

Teachers Study U. S. Procedures

Twenty-four educators from 14 foreign countries are studying vocational and industrial education at the College this fall.

The teachers are part of 500 students and professional workers from other countries enrolled in American colleges this fall. Of that number, those interested in vocational education were assigned to Penn State.

Career Talks Are Scheduled By LA Council

The Liberal Arts Student Council last night made final plans for the first two speeches in a series to explain vocational opportunities to the student body.

Philip Greenberg, chairman of the speech committee, announced Arthur W. Einstein, associate professor of marketing and retailing, will speak on retailing Dec. 4 and David H. McKinley, associate professor of finance, will speak on Money and Banking Jan. 8.

The council again defeated the Recreation Hall seating plan proposed by Ernest B. McCoy, dean of the School of Physical Education, allotting 300 seats in Recreation Hall to faculty, townspeople, and alumni. The council also voted against the plan at the Oct. 20 meeting.

Greenberg was named editor of the LA Angles to replace William Slepik who resigned because of being overburdened with other activities. The Angles is a newsletter published by the council to inform Liberal Arts students about the council and school activities groups within the school, and outstanding students and faculty members.

Lenore Kahanowitz, Betty Koster, Ann Lederman, Eliza Newell, Katharine Reynolds, and Donna Symmonds will aid Greenberg.

The council asked Douglas Schoerke, president, to protest to Ben Euwema, dean of the school, the excessive number of blue-books scheduled Monday and Tuesday apparently to prevent student's from cutting classes between the Pitt football game and Thanksgiving.

Services Give News of Grads

Information concerning four graduates now serving in the Armed Forces has been received.

Airman Second Class Paul Poorman, '52, recently finished editing the text of a new Air Force education booklet, "Horizons Unlimited." The booklet describes opportunities open to members of the 32d Air Division where Poorman is stationed as an information specialist with the Personnel Service office.

Also in the Air Force is Irvin Hoehner, who majored in electrical engineering. He has completed a year of training as an aviation cadet and has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Force Reserve.

Pvt. Loren Baylor has been assigned to the Transportation Corps Replacement Training Center, Fort Eustis, Va., where he will receive 16 weeks basic training.

Second Lieutenant Guy Fissel has been assigned the duty of post signal property officer at the Post Signal office in Fort Monroe, Virginia. A 1951 graduate, Fissel took part in dramatics and was a member of Pershing Rifles, honorary drill unit of the ROTC.

'Who's in the News' Applications Due

Today is the deadline for mailing in applications for Who's in the News at Penn State, a booklet designed to recognize students outstanding in extracurricular activities.

Who's in the News at Penn State is sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalistic fraternity, and Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism fraternity.

228 to Take Deferment Examination

Two hundred twenty-eight students will take the Selective Service college qualifications test the morning of Dec. 4 in 121 Sparks.

Students must have admission tickets and any Selective Service form with their SS number and address (preferably their registration card) to be admitted to the test. They are expected to report at 8:30 a.m., Prof. Hugh M. Davison, who conducts the examinations, said.

Students missing classes to take the test may obtain excuses Dec. 5 in the Dean of Men's office.

Examinees will need a pencil or a pen to fill out forms. Electro-graphic pencils will be distributed for marking the test forms. No books, notes, or other aids will be allowed in the testing room.

The test will start at approximately 9 a.m., and the session is expected to be dismissed about 12:30 p.m. Students taking the test will be fingerprinted to prevent any unauthorized person from taking the test.

William E. Cobb, instructor in education, and Ray V. Watkins, scheduling officer, will assist Davison in administering the tests.

Student Hits Fireplug

Charles McClintock, fourth semester petroleum and natural gas engineering major, damaged his car Sunday when he drove it into a fireplug at S. Garner street and E. Foster avenue.

McClintock's visibility was cut by fog. Damage to the car was estimated at $75.
