

Opening of Concert Series Announced

The internationally known Budapest String Quartet, Amadeus Quartet, and Philadelphia Woodwind Quintet will appear in State College early next year, opening a concert series sponsored by the State College Choral Society.

Tickets for the concerts, which will feature chamber music interpretations, are on sale at the Student Union desk in Old Main. Season tickets, priced at $4.50, will be sold until Nov. 15.

Foreign Job Applications Available

College seniors and graduate students interested in a career in foreign affairs management must sign up for the Civil Service junior management assistant examination before Nov. 11.

This test will be used as part of the selective process for those in political science, economics, public administration, international relations, or related fields. Application blanks may be secured in 119 Sparks or in 112 Old Main.

A nominating board appointed by Dr. Ben Euwema, dean of the School of Liberal Arts, will assist the State Department in selecting qualified candidates.

Candidates chosen by the department will take a nine-month training program with 90 per cent of that time spent getting on-the-job experience.

Candidates, selected for potential leadership ability, will be trained for eventual promotion to top-level executive and managerial positions. Those chosen may have an opportunity to serve abroad.

Members of the nominating board are R. Wallace Brewster, head of the Political Science department; William N. Leonard, head of the Department of Economics; Alfred G. Pundt, professor of history; Seth W. Russell, head of the Department of Sociology; and George N. P. Leetch, director of the College Placement Service.

Fulbright Award Applications Due

Applications for pre-doctoral Fulbright awards must be submitted no later than tomorrow in 243 Sparks.

Robert M. Galbraith, Fulbright adviser, has announced that qualified applicants will be interviewed by the Senate committee on scholarships at 8 p.m. Nov. 6 in 204 Willard.

Fulbright award winners will be revealed in May. Awards include travel, tuition, maintenance, and book fees for a year of study in colleges and universities in 20 countries.

Blue Key Names Seventeen Tappees

Seventeen men have been tapped by Blue Key, junior men's hat society, Edwin Kohn, president, announced yesterday.

Froth on Sale

Froth will be on sale today at the Mall and the Corner Room.

The Philadelphia Woodwind Quintet will appear Jan. 5 in the State College High School auditorium. Organized in 1950, its members play with the Philadelphia Orchestra. William Kincaid plays first flute; Mason Jones, French horn; John de Lancie, oboe; Anthony Gigliotti, clarinet; and Sol Schoenbach, bassoon.

British Quartet
The quintet has achieved a wide variety in its repertoire, ranging from the classics of Mozart through the contemporary works of Hindemith, Milhaud, Nielsen, and Persichetti.

The Amadeus Quartet, a British quartet, making its first American tour, will appear in State College Feb. 9. This quartet was founded professionally in 1947 in London. Its members—violinists Norbert Brainin and Siegmund Nissel, violist Peter Schidlof, and cellist Martin Lovett—are all in their twenties.

The string quartet has made appearances in Holland, Belgium, France, Germany, and Spain.

Appeared at London
The Budapest String Quartet will be heard in the final concert March 5. This group has been established many years in Europe. Its American debut occurred in 1930. The quartet has settled permanently in the United States.

On a recent tour, the quartet appeared at London, Manchester, Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Paris.

Members of the Budapest Quartet are Joseph Roisman, first violin; Jac Gorodetzky, second violin; Mischa Schneider, violoncello; and Boris Kroyt, viola.

Party Platforms To Be Discussed

The All-College elections committee and the chairmen of the Lion and State parties will meet at 8 tonight in 204 Old Main to go over the platforms for the Nov. 13 freshman and sophomore class elections.

If the platforms are approved they will be released in tomorrow's Daily Collegian.

Walker Sachs, State Party chairman, and Richard Kirschner, Lion Party chairman, said yesterday that their campaign platforms will be ready for approval tonight.

If the committee does not approve the platforms, they will not be released until next week. The Penn-Penn State football game interferes with the committee's meeting over the weekend. Ronald Thorpe, elections committee chairman, said.

Chem-Phys Banquet Held

A joint banquet of the Chemistry-Physics Student Council and the school's executive committee was held at the State College Hotel Monday night.

Topics discussed included the possibility of having a soft drink machine installed in Pond Laboratory, reserving of 119 Osmond Laboratory for chem-phys organizations, and the organization of blue book files.

Other plans included the student-faculty mixer to be held in the near future, open house, and evaluation of courses.

Two Attend Conference

Dr. Grace M. Henderson, dean of the School of Home Economics, and Mary P. Shelton, director of the Ellen H. Richards Institute, are attending the National Home Laundry conference in New York City today.

