Political Poll Shows Faculty Favors Ike

By ROBERT LANDIS

A Daily Collegian poll of 468 faculty members shows that 266 like Ike and 190 prefer Stevenson. The number of faculty members voting straight Democrat or straight Republican was considerably less than those voting on a split ticket. Seventy-nine will vote straight Democrat and 108 straight Republican while 243 plan to split their choice.

There were three write-ins for other candidates: one for Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas,

Queen to Be Honored at Reception

A reception for the 1952 Belle-Hop Ball Queen Barbara Werts and a sports smoker are scheduled for the Penn game weekend.

Miss Werts will be guest of honor at a reception after the game in the lower lobby of the Penn Sheraton Hotel, 39th and Chestnut streets, Philadelphia. The Greeters Club, sponsor of the Belle-Hop Queen contest, announced that students and alumni are invited. The manager of the hotel is giving the reception.

Ernest B. McCoy, dean of the School of Physical Education and Athletics; Ridge Riley, executive secretary of the Alumni Association; and Rip Engle, head football coach, will be guests at the smoker sponsored by the Penn State Alumni Club of Philadelphia at 8 tonight in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

Former College football stars from the Philadelphia area will be introduced during the smoker. The Blue Band will play, and movies of previous games will be shown. Ross B. Lehman, assistant executive secretary of the Alumni Association, announced.

Students are invited to the smoker at a special price of $1 each.

Tickets for the Pennsylvania-Penn State football game at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow are still being distributed at the Athletic Association ticket windows in Old Main.

Members of hat societies will form the traditional honor line to usher the football team onto the field.

Hat society members have been requested to wear their hats to the game. Permission to form the honor line has been granted by the University of Pennsylvania.

introduced team members Jim Dooley, Bill Leonard, Dave Simon, Dubs Haldeman, Dick Jones, Matt Yanosich, Gene Danner, Danny DeFalco, Don Baltzner, Keith Vesling, and Ted Kemmerer, all of whom spoke briefly.

Gratson told the crowd, "After losing a game, it's good to see the students still for you." He said the team intends to "give it all we've got" at tomorrow's game with the Quakers at Franklin Field in Philadelphia.

Pat Marstellar was emcee. Dick Altman, equipped with coonskin hat and bell, tried valiantly to explain professional football tactics to Pat, who became more confused than ever, in a skit distinguished by witty repartee.

Blue Key pledges led the Blue Band's torchlight parade. The Blue Band will accompany the team to Philadelphia and will play for the Philadelphia Alumni Club smoker from 8 until 9:45 tonight in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

In 1948, in front of the Bellevue-Stratford, over a thousand Penn State students held a spontaneous pre-Penn game rally and were joined by individual members of the Blue Band, thereby holding up central city traffic for over an hour.

Head cheerleader Alan Chesney and his squad got the support of Frothy and the Nittany Lion, in addition to the crowd, which showed its enthusiasm with streamers and jangling bells.

Campus Chest Display Planned

A window display depicting the uses of Campus Chest funds and including a short description of each recipient's function will be a feature of this year's campaign, Joseph Haines, solicitations chairman, said yesterday.

The display, to be placed in the Athletic Store window facing S. Allen street, is expected to be installed near the start of the drive. The drive extends from Tuesday to Nov. 18. Phi Sigma Sigma sorority will install the display.

Other features of the drive will be posters utilizing the campaign's three slogans and movie trailers at the Cathaum and State theaters. Movie trailers are advertisements inserted between the regular features.

The three slogans are "All the Beggars in One Ask-it," "Give Once, Serve All," and "Support Your Student Community."

The $12,000 sought this year will be divided among nine charity and service organizations and operating expenses. The group allotments will be Penn State Christian Association, 46 per cent; World Student Service Fund, 13 per cent; Women's Student Government Association Christmas Fund, six per cent.

State College Welfare Fund, one per cent; Salvation Army, six per cent; American Cancer Society, six per cent; Penn State Scholarship Fund, seven per cent; Heart Fund, six per cent; and National Student Service Fund for Negro students, five per cent. Operating expenses will take four per cent.

