

Council Nominations to Close Groups Study IFC Problems

Nominations for first, semester freshman for student council elections will close this week in six of the seven schools which are holding elections next week.

Six elections will be held Oct. 30 and 31. The Mineral Industries Council will hold its elections in MI Dean Edward Steidle's freshman lecture class 4 p.m. Monday.

Being comprised of representatives of Ag school clubs, the Agriculture Student Council will not hold elections.

The School of Chemistry and Physics will close its nominations tomorrow. A freshman may nominate himself by signing one of the lists posted in Osmond Laboratory.

To nominate himself for one of the two freshman seats on the Education Student Council, the student must leave his name, semester, rank in high school, and high school activities in 102 Burrows before 5 p.m. tomorrow.

Freshman may nominate themselves for the Engineering Student Council in department offices until noon Saturday. Six places are open for freshmen.

One representative is elected from each department: Architecture, 302 Main Engineering; Aeronautical, 103 Engineering D; Civil, 204 Main Engineering; Electrical, 105 Electrical Engineering; Industrial, 203 Engineering C; and Mechanical, 208 Main Engineering.

The name and address of a nominee for the Home Economics Student Council may be deposited in a box in the Home Economics building before noon Saturday. Membership is apportioned by allotting one seat for every 50 members of a class.

To run for one of the four seats on the Liberal Arts Student Council, a student must submit a petition with names of 25 freshman Liberal Arts students by noon Saturday to the dean's office in 132 Sparks. The petition may be on any kind of paper.

If the nominee desires he may submit a poster no larger than eight-by-ten inches with his name, qualifications, or picture. The posters will be placed beside the polls during the elections.

Nominees for the Mineral Industries Student Council may sign lists posted on bulletin boards in the Mineral Industries building by noon Saturday. Two freshmen will be elected.

One man and one coed will be elected to the Physical Education Student Council. Students may turn in their names at Moffat Cottage or to council members by Tuesday.

By LIX NEWELL

The second session of the Interfraternity Council Workshop was held last night with nine of the ten discussion groups meeting with delegates from each of the 52 fraternities.

This is the third annual Workshop set up to discuss and try to solve fraternity problems. The recommendations from each group will be presented to IFC at its next meeting. The groups will meet at 7 tonight.

Groups set up include ten areas of fraternity life: chapter advisers, rushing chairmen, house managers, treasurers, pledgemasters, social chairmen, public relations, scholarship, alumni relations, and house presidents.

Gerald Garman led the discussion of scholarship at Sigma Pi leading to four main suggestions. They are posting the members' averages on the bulletin board, keeping a weekly or monthly check on the pledges' grades, use of a fining or demerit system to keep study hours as quiet as possible, and possibly an award for the man with the greatest progress from semester to semester.

Kaufman Chairman
A discussion of the duties of the fraternity presidents was led by Arthur H. Reede, professor of economics. He suggested that chapter meetings have a definite time limit because the trend of thought is lost, members may have blue-books or other studying, and a short meeting is more efficient.

The possibility of the vice president being a figurehead without specific duties in some fraternities was brought up and it was suggested that the president delegate some of his duties to prevent one person from having all the responsibility and work. John Kaufman was chairman of this discussion held at Phi Sigma Kappa.

The meeting of pledge masters led by William Haffley at Alpha Sigma Phi felt that pledge unity and scholarship were the important problems. They agreed with the scholarship group that definite study hours be set and enforced, but went further by suggesting that letters be sent to professors of pledges to discuss their progress.

Social Aspects Aired
Social chairmen met at Kappa Delta Rho with Paul Asplundh as chairman. Harold White of the recreation department discussed the place of informal games in the fraternity social set-up saying that recreation majors were available to help plan parties.

Fraternities inviting members of one or two other houses to their weekend parties was recommended by the public relations group as a way to promote good feeling among the different houses. Faculty-administration relations could be improved by inviting them to dinner at the fraternity.

Robert Evans led the discussion of alumni relations at Alpha Zeta with money and Homecoming Weekend the primary topics. It was decided that an Alumni board, an open letter of expenses and improvements, and invitations to more of the fraternity functions would give the alumni more interest in their fraternity.

IFC Banquet Tickets On Sale at SU Desk

Tickets for the Interfraternity Council Workshop banquet may be bought at the Student Union Desk until 5 p.m. tomorrow at $3.25 each. Fraternities with reservations will be charged for tickets not picked up by that time.

IFC Movie Scheduled For Tonight

The last two showings of "A Toast to Our Brother," a movie depicting fraternity life, will be at 7 and 8:30 tonight in 119 Osmond.

Interfraternity Council prepared the movie as part of its rushing program to arouse interest in and orient freshmen and new students to the fraternity system.

Rushing chairmen of 52 fraternities and the rushing committee of IFC worked on the program, which included the distribution of a magazine, "Penn State Fraternities," to new students and freshmen. Each magazine included a card on which students could indicate their choice of fraternity.

The cards will be collected Oct. 31 and a master list will be sent to the rushing chairman of each fraternity. Supplementing this section, another master sheet will be sent to dormitory counselors containing the names of fraternities and their presidents and rushing chairmen.

