

67 Per Cent Vote In Coed Primaries

By JANE REBER

A little less than 67 per cent of all eligible women students voted in the Women's Student Government Association and Women's Recreation Association primary elections yesterday. Twelve candidates names will appear on the final ballot.

McAllister Hall again registered a 100 per cent vote and all eligible voters in Grange Dormitory voted.

A total of 894 votes were cast for WSGA freshman senator and WRA sophomore representative. Total number of eligible women was 1339.

Only 48 per cent of sophomores voted for WRA sophomore representative, while 87% of freshman women cast votes for WSGA freshman senator. In the WRA balloting, 333 out of 694 eligible voted and 561 out of 645 voted in the WSGA elections.

Finalists for WSGA freshman senator are Carolyn Cunningham, Kay Kingsley, Shirley Mix, Janet Ramandanes, and Helen Sidman. Five names instead of four will appear on the final ballot tomorrow because of a tie vote. Two will be elected.

Defeated candidates are Shirley Anthony, Joanne Caruso, Peggy Davis, Patricia Dickson, Lynne Hough, Betty Koster, Kay Krause, Ann Leh, Jean Mercer, and Jane Patton.

WRA sophomore representative finalists are Mildred McCowan and Margaret Porterfield. They won over Sylvia Crum, Joan Hill, Lois Hummel, Eleanor Kelly, Beate Maron, Joan Rowland, and Martha Rojahn.

Candidates for WRA freshman representative were not voted on in yesterday's primaries, but their names will appear on the final ballot. They are Ruth Kronenwetter, Mary Lolyd, Patricia McLaughlin, Faith Rojahn, and Donna Vought.

Final elections will be run off tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the same voting stations. Returns will not be published, but any candidate may find out the exact figures from Louise Glud or Eleanor Gwynn, WSGA and WRA elections chairmen.

WRA Swim Club To Test Applicants

Screening for permanent members of the Women's Recreation Association Swimming Club will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the White Hall pool.

Only women who have been to club meetings this semester will be able to take the tests. Nancy Lusk, president, has announced.

The screening process will cover a three-week period. Only persons who have been screened will be able to participate in the spring aquacade, Miss Lusk said.

Sororities to Keep Same Rushing Plan

Panhellenic Council voted last night to use the present formal sorority rushing plan during next fall's rushing period. This plan permits each sorority to hold a maximum of four parties and a minimum of one party during two nights and limits the rushee to attending no more than three parties.

A strict silent period during the formal rushing period was also decided upon. Unlike this year's code in which sorority members and rushees could converse with each other on any topic except sororities, the code for next fall will limit conversation between members and rushees to "hello." However, no silent period of any kind will be observed during informal rushing.

Council members were requested by Janet Herd, Panhel rushing chairman, to take back to their sororities the questions of when to ribbon new pledges and whether to ribbon them in the pledge's dormitory room or in the sorority suite. At present both methods of ribboning are used by sororities.

Panhel voted to include both men and women speakers in a list of speakers provided by the Penn State Christian Association to talk at sorority meetings.

The Recreation Hall seating plan and the plan for the dividing of activity tickets among students as proposed by Ernest B. McCoy, dean of the School of Physical Education and Athletics, was presented to Panhel by Marlene Heyman, Panhel president. Council members were asked to carry the discussion back to their sororities.

Mardi Gras King, Booth Applications Due Today

The deadline for Mardi Gras king entries is tonight. All pictures must be turned in to Joan Hutchon, 109 McElwain. Entrants must be present at both the Mardi Gras and the Chimes dance Nov. 8 and 9, Miss Hutchon said.

Applications for carnival booths at the Mardi Gras are also due today. They should be sent to Mary Ann Wertman, 212 Simmons.

Marriages

Brunner-Seashore

Helen Payne Seashore, formerly of State College, was married to Henry Sherman Brunner, head of the Department of Agricultural Education, Oct. 19.

