

Democrats Called 'Rabble Rousers'

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 23 (AP)—Gen. Dwight Eisenhower accused the Truman administration tonight of injecting bigotry and class hatred into the presidential campaign, and said his political opponents speak with "the power mad voices of the rabble rousers."

The Democrats, he said, will do everything to win the election Nov. 4.

Allies Capture Mountain Peak From Chinese

SEOUL, Friday, Oct. 24 (AP)—Allied troops threw the Chinese Reds off the top of Iron Horse Mountain Thursday and 20 miles to the east crushed new but weaker attacks on Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge.

The battle for these strategic Central Korean heights waxed hottest at Iron Horse. Front reports said the Chinese refused to concede its loss and were beating against South Korean lines with furious counterblows.

As ground fighting dropped in intensity, the Allies stepped up their aerial attacks and carried them close to the Manchurian border.

Fighter-bombers chopped up rail lines 40 miles from the border, and destroyed or damaged 15 buildings in a raid on a transformer and mining area near the Chongchon River north of Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

They were following up 10 Superforts which by night drove through Communist anti-aircraft barrages and interceptors and dumped 100 tons of bombs on a lead and zinc plant at Okung. This is only 25 miles east of the Red jet base at Antung, Manchuria. All B29s returned.

U.S. Sabre jets again were aloft and tangled with MIG jets that tried to intercept the fighter-bombers. The Fifth Air Force said one MIG was shot down and another probably crashed in Manchuria.

Light bombers raided two massing areas northwest of Pyongyang. Marine fighter-bombers blasted a troop concentration near Sariwon on the West Coast.

The South Korean Ninth Division's conquest of the top of Iron Horse Mountain climaxed a week of close quarter fighting with bayonets and hand grenades.

Stevenson Blasts GOP Candidates

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23 (AP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson tonight accused Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower of conducting a campaign "which accepts calumny and the big doubt as its instruments."

Stevenson, the Democratic president nominee, loosed a scathing attack on Eisenhower, his GOP opponent, and the general's vice-presidential running mate, Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California.

Stevenson also slugged hard at Republican Sens. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin and William E. Jenner of Indiana.

In an address prepared for delivery at the Cleveland Arena, the Illinois governor said Eisenhower must accept full responsibility for the kind of campaign being waged in his behalf.

"I resent — and I resent bitterly—the sly insinuations and the innuendoes of the campaign that is being waged in behalf of the general," Stevenson declared, "and I am deeply shocked that the general would lead a so called 'crusade' which accepts calumny and the big doubt as its instruments."

"Every boss of the administration party will go all out and down the line to deliver. They will deliver by fair means and foul," the general told his audiences, in a speech prepared for delivery at the Buffalo Memorial Auditorium.

His Buffalo appearance closed a hard day's campaigning through Upper New York state.

In the day's last speech here, Eisenhower used the strongest language he has ever employed to make his charge that the Democrats have deliberately brought the collapse of unity which is the source of the nation's strength.

"We hear shrill voices today creating distrust, disunity, and bigotry by falsely accusing others—including myself—of these evil things," he said.

In this, Eisenhower apparently was referring to President Truman's message to the Jewish Welfare Board last Friday in which the President said Eisenhower "is willing to accept the very practices that identify the so called 'master race'."

Probably with an eye turned toward the large Polish population of Buffalo, Eisenhower said:

"I have seen first hand the devastating consequences of rabble rousing. Many of you have also seen those devastating consequences. They have been visited on some of your friends and loved ones. You know how prejudice, bigotry, and ill will have been used by unscrupulous men in other nations until those nations were torn apart and destroyed."

He said that "even in the heat of a political campaign" these tactics should be guarded against.
