Political Scene

is basically a better man at the use of words, as far as the transmission of thoughts is concerned. Where he is lacking, Republicans say, is in his ability to reach the people emotionally.

For when General Ike addresses a crowd at a whistle stop, he is applauded. He talks to the people on their own terms, and in common, everyday language.

One editor, a Democrat, said the comparison of Stevenson's speeches to Eisenhower's was like the comparison between one of Emerson's essays and a bubble-gum advertisement. One might add here—yes, but more people read bubble-gum advertisements.

The point, of course, which the Stevenson supporters are trying to put across is that their man is more literate, more self-dependent, and generally more capable than Eisenhower. There is little doubt that Stevenson has more appeal to the intelligentsia, but again the point—don't a greater number of people read bubble-gum advertisements?

Governor Stevenson has said that he sincerely believes in his type of campaign. He believes that the American people will eventually—maybe not this year, but in the near future—come to realize that intelligence is an important criteria for selecting presidents. For this reason Stevenson maintains that he will continue his appeal to the minds of the people.

The Republicans have little direct response for this—who would expect them to say they didn't believe in intelligence—but they do point out that their man is capable of leadership and has ability to select other men who will do the thinking in certain fields. And so the GOP campaign continues one of emotional appeal.

Mardi Gras To Benefit Two Funds

A scholarship and a project fund will be benefited by two of the three events planned for Mardi Gras Weekend, Nov. 7, 8, and 9.

Proceeds from the annual Mortar Board-sponsored Mardi Gras will go toward the Charlotte E. Ray scholarship fund. Each year a scholarship is awarded to a junior woman chosen by the senior women's honorary society. Last year's Mardi Gras grossed over $1400.

The Mardi Gras will be held 8:30 p.m. to midnight Nov. 7 in Recreation Hall. General admission will be 15 cents, and admission to each of the booths, run by sororities and other women's groups, will be 10 cents.

A project fund that will contribute to an American Association of University Women scholarship will be aided by the first Chimes' Mardi Gras dance from 9 p.m. to midnight Nov. 8 in the TUB.

The dance features Jack Jenkins and his orchestra. Admission will be $1 per couple.

A Mardi Gras king, to be chosen at the Friday event by penny votes, will reign over both affairs. Last year's king was Donald Cook, sponsored by Alpha Xi Delta.

Another first, the All-College Sing, sponsored by Senate of the Women's Student Government Association, will be held 3:30 to 5 p.m. Nov. 9 in Schwab Auditorium. The last activity planned for the Weekend, the Sing will have no admission charge.

Movies Films Feature Adventure, Mystery, Murder, Comedy

A mystery, two swashbuckling adventure stories, a western, and a British murder comedy may be seen at State College theaters this week.

"Sudden Fear," playing at the Cathaum today and tomorrow, stars Joan Crawford as a wealthy heiress-playwright who marries a complete stranger after a whirlwind courtship and finds herself victim of a murder plot. Her attempt, to counteract the vicious plans of husband Jack Palance and Gloria Grahame backfires. Feature time is 1:20, 3:27, 5:29, 7:31, and 9:40 p.m.

A technicolor western, "Montana Territory" comes to the Cathaum Thursday with Lon McCallister cast as a young gold prospector.
