FOR A BETTER PENN STATE

VOL. 53, No. 36

STATE COLLEGE, PA., THURSDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 30, 1952

FIVE CENTS

6 Council Elections To Begin Today

Balloting for freshman representatives to six school councils will begin today.

In five of the schools voting will take place from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. today and tomorrow. The Physical Education Council will hold its elections during a class.

Any freshman in the College may vote for the freshman council representatives of his school.

Town Council Approves Part Of McCoy Plan

A motion to accept part of Dean McCoy's seating plan was passed by AIM Town Council last night.

The motion, proposed by Howard Mason, calls for the selling of 300 non-reserved seats to faculty, alumni, and townspeople provided that the 150 complimentary tickets given to athletes be eliminated. This motion differs from the McCoy proposal in that the McCoy plan contains no provision for elimination of complimentary tickets.

Another motion, on a second McCoy proposal that the colored ticket plan for student seating be accepted, was defeated.

A third motion that the council go on record favoring the AIM Board of Governors' Board of Control proposal was passed over three dissenting votes.

The constitutional committee was designated by president Edward Theime to work on an amendment to the constitution to leave any vacant positions in the council be left open until such a time when a petition is drawn up and an election is held. The policy now is to appoint people to the position without an election.

The council also voted to go on favor for supporting the blood drive and the Campus Chest.

A stormy debate followed a motion proposed by Thomas Taylor to reimburse Taylor for money lost while building the council's float for Pennsylvania Week. The motion was defeated on the grounds that it would set a precedent. The council voted to pay for the cost of float only, which was $16.36.

14 Persons Pledge Blood For Fall Drive

Fourteen persons pledged blood as of yesterday to the Nov. 11 and 12 blood drive at the College. The goal is 300 pints.

Applications for donors are available in 112 Old Main. Forms are due Wednesday in 112 Old Main.

Students between the ages of 18 and 21 who wish to give blood are required to have a release form signed by their parents by Wednesday, Ronald Zimmerman, publicity chairman for the drive, has announced. He suggested that students take the forms home this weekend to be signed.

The Johnstown Red Cross bloodmobile will be at the Temporary Union Building from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. on the two-day stay. Appointments for donors will be within these prescribed hours. Donors will be served orange juice and doughnuts by members of the Campus Red Cross Unit.

IFC May Change Frosh Dating Code

By CHUCK OBERTANCE

A letter requesting an extension of dating privileges in fraternities for freshman women will be sent by Interfraternity Council to the Senate committee on student affairs for consideration when the committee meets Tuesday.

Secondary requests that first semester women be allowed to date in fraternities with chaperons and that dating privileges be extended to second semester freshman women under the IFC un-

LA Seniors (A-M)

Liberal Arts seniors (A-M) may have their pictures taken for the 1953 LaVie at the Penn State Photo Shop, official LaVie photographer, today through Wednesday.

Men are asked to wear suits, white shirts, and ties. Women are requested to wear white or plain colors.

Chem-Phys Approves Amendment

The Chemistry and Physics Student Council last night approved an amendment to its constitution allowing the two freshman representatives to the group to be from any curriculum in the school.

Previously the constitution stated the two councilmen must be from the two largest curriculums in Chem-Phys. The only stipulation now is that they may not be from the same department.

Lincoln Warrell, president of the group, scheduled voting supervisors for the freshmen elections to be held today and tomorrow in Osmond Laboratory. Sixteen have been nominated for the two posts available in the coming balloting.

It was also announced by Tour Chairman Douglas Ayer that a guided tour of the Chem-Phys school for a group of ten will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday. The tour will start at 123 Osmond under the guidance of a faculty member and will last for one hour.

Plans for a mixer were discussed and, due to complications in scheduling a room and speakers, it has been postponed until the first part of December. The main address at the mixer will be given by a recent immigrant from Germany, Dr. Muller, who is now working at the College.

No Collegian Saturday

The Daily Collegian will not publish Saturday morning due to the Penn weekend.

Gazette material for the weekend must be brought to the Collegian office by 4 p. m. today.

Fraternity Group Leads Pre-Penn Game Rally

A number of fraternity men shouting "Let's go Penn State" held a pre-Penn game parade and rally late last night.

Starting around Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, the shouting, trumpet-blasting men circled the fraternity area and headed for the campus, aiming toward Recreational Hall, where a wooden cross and a Penn football "player" was waiting to be burned.