Thomas Schott, chairman of the IFC committee, announced that open houses will be held in all fraternities from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday for men to visit any house in which they may be interested and see those they may not know.

Student Painting Display

"The Memory Lasts," a painting by Josephine Paul, a graduate student who was enrolled in summer sessions at the College, has been placed in the Carnegie International Exhibition which opened last week at the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh.

to alleviate feeding difficulties on Alumni Weekend, but the group split on whether dating should be allowed that weekend.

Rushing chairmen, led by Joseph Connolly, ask that the fraternity magazine be sent to the College centers to acquaint freshmen with the system at Penn State and that a sheet explaining dormitory contracts be attached.

1953 State Week Plans To Commence in Spring

Plans for the 1953 Pennsylvania Week celebration will be started before the end of the spring semester, the 1952 Pennsylvania Week committee decided yesterday at its final meeting.

Previously, the committee was organized in the fall. The committee reviewed activities of last week's program and made recommendations to be submitted to next year's committee by Fred M. Coombs, chairman.

Among the recommendations were the seating on the committee of either a member of the Music department, or the Blue Band, to help plan Pennsylvania Week ceremonies, and a member of the Daily Collegian editorial staff.

Apply for Appropriation
Other new recommendations included the printing of Pennsylvania Week advertising, similar to church promotion advertising now run in the Daily Collegian, sponsored by student organizations; a street banner; outside speakers; visits by winners of various contests throughout the state; and individual school projects.

Richard C. Maloney, administrative assistant to President Milton S. Eisenhower, suggested that when the new committee meets in the spring it apply for an appropriation to carry special activities. The $50 given to the committee this year went for the trophy to be presented to Lambda Chi Alpha winner of the motorcade float contest.

Several projects were rejected this year because not enough funds were available. These projects may be used if there is enough money, the committee believes. Among these are radio recordings of a campus musical organization that can be sent to radio stations throughout the state, and a folk festival, to be held in Recreation Hall.

Spring Plans
Plans for possible Pennsylvania Week participation in next year's fall Thespian show must be started in the spring because the show is written over the summer, Lincoln Warrell told the committee.

Maloney read a letter from Louis T. Benezet, president of Allegheny College and state chairman for colleges and universities for Pennsylvania Week, commending the efforts made by the local committee.

Senior Released From Hospital

Martin Scicchitano, seventh semester chemical engineering major, was released yesterday morning from Centre County Hospital. He was admitted Tuesday night suffering from a dislocated left shoulder received while playing intramural football.

Scicchitano plays in the Coal Crackers backfield. He was injured in the last play of the game. The Coal Crackers won the game, edging Dorm 41, 8-7, in overtime.

'20th Century' Opens Nov. 6 In Schwab

The Penn State Players will present the opening performance of "Twentieth Century," second production of the season, Nov. 6 at Schwab Auditorium.

Kelly Yeaton, associate professor of dramatics, will direct the play, which was written by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur. Hecht and MacArthur also wrote "Front Page," a newspaper drama.

Scholarship Forms Ready

Applications for pre-doctoral Fulbright awards must be filled out not later than Oct. 31 in 243 Sparks, Robert M. Galbraith, Fulbright adviser, has announced.

Interviews of qualified applicants will be arranged before the Senate committee on scholarships and awards, Galbraith said, and the committee will evaluate and rank the candidates.

The committee will interview applicants at 8 p.m. Nov. 6 in 204 Willard.

Applicants chosen for Fulbright Awards will be notified in April or May. Awards include travel, tuition, maintenance, and books for a year of study in colleges and universities of 20 different countries.

4800 Students Enroll in ROTC This Semester

More than 4800 students at the College are enrolled in Reserve Officer Training programs this fall, President Milton S. Eisenhower, has announced.

The number includes 2768 students in the Air Force program, including 442 advanced students. There are 1735 Army cadets, including 181 advanced students. There are also 338 studying under the Navy program.

Upon completion of their programs, Army and Air Force advanced students will receive reserve commissions as second lieutenants and under the present policy many will be called to active duty.

Navy ROTC students enroll for four years of Naval science. Upon completion of the program, the 140 regular students will receive commissions as ensigns in the U. S. Navy and serve on active duty, while the 198 contract students will receive reserve commissions and may be called to active duty. Some of the Navy ROTC students are commissioned as second lieutenants in the U. S. Marine Corps.

Wool Judgers Take 1st Place

The Penn State wool judging team took first place in collegiate competition Saturday at the American Royal Livestock Show in Kansas City.

Ernest Stahl placed second and Guy Temple third individually for the team's winning score. A third member of the team, Thomas Schmalzried, placed 13th. The team is coached by William L. Henning, professor of animal husbandry.

The University of Nebraska was second followed by the University of Illinois. Texas Institute of Technology and Kansas State University tied for fourth place.

Placement of the Penn State livestock and meat judging teams, also competing in the show, will be announced later this week.

Observatories Open

The College observatories will be open to the public from 7 to 9 tonight and tomorrow night, weather permitting.
