

Two Resolutions OK'd By All-College Cabinet

Two major resolutions on student-faculty relations were approved by All-College Cabinet at its meeting Thursday night. The resolutions were presented by Marian Whitely, chairman of the encampment subcommittee on student-faculty relations.

The resolutions resulted from discussions presented at the recent Student Encampment held at Mt. Alto.

ICG to Pick President On Monday

The Penn State Chapter of the Intercollegiate Conference on Government will meet 7 p.m. Monday in 107 Willard to elect a new chapter president, James Hand, ICG regional director, has announced.

Benjamin Sinclair, who attended the Republican National Convention in Chicago and the Young Republicans Convention in Harrisburg, will speak on his experiences at the conventions.

This will mark the 15th year of "practice politics" by this organization. By actually carrying through model conventions and legislatures, ICG offers amateur politicians the chance to learn processes of government.

The group is open to all politically minded students, regardless of curriculum. Operating on the campus since 1937, ICG also enables students to become familiar with parliamentary procedure through political debates.

Political convictions are discussed in the group in preparation for an annual state-wide convention of 65 member schools and institutions. These schools send ICG representatives from five different regions in the state. The College belongs to the central region.

The director of the central region, Hand, has the job of coordinating and stimulating activity within his region and presiding over the regional convention prior to the annual state convention.

APO to Hold Open Mixer Monday Night

Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, will hold an open mixer 7 p.m. Monday in 304 Old Main for all men interested in joining the group.

Richard Schuler, president, said that only those men with experience in the Boy Scouts, a 1.0 All-College average, and a desire to serve the College are eligible to become members.

Freshman men may attend the meeting to become acquainted with the organization, Schuler said.

Explanations of the group and its projects which include the "Ugly Man" contest and the "Wear Out the Walks" campaign will be combined with a movie and informal discussions.

The movie tells of a canoe trip taken by four students in the Canadian bush.

Officers of the fraternity include Schuler, president; William Burrows, vice president; Clyde Herrick, treasurer; Lowell Krowitz, recording secretary; William Shomberg, corresponding secretary; Allan Thompson, alumni secretary; Richard Updegraff, historian; Arthur Jordan, sergeant-at-arms; and H. Norton Cope, chairman of the advisory committee.

Voters May Return Home for Election

Students over 21 years of age will be excused from classes on Nov. 4, Election Day, to return to their homes to vote.

Voting excuse forms are available at the Student Union desk in Old Main.

The excuse form must be signed by a local election official when the student casts his vote in his home precinct. The student should then present the excuse form to the instructor of each class from which he wishes to be excused.

The first resolution, asked that the counseling of students be recognized as an integral and important part of the duties of instructors. Suggestions as to how this could be done included keeping the number of advisees per adviser as low as possible, having advisers organize a systematic schedule for advisory meetings, and giving particular attention to freshmen and other new students.

The second resolution presented by Miss Whitely asked that faculty and students alike, in an attitude of mutual benefit, be encouraged to sponsor a program of informal social and personal relationships.

Project Work
Embodied in this resolution were suggestions that instructors make a special effort to get to know students, that every advantage be taken for faculty-student project work, that new social facilities be created, and that the faculty make full use of present facilities.

In addition, the second resolution suggested that faculty members be encouraged to invite students to their homes, and that faculty be encouraged to read the Daily Collegian in order to follow student activities.

Another encampment idea was brought before cabinet by James Plyler, All-College vice president, who asked each member of cabinet to select two students from its group to take part in the leadership training program planned by the cabinet project council. The project council was set up as a suggestion developing from the encampment talks.

Playing of Alma Mater
Cabinet approved a proposal by David Pellnitz, chairman of the Board of Publications that the playing of the Alma Mater at the end of football games be continued until at least after the William and Mary game.

The report of the Freshman Customs Board, made by Mary Pettigout co-chairman, called customs so far "successful." She also called the freshman cheering at the Temple game "outstanding" and urged upperclassmen to continue to enforce customs.

Samuel Nowell, chairman of Campus Chest, announced to cabinet that this year's campaign for funds, with a goal of $12,000, would begin about Nov. 1. He also reported a profit of $686.85 from the Chest-sponsored Kick-off Dance last week.

Thespians To Sponsor New Queen

The first woman to reign as Homecoming Queen at the College since 1940 will be selected this fall by means of a contest sponsored by the Penn State Thespians.

To be chosen on the basis of "the girl you would most like to come home to," the Homecoming Queen will be presented at three performances of the Thespian show "Don't Stop Now." She will attend the alumni luncheon and will be feted throughout the entire Homecoming weekend.

The Homecoming Queen contest will begin Monday, according to Jerome Gibson, co-chairman of the contest. Photographs of the entrants may be left at the Student Union desk in Old Main. Name, address, and vital statistics should accompany the picture of each entry, Gibson said, adding that photos are to be no smaller than five by seven. Any campus organization or individual may sponsor one or more entrants.

Entries may be submitted for a period of one and one-half weeks. The final deadline has been set at 5:10 p.m. Oct. 8.

