

Purdue's Big Guns. Today

Lions-Purdue Tilt—

The other important change in the Nittany lineup today is end Don Malinak, a defensive standout last week, who has moved up to the first team offensive position ahead of Joe Yukica. Another possible change in the Lion lineup could be Keith Vesling at the wingback post.

On defense the Lions will also have a few changes. Guard Sam Green will start at one of the backup spots along with Joe Gratson and Don Balthaser. While at the defensive half position opposite Don Bailey. Don Eyer or Leonard will get first call.

State's only two players listed among the injuries, Buddy Rowell and Tony Frey, leave the Lions thin at left half. Rowell has been having one ankle injured after another and is not likely to play. However, Coach Rip Engle expressed the hope that Frey would be available today.

From the Purdue side of the field—and undoubtedly Penn State's—Quarterback Dale Samuels will hold the cynosure of approximately 20,000 plus fans. Samuels has a tremendous touchdown record with 17 paydirt heaves during the last two years.

End Bernie Flowers is the guy Samuels will probably look for most often. An Erie, Pa., grinder, Flowers has caught 39 passes for 412 yards during his last two seasons.

A brilliant cast surrounds Samuels in the backfield. It is the same Purdue backfield which was tops in average yards-per-try last year in the Big Ten.

Pigskin Coin Flips . . .

Out on a Limb

Penn State's pigskin coaches Head Coach Rip Engle, Tor Torretti, Jim O'Hara, Al Michaels, and Earl Bruce, who took a toasting on the grid predictions last week, have declared they'll come back fighting this week.

Finishing in a second-place tie with Sports Editor Jake Highton with a .733 percentage, the coaches are determined to take over the top spot, currently held by Bob Schoellkopf, Daily Collegian sportswriter, who finished first in last week's forecasts with an .867 percentage. Ted Soens, assistant sports editor of the Daily Collegian, finished fourth with a .667 percentage.

In the 15 contests under consideration this week, there are differences of opinion in seven games.

In the all-important Penn-Notre Dame tilt, Highton is the lone chooser of the Red and Blue. Schoellkopf is alone in his choice of USLA over TCU.

Quarterback Dale Samuels . . .

Ace Pass Thrower

Pint sized Dale Samuels, Purdue's cool headed quarterback, is a boy that opposing teams must keep a six point lead on.

The 5-9, 165 pound strategist is rated as one of the five best passing backs in college football. This he proved when he played the initial role in Purdue's upset victory over Notre Dame in 1950, ending its 39 game winning streak.

His pin-point passing has netted him a mark of one TD for every nine passes. Opposing quarterbacks are wary of his accuracy as his record of 155 completions in 331 attempts speaks for itself.

In addition to his aerial abilities, Samuels is a threat on the ground and a deadly place kicker. Last year Samuels ripped off 146 yards rushing. Added to his 2023 yards in the air, you get a total of 2169 yards, or almost 22 times the length of a football field. This yardage added up to exactly 154 Boilermaker points, or an average of 7.1 points per 100 net yards. In short, every time Samuels works the ball for 100 yards, Purdue has a touchdown and an extra point.

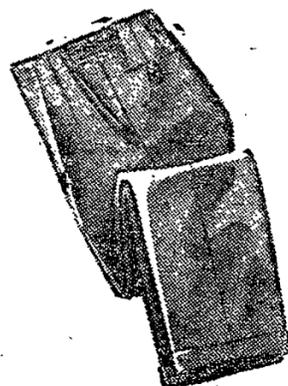

In his sophomore and junior years he chalked up 34 conversions in 44 attempts. During the same period, he scored 52 points, 18 of these on touchdowns.

Samuel's passing was a terrific blow to both Iowa in 1950 and to Northwestern in 1951. Northwestern felt the fury of his aerial accuracy when he completed 7 of 11 attempts. He threw for three six-pointers against Iowa in 1951, and at the expense of the Irish of Notre Dame added 310 yards to his impressive record.

Stu Holcomb, Purdue head coach, bases his offense on the basketball principle of "get enough shots at the basket and you'll get enough baskets." With Samuels doing the "shooting" the system is more than effective.