A number of placards with the sign "Beat Penn" were carried by the marchers.

The idea for the demonstration developed during the early afternoon emanating from the direction of Tau Kappa Epsilon and Delta Tau Delta, whose officers announced the parade to the members of the houses.

The parade and demonstrations were reminiscent of fall 1948, the last year Penn State played the University of Pennsylvania in football. The week before the game at that time was filled with rallies and fraternity parades. Penn State beat Penn 13-0 in chaperoned dating code are included in the letter.

The plans to set aside 300 unreserved seats for faculty, alumni, and interested townspeople and to divide student tickets into two groups for indoor events in Recreation Hall were unanimously opposed by the council. The group also went on record as unanimously opposing the ticket situation for away games.

In the letter requesting the extension of freshman dating privileges, the IFC listed five reasons why new consideration should be given the rule forbidding freshman women in fraternity houses.

The letter says the rule is now outmoded because it was made several years ago, and since then the fraternity situation has greatly improved. The influence of older men is gone, the letter continues, because older GIs attending school under the GI Bill are gone.

Stressing the results of a recent poll among freshman women, the letter states that the effectiveness of the rule is questionable. The poll showed freshman women who had been placed on their honor to abide by the rule have not felt the obligation to do so. This, the letter continues, shows that there is nothing objectionable taking place at fraternity social functions.

The letter also said fraternities are trying to combat misguided public opinion and that because the College has such a rule, the public must feel that social life in houses is objectionable. The fifth point stated that fraternities have received no assurance of confidence from the College that the situation has improved at all.

Reporting on the progress of the IFC rushing program, Thomas Schott, rushing chairman, said approximately 2200 "Penn State's Fraternities" magazines have been sent to freshman men and new students. He added that reply

Class Title Open to Any Junior Woman

Any regularly matriculated junior woman may be sponsored by groups or individuals for the title of Miss Junior Class. Irvin White, selection committee chairman, has announced.

Miss Junior Class will be crowned at the Junior Prom Nov. 14 in Recreation Hall. Five finalists for the title will be selected by a committee of 15 outstanding juniors after personal interviews with the entrants Wednesday and Thursday.

Balloting for the final selection of Miss Junior Class will be conducted Nov. 11-12 at the Student Union desk in Old Main. Fifth and sixth semester students may vote by presenting matriculation cards.

White has announced that although photographs 5 by 7 or 8 by 10 are preferred for the contest, it is not essential the photographs be that size. The deadline for submitting entries has been extended to noon Wednesday.

Young Republicans To Set Election Plans

The pre-election meeting of the Young Republican Club will be held at 7:30 tonight in 304 Old Main.

Benjamin Sinclair, president, said that plans for election week activities will be announced and assignments to committees will be made.

3 Societies To Sponsor Pep Rally

A torchlight parade will set off the pre-Penn game pep rally scheduled for 7:15 tonight in front of Old Main. The Blue Band will lead the parade, starting from the Nittany-Pollock area, proceeding to the West Dorm area, and then going to Old Main.

The rally is sponsored by Blue Key, junior men's hat society; Chimes, junior women's hat society; and Mortar Board, senior women's honorary society. Seventeen Blue Key pledges will participate in the program.

Patricia Marsteller will emcee the rally. She will introduce Daniel A. DeMarino, assistant to the dean of men. Brief talks will also be given by members of the football team. The whole team will be present.

Alan McChesney, head cheerleader, and the squad will also be on hand. Gail Shaver, publicity assistant, urged students to come out in spite of the weather to cheer the team on for Saturday's game with the Quakers.

The football team will leave for Philadelphia tomorrow night. The Penn State contingent will include the Blue Band and the cheerleading squad.

Collegian Takes Poll of Faculty

Results of a faculty political preference poll being conducted by the Daily Collegian will be published in tomorrow's paper.

Approximately 1300 questionnaires were distributed to 57 departments yesterday, asking faculty members for their opinions on the coming elections.

Eight questions proposed to the faculty will ask if they favor Stevenson or Eisenhower, will vote straight Republican or Democrat, will prefer another candidate, or feel that they should abstain because of their position as instructors.

Altoona Bus Planned For Stevenson Speech

Students who wish to hear Democratic Presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson speak at Altoona today may make bus reservations by calling State College 2182.

At least one bus will leave the county headquarters at Atherton street and Beaver avenue between 3:30 and 3:45 p. m., today. Bruce M. Stover, county Democratic chairman, said.
