 268 students who signed up for the system.

Major criticisms of the system as operated last week concerned the obvious lack of practice in coordinating the demonstrations, and the throwing of the cards at the time of the first touchdown. McChesney has repeatedly emphasized that the development of the system has involved a number of campus organizations and individual students, and he has asked that participating students cooperate with the aims of the flashcard system.

An advertisement in the Daily Collegian erroneously stated that the Wednesday hours would extend from 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m.