Students will be able to contribute by pledging an amount on an international business machine cards. This amount will be added to the student's fees next semester. Contributions less than $1 must be given to the solicitors because sums less than $1 cannot be registered on the IBM-cards.

one for Socialist Norman Thomas and one for the Prohibition Party.

In answer to question seven on the poll, "Do you think you should remain neutral because of your position?" one reply was, "No, but I think President (Milton S.) Eisenhower should."

Hasn't Trimmed Sails

Many of the replies sent back to the Collegian were emphatic in the reasons for their choice. Both sides listed, for the most part, that their reasons for voting for one or the other was based on the people backing the candidates. The pro-Republicans objected to Truman and the Democrats objected to the Taft-McCarthy-Jenner element in the Republican Party. Nearly all Eisenhower supporters agreed it was time for a change.

An Adlai advocate wrote "I prefer Stevenson because he has not trimmed his sail to every local wind; because his chosen advisors are men I respect; because he has not sought the support of unsavory Democrats such as McCarran, Shiver, and Talmadge; because he has not promised to sweep all Republicans indiscriminately out of the Federal government; and because his discussion of the issues has been on a high plane."

Eisenhower Supporter

An Ike man wrote a letter to the Collegian saying "I am glad to state my firm conviction that it is high time for a change in Washington. And I will urge others to that conclusion, not by weight of numbers, but by weight of reason. Alas, there is too little of reason in the sound and fury of recent days. The choice of party at this time is more important than the candidate and any candidate should be judged by what he said and did long before the campaign. Current promises, claims and charges mean little."

Another Eisenhower supporter said "Illinois loves Stevenson; make sure they don't lose him." One candidly remarked that Stevenson may be a better candidate, but since party issues are heavily involved the Republicans offer greater security for the immediate future of the country.

A pro-Stevenson faculty member stated he felt it is rare when truly great men run for the presidency and that we should make the most use of one when he comes along.

One bitterly remarked "I'll be glad when this election is over. I'm fed up with this campaign as it is now being conducted."

Lion to Appear At Penn Game Despite Patches

His suit will be patched with leather adhesive and glue, but the Lion will make the trip to Penn this weekend.

And, if the mending job holds up, the Lion will appear at the Rutgers home game and the Pitt game, Alex Gregal, who portrays the Lion, has announced.

Recent contributions to the Lion suit fund have brought the total to $579.53. A collection conducted by Nittany Council netted $41.45. Officers in 23 dormitories in the Nittany area made the collection. Gamma Phi Beta sorority donated $4.25 to the fund.

Because neither the Athletic Association nor All-College Cabinet could supply money for a new suit, a drive was initiated this fall by Gregal.

Tuesday Holiday For Voters

Students eligible to vote Tuesday will be excused from classes that day to return to their homes for that purpose.

While indicating there was no way to know how many students would be returning to their homes, college officials pointed out that approximately 4500 undergraduates and graduate students are of voting age.

In order to be excused from classes, the student must have an excuse form, available at the Student Union desk in Old Main, signed by an election official at the polls. The student may present this form to the instructor as an excuse for his absence Nov. 4.

Election laws in Pennsylvania state that "for the purpose of voting no persons shall be deemed to have gained a residence by reason of his presence, or lost it by reason of his absence . . . while a student of any institution of learning . . ."

Pennsylvania residents must return home to vote as the state has no civilian absentee provisions. Forty-two of the 48 states have such laws. Two years ago the National Student Association petitioned the legislature for a civilian absentee voting law. The legislature took no action upon the measure.

Council to Plan Constitution

Cabinet Project Council will receive suggestions for a constitution at its second meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday in 317 Willard.

Thomas Kidd and Charles Gibbs, members of the constitution committee, will present the ideas for approval and discussion by the group. A number of committees, including a program and a publicity committee, will be set up at the meeting.

The council is a plan enabling more students to participate in student government by seeking out and solving government problems on campus. The group represents the National Student Association at the College.
