

Cinderella Provides Junior Prom Theme

By MIMI UNGAR

"Cinderella, Cinderella, all I hear is Cinderella—night and day, it's Cinderella." These are words put to music about that famous fairy tale character, Cinderella. And beginning today, it won't be surprising if you hear about Cinderella "night and day from the attic to the cellar."

It often appears that popular stories read in childhood become the basis for future ideas. This is what happened when the Junior Prom committee chose the "Cinderella Ball" for the theme of the Junior Prom.

In case you have forgotten the story of poor Cinderella, she was forced to live with a step-mother following her mother's and father's death. Her two step-sisters were the queens of the household, while Cinderella served as maid.

Cinderella Transformed

The King of the country decided to hold a ball for his son, the Prince, and the maids of the kingdom were to be presented. Cinderella wanted to go to the ball, but her step-mother prevented it. Her desire mounted as she watched her two step-sisters prepare for the ball.

At this point in the story, Cinderella's fairy godmother appeared and changed Cinderella from her tattered maid's clothing into a lovely maid with whom the prince was soon to fall in love. Cinderella could go to the ball on the condition that she would return by midnight.

Cinderella's fairy godmother provided transportation for the ball by turning a pumpkin into a carriage. At the ball, the Prince danced with Cinderella, and, according to the tale, began to fall in love with her. Cinderella hadn't been watching the time, and found that she had to run to get home on time. But she was too late, and as she ran down the steps of the palace, she was turned back into the house maid of a few hours before.

Slipper Fits Cinderella

However, one of her glass slippers was found by the Prince. After a search through the kingdom, it was found that the slipper fit Cinderella's foot—and she and the Prince lived happily ever after.

The juniors have been centering much of their publicity and promotional work around this story. Today, at a booth in front of the Carnegie Hall bulletin board, students will try to guess how many pumpkin seeds are in a slipper. The persons or persons who are successful will receive a free ticket to the Cinderella Ball. Although the junior coed who

They really have a technique, these housing people. Who else would work so hard to switch the sheets, and get us off to class at the same time? And it all comes in the fees . . . no tipping allowed.

So think twice before okaying these proposals, West Dorm Council. A plan to do away with a student service should be talked up, considered, and then turned down or approved. Thus a logical, democratic solution can be realized.

Or can it be that the late sleepers on the council who want afternoon distribution realize the convenience of this service and desire the maids to call them for three and four o'clocks?
