

Prof Recalls Role In Psych Warfare

By BILL SNYDER

The Chinese soldier who stumbled onto a bundle of North Korean 100-won notes while fighting in Korea thought he was rich. But he wasn't.

The notes were simply disguised psychological-warfare leaflets issued by the UN's Psychological Warfare Division, with which Vernon V. Aspaturian, assistant professor of political science, worked for six months recently.

Local Church Will Install Student Pastor

The Rev. Fred P. Knieriem will be installed as minister to students of the Evangelical and Reformed and Congregational-Christian churches in a special service at 7:30 tonight in the Faith Reformed Church.

Dr. Charles D. Spotts, head of the Franklin and Marshall College Religion department, who represents the intersynodical student work committee, will preach the sermon. The Rev. Harry C. Carolus of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed Church, Bellefonte, and secretary of the Central Pennsylvania Synod, will preside over the installation ceremony.

A reception for the Rev. Mr. Knieriem and visiting ministers will be held after the service.

The Rev. Mr. Fred Knieriem, a graduate of Ursinus College and the Lancaster Evangelical and Reformed Church Seminary, received his S.T.M. degree from Harvard Divinity School. He has served as pastor of Christ Church, Allentown, and as assistant pastor of Zion Church, South Bend, Ind. He has ministered regularly as counselor in the summer camps of the denomination.

45 Students Attend Workshop Meeting

Approximately 45 students attended the organizational meeting of the Penn State Christian Association workshops Wednesday night.

Student leaders of the workshops outlined the purposes, stressing that programming would be done by the members themselves.

Groups include international affairs, music, art, drama, news, "gripes and grins," and worship. Students may still sign up for workshops in 304 Old Main, Mary Jane Wyland, program coordinator of PSCA, said. The first regular meeting of the groups will be held Dec. 10.

Harvest Ball Entries Due Tuesday

Entries for the Harvest Ball Queen contest may be submitted at the Student Union desk in Old Main until Tuesday, according to James DeVoe and Edgar Fehnel, co-chairmen of the dance.

Any coed may be sponsored by a College organization, fraternity, or sorority, Fehnel said. Portraits must be 8 by 10 inches.

Louis Bell, director of public information; Ridge Riley, alumni executive secretary; and Lyman Jackson, dean of the School of Agriculture, will choose three finalists over the Thanksgiving vacation.

The queen will be chosen at the dance by applause. She will receive an engraved trophy, and the two runners-up will be given engraved cups.

Dance tickets, priced at $2, are on sale at the SU desk. The semi-formal dance will be held Dec. 5 in Recreation Hall.

Principal's Office Used to 'Intern' Ed Grad Students

The grammar school principal's office, that hallowed spot where we were sent when deserving punishment or praise, is being used by the College to help educate graduate students in educational administration.

"These educational 'interns,'" explains Dr. Orris H. Aurand, professor of education and director of the internship program, "like to share the responsibilities of men who are successful in their field, and so favorable is the response of the administrators themselves that we can't supply them with the number of interns they ask for."

The students become the right-hand men of the supervising principals or superintendents in the Pennsylvania area they're working with. They conduct faculty meetings, study school organization, arrange teacher conferences, and learn generally how to run a school.

BEAT PITT!

Through the Looking Glass

with Gabbi

Jingle bells, jingle bells, jingle all the way—Oh what fun it is to shop—it's ETHELS "all the way!"

"Santa Suggests" . . .

Ever read the evening papers a few weeks before Xmas? Everyone's always telling you to "rush" down and shop for last-minute gifts. What I'd like to know is, "Why RUSH around when you can do it in your leisure time?" (at Ethel's, of course!)

Feeling Blue? Get a "Lift" . . .

Take me, for example. (no comments, please!) I was feeling mighty blue the other day (rain and all, you know) and I just happened to be passing Ethel's. Believe me, if it's a "lift" you want—take a "peep" into Ethel's window. But, better yet, walk in and look around. She has oodles and oodles of things to look at. Why, you can barely keep your hands off all those fabulous things.

From soup to NUTS . . .

Yes, Ethel has everything from "soup to nuts." (Here's a little secret—she's going to have a BRAND NEW "Gourmet" center, opening next week!) There are evening bags for you girls that are really "lush." And, the NEWEST thing is red velvet! For just $2.95, any one of the many styles is yours. (also come in navy and black velvet—with faille). If you're the "traveling" kind—you'll surely want to boast an overnite suitcase. And Ethel has these, too. Made of VINYL plastic, it won't scuff, crack, or stain . . . has a zipper closing and a waterproof lining! Comes in 5 glorious colors—just $9.95.

Just $1.00 . . .

is needed if you'd like to treat your roommate to a little gift. So, why not buy him (or her) a bean-bag ashtray? And Mom'll just adore you if you select a few individual pottery casseroles for her (just $1.00 each).

But—I've said enough already. So, why don't you go down to Ethel's today? Look around. Tell her Gabbi sent you!