Members of Mrs. Brunner's family attended the wedding. The couple will be at home in State College next week.

The couple was married in a chapel on the Kansas University campus, Lawrence, Kan., built by a gift from the Danforth Foundation. Mr. Brunner has been an active member of the national advisory committee of this foundation.

PSCA Will Hear Hartsough Tonight

Ray Hartsough of the American Friends Service Committee will speak to the Penn State Christian Association on "Hard Work, No Pay" at 7 tonight in 304 Old Main.

His discussion about work camps sponsored by the committee will initiate PSCA's November series on "Human Relations."

"A Time for Greatness," a film concerning current social and religious problems, will be shown after the program.

The chairman of the November series is Martha Heckman.

Prospective Members Attend Philotes Party

Philotes, independent women's social organization, held a "come as you are" party Monday night in the second floor lounge of Simmons Hall. Approximately 25 members and prospective members and the group's advisers attended. Entertainment consisted of songs, games, and charades. Refreshments were served.

Philotes is planning an alumni dance to be held Nov. 8 in the game room of Simmons Hall.

Senate to Meet

Women's Student Government Association Senate will assemble 6:30 tonight at the Penn State Photo Shop. The regular business meeting in the WSGA room in White Hall will follow.

Zeta Tau Alpha

Zeta Tau Alpha recently entertained Delta Sigma Phi. The pledges presented a skit, followed by dancing, refreshments, and group singing.

Student Uses Bow, Arrow to Fell Deer

By HELEN LUYBEN

David Webber had to finish tagging and dressing the six-point buck he had shot that morning with a bow and arrow. That's why he was late for his 9-12 class last Saturday morning.

You who weren't aware that deer are shot with bows and arrows probably don't know, either, that today ends bow-season on deer.

During bow-season only William Tell-type hunters can try their luck at this deer-hunt game.

Penn State's huntsman Webber left Nittany Dorm 44 early Saturday morning. At 7 a.m. he was in the field at the state forest in Poe Valley. At 7:05 a.m. one six-point deer lay dead, and Webber went to work, dressing and tagging his prize.

Tagging a deer, for you not up on the hunt, is filling out a form telling where and when the deer was shot and by whom. Dressing involves the removal of the animal's entrails.

Shooting the deer was quite an easy task, Webber said. "I just waited for two bow-hunters who were already there to drive him over the mountain to me, and then I shot him."

This successful hunt was Webber's first try at the archery method. He practiced for about a month on targets in back of his dorm. A sophomore landscaping major from Telford, Webber has done a lot of gun-hunting.

He said he became interested in trying the bow and arrow method after he joined the Nittany Bowmen, campus archery club.

But what of the poor buck? He has long since been hauled to Telford and is now taking up a lot of space in a deep freeze.

MISS BUNNY BANKS

Ok Joe?

Attractive as well as likable, red-headed Bunny, an 18-year-old Ed major hails from Philadelphia. Perhaps one of her smiling portraits would do her more justice but we thought this serious one would be pleasing too.

Last semester during a sitting, a girl jokingly remarked that she'd probaby break the lens. A few seconds later the lens acually dropped out of the camera (no harm). A short while after, we both regained our composure and continued the sitting. Of course this was a combination of a once in a lifetime accident and sheer coincidence. But we get a number of self-styled "lens breakers." Maybe you're one of those who never seem to photograph well. Possibly it's true but more than likely it's because the photographer didn't take enough time with you, or the poses and the lighting were not varied to suit your particular needs. Interesting challenges intrigue us so come on down and let us do justice to you. You'd be surprised at the number of different poses that are taken of you and the attention paid to details. There isn't much time left for Christmas portraits. Make your appointment now.

Remember, portraits are the finest of inexpensive gifts.

P.S. Congratulations, Barbara Werts, for winning the Belle Hop contest. That's the second in a row for us.

Sincerely,

Bill Coleman
