

Dorm Noise
Up to Students—
See Page 4

The Daily Collegian

Give FMA
A Chance—
See Page 4

FOR A BETTER PENN STATE

VOL. 53, No. 41

STATE COLLEGE, PA., FRIDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 7, 1952

FIVE CENTS

Miss Junior Class Finalists Selected

Five junior women—Jane Montgomery, Nena Moses, Carolyn Pelczar, Mary Petitgout, and Marilyn Porter—last night were named finalists for this year's Miss Junior Class title.

The finalists, chosen from a field of 28 coeds, were selected on the basis of beauty, personality and poise after personal interviews by the junior class queen selections committee.

Junior class members will select one of the finalists as Miss Junior Class by voting Monday and Tuesday at the Student Union desk in Old Main. Juniors must present their matriculation cards to vote. Balloting will continue from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

To Appear at Show

The finalists will appear at "Junior Varieties," class talent show, Wednesday night in Schwab Auditorium. Miss Junior Class will not be named until the Junior Prom on Nov. 14 in Recreation Hall.

Miss Montgomery, sponsored by Beaver House, is a journalism major from State College. Miss Moses, sponsored by Beta Theta Pi, is a home economics major from Pittsburgh. Miss Pelczar, sponsored by Chi Omega, is an education major from Nanticoke. Miss Petitgout, sponsored by Kappa Alpha Theta, is a home economics major from Upper Darby. Miss Porter, sponsored by Sigma Alpha Epsilon, is a physical education major from Birmingham, Michigan.

Breakfast Tickets Available

Distribution of free tickets for the talent show will begin today, Donald Herbein, promotion committee co-chairman, has announced. Members of the committee will distribute a total of 1165 free tickets at various points on campus.

Reservations for the class breakfast, to be held at 9:30 a.m. Nov. 16 in the Dutch Pantry, will be available until Monday at the Student Union desk. Tickets are $1.25 per couple. Only junior class members and their dates may attend.

The Mellow Airs Quartet will entertain at the breakfast, according to Raymond Webb, breakfast chairman. The class will attend Chapel en masse after the breakfast.

Ag Party To Award Door Prizes

A dressed turkey from the Poultry Husbandry department is one of five door prizes to be awarded at the Ag Hill party tomorrow night in Recreation Hall.

Included in the door prizes are a box of assorted cheeses donated by the dairy husbandry department, a bushel of certified seeds from the Foundation Feed Stock Association, a box of honey products presented by the apiary department, and Penn State manure donated by the farm department. The latter will be delivered to the winner's door.

Nearly $5000 in scholarship awards and prizes will be given to 45 students in the School of Agriculture. Approximately 300 prizes in merchandise, including meats, poultry, vegetable and dairy products, will be awarded during the evening.

Ticket sales will continue until noon tomorrow, according to Ernest Stahl, ticket chairman. Tickets are on sale at the Student Union desk in Old Main and at booths set up on the main floor of the Dairy Building and the Agriculture Building.

The party will begin at 5:15 p.m. with a cafeteria-style dinner of fresh baked ham, baked beans, apple sauce, rolls, butter, cupcakes, ice cream, cider and coffee. There will be four serving lines, and arrangements have been made to serve the expected 1600 persons by 7 p.m. During the meal George Ceiga will play the organ and lead group singing.

Following the dinner there will be awarding of scholarships and other prizes, a series of games, entertainment skits, and singing. Three hundred and twenty prizes will be given to the winners of bingo. Master of ceremonies for the evening is Edgar Fehnel, a fifth semester agriculture major. Square dancing will begin at 9 p.m. to the music of Joe Corrado and his orchestra.

Cabinet Approves Vacation Proposal

The Original Passion Players

DOMINIC LANDRO and John Aniston, as First Beard and Second Beard, tell Oscar Jaffe about their passion play in the opening performance of Players' "Twentieth Century." The Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur farce plays tonight and tomorrow night at Schwab Auditorium. Tickets are on sale for $1 at the Student Union desk in Old Main.

'20th' Creeps to N Y As Sarachek Stars

By BETTIE LOUX

The "Twentieth Century" streamliner left Schwab Auditorium for New York last night with a passenger list of 22 Players. It was a slow journey—in fact, the train almost broke down several times—but after 2½ hours it crept into Grand Central Station.

A small first-night audience didn't seem to mind, however, and was right with the limited when it finally pulled in.

The local group's production of the Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur farce, anticipated by many because of the play's novelty and potentialities—it has been successful both on Broadway and in the movies—is a disappointment when compared to the high caliber work of last year and the current Center Stage production.

With the exception of Morris Sarachek in particular, who does a splendid job with the rich role of producer Oscar Jaffe, and a few other Players' standbys in minor roles, the cast is marked by just plain amateurism—the result of inexperience. This is not to be sneered at, but rather to be remedied, if possible, and otherwise avoided.

Sound, Lighting Effective

Young talent might better be first tried out in Five O'clock Theater or in a small role than in the feminine lead, at the expense of both the other actors and playgoers.

The play is helped along by good work on the part of the sound and lighting crews, who have produced unusual effects to give a feeling of motion to the "train." The set has been built so that action going on simultaneously in the three compartments of car 186 may be seen from all sides of the auditorium. Because one compartment is usually spotlighted the action is complementary rather than confusing. Costumes are also good.

