Turkeys Stolen From College

Two College employees and a student were fined $50 each Saturday by Justice of the Peace Guy Mills and assessed an additional $30.90 cost for stealing two of the College's experimental turkeys.

The two employees and the student were apprehended Friday, Captain Mark of the Campus Patrol said yesterday. Two more turkeys were taken Saturday for the purpose of playing a joke, Mark said. "If anyone is caught stealing turkeys," Mark warned, "the going will be rough—even if it is just for a joke."

The Daily Collegian was unable to obtain names of the three involved.

There are more than 300 unnamed lakes and ponds in New Hampshire.

Tribunal Hears Eight Parking Violation Cases

Tribunal, men's judiciary committee, heard eight cases last night involving parking violations reported by the Campus Patrol. Four $1 fines and four $1 suspended fines were issued.

James Schulte, Tribunal chairman, warned first offenders that any second offense would be handled more severely by the committee.

Of the cases heard all offenders had parking permits but were parked in areas other than those assigned to them. Schulte emphasized the importance of parking in the areas designated by the parking permits. Any violation of this regulation will be reported and offenders will be summoned before Tribunal for hearing.

One student who was fined reported that he had a permit sticker, but it wasn't displayed. According to traffic regulations the parking permit shall permanently be attached to the windshield at the right of the center of the windshield near the top. The parking number shall be mounted on the windshield beside the parking permit on the side closer to the driver. A sticker attached at any other place is illegal in Pennsylvania.

Three students receiving suspended sentences were charged with parking in spaces reserved for visitors. Students are not permitted to park in these areas at any time.

Schulte explained that suspended fines are not collected unless the violator has a second offense. At that time the suspended fine must be paid in addition to the plenary action taken for the second offense.

Campus traffic regulations are contained in the Student Handbook and were distributed with each parking permit. Additional copies are available in the Campus Patrol office, 320 Old Main.

Joseph Haines, vice president of the Association of Independent Men, presided at the meeting. The council voted to hold a meeting next Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. for nomination and election of officers.