A board of judges will select five finalists to be announced Oct. 10. From these five, the queen will be chosen. The procedure of the queen's selection has not been disclosed.

The identity of the queen will first be revealed when she is presented at the Thursday night performance of "Don't Stop Now," at Schwab Auditorium.

Because this is the first queen contest of the year at the College, sufficient time has been allowed for women who do not have photographs of the required size to have them taken, Gibson said.

Club to Take Hike

The Hiking Club will sponsor its traditional walk to Mt. Nittany tomorrow. The group will meet in back of Old Main at 1:30 p.m., and will be led by experienced hikers. Any student may attend.

Fall Semester Payments Due Thursday, Friday

Payment of student fees for the fall semester will take place from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday and Friday in the basement of Willard Hall.

David C. Hogan Jr., bursar, has announced that the amount of fees due per student will be posted Thursday by matriculation number in Willard Hall basement. He requests that students check the board for the amount and then write their checks before getting into one of the seven lines arranged on an alphabetical plan. By doing this, students will save time for themselves and the administration, Hogan said.

For those students who have no idea as to the amount of their fees and have not as yet informed their parents, the Bursar's office has prepared a summary of estimated fees. These forms have been sent to dormitories, and if students have not seen them, Hogan requests that they stop in the Bursar's office where there are still many copies available. These forms will help each student in determining the approximate amount of his fees.

Unlike registration, there is no specific hour for students to pay fees. They may pay their fees during a free hour between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. on either of the two days.

The College does not bill parents because students are given ample time in which to inform their parents, and also because of the large student enrollment. Checks are to be made payable to The Pennsylvania State College Hogan said.

Prompt payment of fees will aid students and administration as well, Hogan said. If students have any questions pertaining to the amount of fees they are to pay, they may stop at 6 Willard Hall and receive assistance in working out their problems, Hogan added.

Psych Test Results Available for Women

Psychology test results are being interpreted for women students who took the tests during Orientation Week, according to Dr. Robert Bernreuter.

Appointments for the interpretations may be made at the Psychology Clinic annex, basement of Woman's Building.

Results of the men's psychology tests are being computed and will be ready for interpretation in two or three weeks.

Hall Replaces Reede In MacRae Probe

Francis T. Hall Jr., professor of electrical engineering, was elected at yesterday's meeting of the Faculty Advisory Council as the seventh man of a special committee that will investigate College loyalty procedures and the results of these procedures, which includes the dismissal of Wendell S. MacRae.

The special committee will meet with President Milton S. Eisenhower this morning.

Arthur H. Reede, chairman of the council, resigned as the seventh member of the committee because he felt that serving on the investigating committee and also acting as chairman of the advisory council, to which the President may refer questions of the investigating committee, was an impossible situation.

Hall, who has accepted the appointment, is not a member of the advisory council.

The council met to discuss procedures to be used by the committee, but instead passed a resolution leaving "questions of procedures up to the committee with the full confidence that the committee would work out procedures that would be fair to all concerned."

Eisenhower suggested to the council that a six member committee be set up to investigate College loyalty procedures. The council approved this suggestion at a special meeting Monday and added a seventh man to prevent a tie vote.

According to Eisenhower's proposal, members of the Tenure Board and the Faculty Loyalty Review Board will serve on the committee.

Members of the Tenure Board are A. Witt Hutchison, professor of chemistry; Corliss R. Kinny, professor of fuel technology; members of the Loyalty Review Board are Sheldon C. Tanner, professor of business law; Kinsley R. Smith, professor of psychology; and Paul H. Margolf, professor of poultry husbandry.

Shea to Address Journalism Forum

Frank Shea, South American and European correspondent of Time magazine, will speak to the weekly journalism forum at 11 a.m. Monday in 121 Sparks.

Shea will discuss his experiences in Buenos Aires during the shutdown of the newspaper La Prensa. He was taken into custody by the police and imprisoned. The lecture is open to the public.

Glee Club Trials Set

Six first tenors are needed for the Penn State Glee Club, according to Frank Gullo, director. Tryouts will be held at 7 p.m. Monday in 200 Carnegie. The full club will have approximately 80 members.

College Mares Win 5 Ribbons

Three Penn State Percheron mares received five championship ribbons at the Eastern States Livestock Exposition held recently.

"Lynda Hope" placed first in her class and was also judged Grand Champion mare of the Exposition. "Penn State Nievre," a yearling making her debut this year, placed first in her class and was named both junior champion, and reserve Grand Champion. The judges named "Koncardona" as reserve senior champion.

Elmer Taft, College horse superintendent, reported these same animals won numerous new honors at state fairs of Indiana, Ohio, and Illinois this summer.

Community Concert To Open Ticket Drive

In opening its annual ticket drive this season, the Community Concert Association will contact last year's members for renewals of membership at the beginning of next week.

The list of solicitors will be announced. A campaign for new members is scheduled to begin Oct. 6 and continue through Oct. 11.
