Trustees Name 3 To Dean Positions

Appointments of Ernest B. McCoy to dean and of John D. Lawther to assistant dean of the School of Physical Education and Athletics and of Frank J. Simes to the post of dean of men have been announced by the Board of Trustees.

The position of dean of the School of Physical Education and Athletics is a combination of an intercollegiate athletic director and an academic dean. Penn State is one of the few schools in the country which combines the two positions.

Coming to the College from the University of Michigan where he served as assistant athletic director five years, McCoy assumed his position July 1. He has taught and pioneered in physical education and health curriculums.

Creates New Post

McCoy is a graduate of Michigan and has served there as assistant football coach and basketball coach.

The post of assistant dean in that school, now filled by Lawther, is a newly created position this year. Its purpose is to consolidate and strengthen the administrative functions of the school, according to Dean McCoy. He added that it will lay groundwork for more efficient operation in academic fields.

Lawther served as head basketball coach for 13 years, resigning in 1949 to devote full time to teaching.

Wilson to Head DIR

Lawther was graduated from Westminster College in 1919 and returned there in 1926. During the interval following graduation from Westminster, he taught and coached at high schools in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York. He came to the College in 1936.

Simes, former assistant dean of men, was named dean of men when H. K. Wilson, director of Division of Intermediate Registration, resigned to devote full time to that position.

Simes joined the College staff in 1950 as chief resident adviser. He was named director of resident counseling and instructor in education in 1951 and was promoted to assistant dean of men and assistant professor of education in July.

Simes received his B.A. at the University of Michigan, his M.A. from New York State College for Teachers, and his doctor of education degree at the College.

Nebraska to Test Lion Record Today

By JAKE HIGHTON

As Penn State's football season arrives at the halfway point in a ten-game schedule against Nebraska University today, all which has gone before is nothing but rose-colored.

Four times the Lion gridders have taken to the field, and four times they have come through with no other scar than a highly honorable tie with Purdue.

However, today is the beginning of the "worst which is yet to come." From here on in the Lions must dig into a schedule which is loaded with unbeaten teams. Following the Cornhuskers today, State plays in order: Michigan State, the nation's number one team; Penn, undefeated Eastern powerhouse and possible ruler; and Syracuse, as yet unbeaten except at the hands of a "professional" Bowling Air Force squad.

Lions Show Favorably

Despite the "dynamite" schedule ahead, the Lion gridders have shown so favorably to date that one can not help but be confident that this year's team will continue to play a stirring brand of football. Their opponents may be tough, but the Lions have the goods to deal every team remaining on the schedule a long run—if not an upset.

The 1952 State team is characterized by an esprit de corps and a fighting come-from-behind drive which has constantly amazed fans. Four times State has either trailed or been tied at half or three-quarters. Four times it has surged from behind during the third and fourth quarters to completely outplay its opposition.

Tie Purdue 20-20

Opening against Temple, the Lions had too many first-game flaws and jitters to be anything but unimpressive. However, Penn State rallied for 13 vital points in the fourth quarter to snatch a 20-13 victory.

The following week a powerful, heavily favored Purdue eleven—currently on top of the rugged Big Ten Conference—was fought to a 20-20 deadlock by the Lions, who again tallied the tie in the last period.

Following the swift, high-scoring pace of previous games, a steamrollering William and Mary ran the Lions right out of Beaver Field for a halftime lead of 16-14. But the Lion defenses stiffened (Continued on Page S-8)

Foundation To Solicit For Funds

The Penn State Foundation, organized this summer, consists of two programs to solicit funds for the College, according to plans drawn up by Bernard P. Taylor, director.

The Penn State Alumni Fund was organized for the annual solicitation of alumni. The development program is the means for the solicitation of non-alumni, including individuals, corporations, foundations, and various agencies.

Termed a vehicle for all alumni voluntary giving, the alumni fund is conducted to:

1. Receive gifts annually in cash or pledges payable within the fiscal year of the College.
  2. Stimulate widespread participation.
  3. Encourage gifts of all sizes with emphasis on the percentage of contributions.
  4. Create the habit of giving regularly.
  5. Arouse and maintain a permanent interest in the welfare of the College.
  6. Stimulate non-alumni and corporations to support the College.
- Contributions to the fund which are designated for a particular purpose by the donor must, if accepted, be allocated for the intended purpose. Each donor's name, class, and school will be listed. The Alumni News will be sent to all contributors to the fund during the years of their current contribution.

Nittany Lion May Obtain New Coat

The frivolous Lion that entertains the crowds at home football games may shed his shaggy skin and don a new fur next fall.

A move to establish a fund from which money for a new suit may be taken was initiated this fall by Alex Gregal, who portrays the Lion. Neither All-College Cabinet nor the Athletic Association was able to furnish funds to replace the present suit, which is in poor condition.

Approximately $400 is needed to buy a new suit. It will take about three months to have a new suit made.

A total of $350.76 has been collected to date in the fund drive. Thompson Hall freshmen started off the drive when they collected $122 in the dormitory. Ernest B. McCoy, dean of the School of Physical Education and Athletics, contributed $35.

A "Dress the Lion Day" drive conducted by Androcles hatmen Oct. 9 netted approximately $115. Philip Greenberg, Androcles Lion suit campaign manager, has announced. Booths on campus and at the Corner Room turned in $32.70. Hatmen collected $82.30 when they solicited at fraternities during the noon and evening meals. At least $25 more in fraternity contributions is expected, Greenberg said.

A $5 donation was made by Philotes, independent women's social organization. A collection made by dormitory representatives for Leonides, independent women's organization, netted $51.71. Phi Mu sorority contributed $5. Contributions of $1 were made by Wayne Mantz and Anthony Tornetta. Other contributions included $5 from Phi Sigma (Continued on Page S-8)
