Tribunal Fines 10 for Parking Violations

Tribunal fined ten students last night for violations of campus parking restrictions and collected a total of $7.

Three $1 fines were suspended, and four additional cases were dismissed after a warning by Glenn Wiggins, acting chairman.

Wiggins warned commuting students that they are responsible for obeying all campus traffic regulations including parking only in designated areas during class hours.

One case was dismissed because because an incorrect offense was reported by the Campus Patrol. The student pleaded innocent to illegal parking in the area next to the Temporary Classroom Buildings, but admitted parking his car by the tennis courts along Curtin road. This space is not included in any campus parking area outlined by the physical plant.

Wiggins reminded students that according to present regulations these spaces are not open to student parking, and cars found there during class hours will be reported.

A member of the College dairy judging team was charged with driving and parking on campus without a permit. He protested that he applied for a permit, but it was denied him, and it was

Draft Test Applications Available

Applications for the Dec. 4 and April 23 Selective Service college qualification tests will again be available from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday in the second floor lounge of Old Main, Mrs. Sara E. Case, representative of the Dean of Men's office, announced yesterday.

Only 230 students picked up applications Monday and yesterday. This small number resulted in the scheduling of another day during which applications can be picked up, Mrs. Case said.

If students do not obtain their applications at the College, they must visit a local draft board if they want to take the test.

Selective Service officials have suggested that all eligible students take the test, since most local boards will not grant a student deferment to persons who have not passed the test.

Applications for the Dec. 4 test must be postmarked on or before midnight Nov. 1, and those for the April 23 test on or before midnight March 9.

Both the Dec. 4 and the April 23 tests will be given at the College.

Papers Print Profs' Articles On State Week

Special articles written by seven faculty members on the general subject of Pennsylvania Week are being printed by newspapers throughout the state.

Four articles, distributed through the Office of Public Information, are explanatory features, and three are in the form of news stories.

William R. Gordon, professor of rural sociology extension; Dr. George L. Leffler, assistant director, bureau of business research; John J. Schantz Jr., instructor of mineral economics; and Milton S. Osborne, head of the Department of Architecture, wrote the explanatory articles. They will receive a special credit line for their stories.

News articles by Dr. Edward W. Proctor, assistant professor of economics; David R. Mitchell, head of the Department of Mineral Engineering; and Luther T. Bissey, assistant professor of petroleum and natural gas engineering; have also been distributed.

The distribution of these stories is one of the projects which the Pennsylvania Week committee has chosen to aid in the current celebration of Pennsylvania Week. A series of articles similar to these were distributed during Pennsylvania Week, 1950.