British Parliamentarian To Address Open Forum

Reginald Sorensen, member of the British Parliament and founder of the Labor Pacifist International Fellowship League, will speak at an open forum at 11 a.m. tomorrow in 121 Sparks.

His speech, "The Position of the British Labor Party Today," is being sponsored by the Departments of Economics and Commerce and Political Science, Alpha Kappa Psi, Delta Sigma Pi, and Chi Theta.

Sorensen will be guest speaker at a conference on "Fear or Confidence?" today at the Friends Meeting House, 318 S. Atherton street. "The Christian Answer to Communism" will be his topic at a supper conference at 5:30 p.m. He will speak on "Two Worlds or One?" at a forum at 8 tonight. The sessions are open to the public.

Sorensen was formerly a minister of the Free Christian Church and is a member of the British Labor Party and the Fabian Society. He served in the British House of Commons for 17 years and is now West African committee chairman and a member of the Parliament Deputation in India.

Sorensen has traveled and lectured in Great Britain, Germany, France, Holland, Belgium, Scandinavian countries, Finland, Egypt, India, and the United States. He writes for several British and Indian journals and has published books entitled "In Family and Humanity" and "God and Bread."

His early education in a British "religious community" fitted him for work with the church, and his interests have led him into a variety of political and social activities directed toward the goal of understanding among nations, officials of the Friends Meeting explained.

Gallivanting Is Job, Lion Mascot Claims

By DAVE HYMAN

"Being a College symbol is the biggest honor I've ever had," says Alex Gregal, better known as the Nittany Lion mascot. "It's also the biggest job."

Alex, 20 year old senior from Houtstown, represents the College at all home and a few away football games. Dressed in a heavy lion costume made of rabbit fur and calf hide, the blond forestry major galavants around the football field spreading spirit and goodwill among spectators.

Students Love Lion
Alex' happiest moments result from a rousing cheer or a good-natured laugh from the audience after one of his mirthful pranks. His following the players onto the field, pretense in guarding the goal posts, and mixing with the fans make the Lion a congenial mascot of which the students are proud.

Students display their affection for the Lion in many ways. When the fluffy feline enters the stands to cavort with coeds, he is seiged with offers of cokes and cigarettes. Just to touch the service-beaten costume is looked upon as an honor and thrill to many students, especially the frosh.

On one occasion, the Penn State mascot found himself being pushed around by two drunken non-students. Before he realized what was happening, a band of students had marshalled forces and was rallying to his protection.

Needs New Suit
"A rigid physical exam was the prime requisite of my eligibility for the job," Alex said. "I lose on the average of 38 pounds during the course of a season. Last year in the Villanova game alone, I lost 9 3/4 pounds."

Speaking of the need for a new Lion suit, Alex explained that a few costume would probably last eight years.

"I've been trying to get the College to set up a fund whereby a small amount would be taken from each year's class dues," he said. "This would keep a reserve that could be used in years to come."

West Virginia's mountaineer, Princeton's tiger, and Pitt's Panther are okay, but as far as the students of Penn State are concerned, nothing can ever replace the friendly Lion.

Draft Forms Due Saturday

Applications for the Dec. 4 Selective Service college qualification tests must be postmarked on or before midnight Saturday.

They may still be obtained from Mrs. Sara E. Case in the Dean of Men's office.

To be eligible to take the test, a student must be a Selective Service registrant who intends to request deferment as a college student, who is pursuing a full-time college course, and who has not previously taken the test.

The Dec. 4 test will be given at the College.

Jaros Misquoted

West Dorm Council Vice President Andrew Jaros was misquoted as strongly opposing an amendment to the revised West Dorm dating code in Tuesday's Daily Collegian. Jaros voted for the plan and moved that the plan be adopted in the meeting.

Cabinet Cancels Meeting

All-College Cabinet will not meet tonight. The next meeting of cabinet will take place next Thursday.

Cleaning Agency Closes Tomorrow

The Student Dry Cleaning and Laundry Agency will be closed this weekend due to the anticipated exodus of students from campus for the Penn game, Joseph Banks, assistant manager of the agency, said.

Dry cleaning and laundry may be picked up at the Pollock Union Building or West Dorms until 1 p.m. tomorrow. The agency will resume its normal schedule at 7:30 a.m. Monday.

Dr. Jilk to Speak

Dr. L. T. Jilk of the Dupont Company will speak at a meeting of the Penn State student affiliate of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers at 7 tonight in 117 Osmond. The meeting is open to all chemical engineers.
