

Washington Symphony To Open Concert Series

The National Symphony Orchestra of Washington, D.C., will open the 1952-53 Community Concert series Nov. 11, Dr. F. R. Matson, president of the association, has announced.

Other performances will include Constance Keene, pianist, Dec. 4; the Robert Shaw Chorale, March 6; and William Warfield, baritone, April 22.

The sale of all available memberships has made the program possible, Matson said. Memberships were sold by last Friday afternoon, one day before the membership campaign was scheduled to end.

The National Symphony, which last appeared here in 1948 with Georges Enesco as guest conductor, will be conducted by Howard Mitchell. He succeeds the late Hans Kindler, who founded the orchestra in 1931. Mitchell was formerly first cellist with the orchestra.

Miss Keene recently played a concert at Carnegie Hall with the New York Philharmonic under Dimitri Mitropoulos. She has also appeared with the Boston Symphony and other orchestras.

The Shaw Chorale, previously booked and announced as part of the series, is composed of 32 voices and 19 instrumentalists. It presents a program ranging from Bach to songs of the American musical theater.

Warfield, who gained public attention with his performance of "Ol' Man River" in the movie "Show Boat," also sings in the motion picture "Huckleberry Finn." He has appeared with symphonies in San Francisco, Chicago, and St. Louis.

His Town Hall concerts of serious music have received outstanding reviews. At the present time, Warfield is touring Europe with the "Porgy and Bess" troupe.

Hort Show Has Display On Canning

Pennsylvania's $200,000,000 annual canned foods output will be featured in the School of Agriculture's Horticulture Show tomorrow at the Stock Pavilion, James Boodley, manager, announced yesterday.

A special display, prepared under the direction of James Lesley and Barbara Johnson, will show the principal phases involved as Pennsylvania crops move from fields and orchards to consumer goods. Steps taken in processing fruits and vegetables will be featured.

This portion of the Hort Show, in observance of Pennsylvania Week, emphasizes the oleiculture and plant breeding units of the Horticulture department.

Other displays to be featured in keeping with the main theme, "A Parisian Market," will be under the sponsorship of the Floriculture, Landscaping, and Pomology departments. Fruits, vegetables, and flowers will be displayed in divisions of the pavilion.

Prof Supports Point 4 Plan In 'Post' Article

Science and agricultural know-how can lick the world's food problems, according to Dr. William C. Paddock, assistant professor of plant pathology, in an article appearing in the October 18 issue of The Saturday Evening Post.

Paddock's 5000-word defense of the Point Four plan, "Can We Make the Earth Feed Us All?," says modern agricultural methods spread in underdeveloped parts of the world can ease global food problems and help defeat communism.

The article states that modern medicine has saved millions of lives, which will result in an increase in population, but also creates the problem of feeding these people.

In his article, Paddock cites Mexico and Guatemala, where new agricultural methods since 1943 have resulted in increased food production.

A graduate of Iowa State College and Cornell University, Paddock has done research in plant pathology at the College since he joined the staff in 1950.

Wolfe to Appear In County Court

William R. Wolfe, former College student arrested Monday and charged with showing obscene movies in a fraternity house, will appear in Centre County Court for a hearing 10 a.m. Monday.

After his arrest by State College police, Wolfe appeared before Justice of the Peace Guy G. Mills and was released on $300 bail. Wolfe was arrested as a result of a cooperative action of Delta Tau Delta fraternity and Interfraternity Council with the State College police.

27 Groups Enter Float Competition

Twenty-seven groups have entered the motorcade to be held tomorrow before the Homecoming football game, George Donovan, Student Union director, announced yesterday.

Nine organizations entered the motorcade yesterday on the final day of registration. Two sororities joined fraternities that had previously entered the motorcade.

A special float carrying the Homecoming Queen and her court will be in the parade around the Beaver Field track.

Motorcade floats must be at the Hort Woods parking lot by 11 a.m. tomorrow, Fred M. Coombs, chairman of the Pennsylvania Week committee, has announced.

The parade will leave Hort Woods at approximately 12:15 p.m., circle Beaver Field once, and return to the parking place by 1:10 p.m. Parking places in Hort Woods have been reserved for motorcade entries.

In case of inclement weather, floats will not be permitted on the Beaver Field track because it might damage it prior to the Penn State-Army cross country meet to be held tomorrow afternoon. The parade then will be held on College avenue and on campus. The motorcade will leave the Hort Woods parking lot for the downtown parade at 11:15 a.m.

Fraternities will be notified by telephone, and announcement over WMAJ will be made if this change is necessary, Coombs said.

A gift certificate will be presented to the winning entry. If a jointly-sponsored float should win a gift certificate will be presented each organization, Coombs said. The theme of the motorcade is "Pennsylvania Defends Freedom," theme of Pennsylvania Week. The Pennsylvania Week committee is sponsoring the motorcade.

ets will be sold at the gates. A cross-country meet will terminate during half-time of the football game. Penn State races against Army in this event.

A cider party for alumni and their friends will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the West Dormitory dining hall lobby and lounge.