Strange Characters Abound

The play itself, built around comical situations, and incredulous characters, finds Jaffe badly in need of a hit play, a star, and money with which to produce it. The crafty producer manages to get the compartment next to his former mistress, successful actress Lily Garland, but his ef-

Action Delayed On New AIM Review Board

The proposed Association of Independent Men Judicial Board of Review, which received preliminary approval by the AIM Board of Governors Wednesday night, must be passed as an amendment to the AIM constitution and will probably not be formed until spring, William Shifflett, AIM president, said yesterday.

It is expected that the proposal will be discussed at the coming meetings of the four AIM councils and will be voted on at the Board of Governors' meeting Nov. 19. Two-thirds of the member councils must approve a constitutional amendment; that is, it must be passed by three of the four councils.

The board is not expected to be formed until after the election of new AIM officers late in the spring. It will take until the end of this semester or the beginning of the next until all details of the Judicial Board's setup are completed.

The first chairman of the Judicial Board will be appointed by the Board of Governors in the spring, according to present plans. The remainder of the board will consist of two members from each of the member councils.

Morgen to Speak

Ralph Morgen of the National Science Foundation will speak at the Engineering 2 lecture today in 110 Electrical Engineering.

Nov. 22 Grid Holiday Also Recommended

By MARSHALL O. DONLEY

A proposal that could result in a lengthened Thanksgiving vacation and a shortened Christmas vacation for students was approved by All-College Cabinet last night.

Arthur Rosfeld, president of Interfraternity Council, moved that cabinet approve a proposal which would add a day and one-half to the Thanksgiving vacation—the Monday and Tuesday before the vacation—and subtract this time from the end of Christmas vacation.

To Go Before Council

Rosfeld's proposal followed cabinet's approval of a motion by Jane Mason, Home Economics Student Council president, that classes on Nov. 22, the day of the Pitt-Penn State football game, be canceled if the football team wins its next two games.

Both Miss Mason's motion and Rosfeld's ask that cabinet recommend these actions to the College's Council of Administration.

As the College calendar now stands, Thanksgiving vacation would begin at 1:10 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 25. Christmas vacation would begin at 1:10 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 20 and end at 1:10 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 6.

ISCB Suggested Plan

The approved cabinet proposal would subtract all-day Monday and Tuesday morning classes from the beginning of Thanksgiving vacation and add all-day Monday and Tuesday morning classes at the end of Christmas vacation.

The Council of Administration will receive the motions in letter from cabinet.

Miss Mason's motion resulted from suggestions of the Inter-school Council Board, of which she is a member.

Cabinet also approved a recommendation made by David Pellnitz, president of the Board of Publications, that a plan of joint support for the College radio station be sought from student government and the College.

Indicated Split

The recommendation included the proposal that the President's committee on the radio station be asked to consider the joint support plan and develop a method of carrying it out.

Pellnitz indicated a one-third, two-thirds split of the support was probable, with the College offering the larger amount.

The report of the cabinet radio committee, offered earlier on the agenda by Chairman Emory Richardson, showed this would mean a cost of $2000 to student government and $4000 to the College per annum.

Richardson also reported about (Continued on page three)

PSC to Share Room Facilities

The Penn State Club voted Tuesday night to allow Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, to share its club room in Old Main. The club agreed to let the fraternity use its desk space and some filing cabinet facilities. The group will not be permitted to hold its meetings there, however.

The club also authorized a committee to purchase a new record player and records for the club room.

A theater party, originally planned for Saturday night, has been canceled. The club had planned to attend Players' "Twentieth Century."

County Court Puts Wolfe on Parole

A 22-year-old former student, William R. Wolfe, was released on parole by the Centre County Court in Bellefonte Monday. Wolfe had been fined and sentenced to 30 days in jail on charges of showing obscene movies in a College fraternity house.

Lion, State 'Vote' Signs Begin Political Campaign

The political campaigns of both Lion and State Parties got off to a start early yesterday when members of both parties posted "Vote State" and "Vote Lion" signs throughout the campus and downtown area.

Posters were also distributed to fraternities by both parties. Sophomore candidates began their canvassing of fraternities yesterday, urging the men at house lunches to vote for their party. Both Lion and State parties have announced plans to visit every house during the campaign. Freshman candidates will not visit fraternities, because no freshmen are allowed to live in them at the College. Freshmen candidates are canvassing the dormitory areas.

Last night the men candidates of Lion Party—Richard Mercer and James Bowers, presidential candidates, and William Brill and Philip Lang, vice presidential candidates—toured the Pollock Circle living area, going from room to room meeting prospective voters.

The woman candidates of both parties visited the women's dining halls yesterday. The candidates are Lion Party's Nancy Scofield and Barbara Bransdorf, sophomore and freshman candidates for secretary-treasurer, and State Party's Marcia Phillips and Ann Lederman, sophomore and freshman candidates for the same posts.

Candidates of both parties will continue their tours of fraternities at noon today.

(Continued on page eight)

TODAY'S WEATHER

COLDER
WITH SNOW
FLURRIES

