Frosh, Soph Campaigns Begun By Parties Today

Eisenhower, GOP Sweep Nation

A record avalanche of votes gave Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower the presidential election yesterday and the GOP control of Congress.

With the great 1952 battle for the White House and Capitol Hill settled at last, the nation's onerous political clans began uniting beneath the Eisenhower standard.

The flood of votes for the old soldier rolled past the 31 million level and on up.

Early last night control of Senate and House were put definitely in Republican hands, although the margins were thin and shaky. The party at that time had 49 senators, including independent Wayne Morse, and 218 House members—in each instance a controlling majority.

President Truman moved for national unity.

Truman proposed that the man who will succeed him, the man he battled from one end of the land to the other, come to the White House at an early date for consultations to demonstrate for all the world that "our people are united in the struggle for freedom and peace."

The chief executive asked Eisenhower to send an emissary to sit in on high level government financial planning. He offered the general the White House plane for a trip to Korea. He had words of praise for defeated Adlai E. Stevenson, calling him "a great new leader who will contribute much to our national life in the years ahead."

High officials of the outgoing administration suggested that Eisenhower promptly select the men he wants for secretary of state and secretary of defense, that they may be briefed on vital policy making before taking over in January.

Whether or to what extent Eisenhower would go along with all these proposals was uncertain for the time being. He winged southward to Augusta, Ga., hoping for ten days of golf and fishing.

But in his moment of glory and victory in yesterday's early morning hours, Eisenhower too had called out to the people: "Let us unite." And he agreed promptly to select an aide to sit in on pre-

12 Candidates Of Lion, State To Seek Office

Campaigning for the freshman and sophomore class officers began at 12:01 today and will continue until 8:30 a.m. election day, Nov. 13, according to the revised 1952 All-College elections code.

Both Lion and State Parties are running candidates for class presidents, vice presidents, and secretary-treasurers.

State Party is running Robert Homan for sophomore class president and Michael Murphy for freshman class president.

The vice presidential candidates for the sophomore class are State Party's William Rother and Lion's William Brill. Freshman class candidates for vice president are Philip Lang of Lion Party and Forest Miller for State Party.

Marcia Phillips is the State Party candidate for sophomore secretary-treasurer; Nancy Scoville is the Lion party contender for that post.

Barbara Bransdorf, Lion Party, and Ann Lederman, State Party, are the candidates for freshman secretary-treasurer.

The two parties are limited in their campaigns by a All-College elections committee ruling that no more than $150 may be spent on campaigns by each party. Violations of the elections code are punishable by subtraction of votes from the party whose campaigners cause the violation.

All freshmen and sophomore students in odd semesters, that is, the first and third semesters, are given the opportunity to vote for their candidates on election day, Nov. 13. The balloting takes place in the lounge of Old Main.

STATE PLATFORM

(The Daily Collegian yesterday printed an abridged form of the State Party platform. The complete platform appears below. The Lion Party platform was printed in its entirety yesterday.)

The State Party, conceived upon the principles of service to you, the students of Penn State, now offers you the opportunity to elect sincere and competent students, who, with your continued cooperation and support, will enable us to preserve student government.

In order to fulfill this responsibility we pledge to investigate fully and take all steps necessary to accomplish the fulfillment of the following proposals:

1. to conclude an agreement whereby freshman women will be permitted to date in fraternity houses.
 2. to work with the BX in order to lower the price of freshman customs.
 3. to establish a plan to provide more adequate laundry facilities.

'20th Century' Pulls Into Schwab Tonight

By TAMMIE BLOOM

The "Twentieth Century" limited will make the first of its three trips to New York tonight as Players present the opening performance of the play by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur. The curtain will rise on the Kelly Yeaton-directed show at 8 p.m. in Schwab Auditorium.

Among the occupants of car 186 are a producer and his right and left hand men, an actress and her maid, a lady doctor, an eccentric little man with a satchel full of stickers, and a number of other passengers and train employees.

Moe Sarachek plays the part of Oscar Jaffe, the producer who hasn't had a smash hit to help his bankroll in some time. His prestige and lavish living still exist.

Charles Berryhill as Owen O'Malley and Sam Rabinowitz as Oliver Webb are Jaffe's agents. Their loyalty to the boss is topmost in all circumstances, but to remain in his good graces they learn not to mention the name of Max Jacobs, played by Richard Failla. Jacobs has done well in his producing career, although Jaffe fired him years before for stealing while a theater boy.

Lily Garland, played by Ann Wylie, is a temperamental, much sought-after actress; who had her start under Jaffe. That her compartment is adjoined by the producer's is no accident on the part of Jaffe. Renee Kluger plays Sadie, Miss Garland's maid, who won't be bossed even by her famous mistress.

John Krug, as George Smith, Miss Garland's agent, suspects foul play when he finds out that Jaffe is a fellow passenger.

Jeannie Risler is seen as Dr. Johnson, who has written a play which she insists the producer
