

Frosh Basketball Returns After One-Year Lapse

With the NCAA freshman ruling in effect once again, freshman basketball will return to Penn State this season. The ban, which was lifted last year in fear of a man shortage due to the Korean War, prohibits freshmen from participating in varsity sports.

But with the ruling once again in operation, Lion fans will have two teams representing them on the Rec Hall hardwoods this year.

Plans are already in the making, and freshman coach John Egli has announced that tentative plans are being made for eight games to be scheduled for the frosh quintet. Present plans call for the games to be played as preliminaries to the varsity tilts.

At the present time there are eight dates available when no wrestling or boxing matches are scheduled to precede the basketball games.

The freshmen will probably meet freshman teams from four other schools, filling half of the proposed bill, and plans are being made for Egli's squad to play the intramural fraternity and independent champions. Two games are planned between the frosh and the varsity subs. These four games will have to be approved by Harold "Ike" Gilbert, graduate manager of athletics, and Gene Bischoff, head of the Intramural Department.

The NCAA rules that practice may not start before Nov. 1, and Egli hopes to begin his practice sessions as soon after that date as possible. He has asked all candidates to see him as soon as possible and secure examination cards. Physicals will be given by the team physician, Dr. A. H. Griess in Old Main.

Egli said that he was pleased with the enthusiasm that the freshman class has shown this year, and hopes to find the same enthusiasm in his basketball candidates. He is hoping for a large turnout for practices.

The lifting of the freshman ban was a big help to Elmer Gross, varsity mentor, last year. When varsity practice began last fall, Gross found himself blessed with a group of phenomenal freshmen, who proved to be the mainstays of his squad.

Led by high-scoring Jesse Arnette, the group of frosh hoopers combined to give Gross some potent starting material and a strong bench. Along with Arnette, Gross had speedy guard, Ron Weidenhammer; forward, Ed Haag; centers Jim Blocker and Jim Hill; guards Bob Rohland, and Frank DiSalle; and forward Jack Sherry.

Alpha Tau Omega, the defending IM fraternity touch football champions, withstood a second half rally to turn back Beta Sigma Rho, 13-6, last night.

In other games, the Jordanites defeated Joe's Boys 1-0 in overtime, Beaver House whipped the Wildcats, 13-0, and Phi Kappa Tau took a 1-0 overtime win over Theta Xi.

ATO flashed their form of 1951 in the first half and chalked up two quick scores. Tom Barrett put the Betas in a hole by running 40 yards with a short pass to the losers 24 yard line. This drive stalled on the 16, but after the Betas kicked out, Paul Stefanik threw a 33 yard strike to Tony Dorrell in the end zone. Jim Miller added the extra point.

The champs didn't give the losers any time to recover, as Stefanik intercepted a pass on the following kickoff and raced 33 yards to score.

Beta Sigma Rho fought back in the second half. Bernie Jacobson intercepted a Bill Appleton pass on the ATO 33 and passed to Dick Gross for the score. But the Stefanik-Dorrell combination kept the champs in Beta territory after that, as they ran out the clock.

The Jordanites made their IM debut a successful one by scoring their hard-earned win. The winners had to pull themselves out of a deep hole in the overtime period as a pass, Al Williams to Jack Dunn, moved Joe's Boys to the winners 31. But Roger Babcock, a standout passer during the game, passed to Bob Evanco, who ran to the loser's 37 yard line, and Joe's Boys were unable to penetrate back across midfield.

Beaver House notched its win with a second half rush, led by Jack Goshorn and Ed Haag. Late in the game, after Beaver recovered a Wildcat fumble on the loser's 18, Goshorn threw to Haag for the touchdown. Goshorn passed to Ed Gesa for the extra point.

In much the same pattern as in the ATO win, Goshorn grabbed a desperation Wildcat pass on the ensuing kickoff and ran 28 yards unmolested for the last score. The only other threat of the game occurred early in the second half, when the winners drove to the Wildcat 37, with Goshorn passes to Tony Petroy eating up most of the yardage. But a holding penalty halted the drive.

Phi Kappa Tau's win was marked by fine line play by the winners who repeatedly trapped Theta passers for losses.
