

Chapel Committee Hears Silliman Projects Report

A report on two short-term projects at Silliman University in the Philippine Islands to which part of the Chapel offering may be contributed was given at a meeting of the Chapel offering committee Tuesday.

Leopoldo Ruiz, who will become president of Silliman University April 1, has been invited to visit the College next Thursday. Ruiz is presently consul general of the Philippines in Chicago.

Silliman University, whose president Dr. Eugene Carson and Department of Agriculture head Boyd Bell are both alumni of the College, was one of three projects suggested which would carry on the precedent of international contact set by the Penn State-in-China project.

Propose Extension Projects

For nearly 40 years, until the Communists took over China, the Chapel offering was contributed toward work at Lingnan University, Canton, China. Since the Communists refuse to allow the money to enter the country, the project has been abandoned.

The projects proposed at Silliman University would be community extension projects, as having a member of the Silliman faculty study at the College for a time, for example.

Three suggestions have also been proposed for local projects. They are the building of an International House at the College, the building of a meditation chapel, and the turning over of the offering to be used to supplement the

WRA Plans Annual Children's Party

Santa Claus will visit White Hall tomorrow afternoon when 66 underprivileged children from Patton Township are entertained at the annual Christmas party given by Women's Recreation Association.

The first and second graders will arrive at 1 p.m. for the two-hour party. After seeing three cartoon movies, they are to be instructed in games by the physical education 125 class. Santa Claus, impersonated by Harold B. White, professor of physical education, will bring a sack of gifts for the young guests, and the party will be completed with refreshments of ice cream, cookies, pop corn balls, and candy canes.

Loux - Lu

(Continued from page four) a "Hunter's Dinner" at the noon meal, no less, and as can be expected, 11:40 a.m. was awaited with anticipation. Now, Simmons coeds are pretty well versed in Food Service jargon and know that a "Surprise Salad" means a clean refrigerator, "Ambrosia" means coconut, etc. But the "Hunter's Dinner" was a new one on us.

While we waited for the dining hall doors to open, bets were flying thick and fast. It was easy to tell the underclassmen—the transfers, who are not yet familiar with the Food Service's sense of humor. They seemed to believe the mysterious hunter had been successful, and naively laid their bets on some variety of rabbit stew, roast venison, squirrel, or pheasant.

It was easy to tell the cynics, who snarled that all the hunters they ever knew had lived on K rations, and we were undoubtedly doing the same. One super-cynic, who pictured a lost hunter keeping alive on berries, bark, and boot soup, was laughed down when she suggested the Food Service might have considered that an "economy dish."

After an eternity the doors finally opened. We dashed inside, still dreaming of coffee percolating over an outdoor fire, potatoes roasting in embers, frying trout fresh from the brook . . . a real feast for a sportsman . . .

When we got within hearing distance of the woman urging, "It's good—please take some," our illusions were shattered, however.

Whatever hunter it was that dreamed up this "dinner" was a much too civilized rascal. He apparently carried a can of spaghetti with him wherever he went . . . broke into farms and took off with corn and lima beans . . . and shot a pig (probably in the back) and roasted it. Then he combined all four foods and called it a "Hunter's Dinner" . . .

No, no, he couldn't have. Even the basest of hunters would have considered it an insult to the noble sport. But then, no one has the originality, imagination, and sense of humor of our favorite white-uniformed employee, the menu-maker.

Theta Chi 'Dream Girl'

LYNN TWOMEY receives an engraved loving cup from Richard Johnson, president of Theta Chi, as he names her 'Dream Girl' of the fraternity at the chapter's annual Christmas formal last Saturday. The fraternity presented Miss Twomey, fifth semester medical sociology major, two dozen red carnations, the fraternity flower.

SX, Thetas To Entertain Area Orphans

Sigma Chi and Kappa Alpha Theta will entertain orphans from the State College area at a Christmas party 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday at the fraternity house.

The party, sponsored jointly by the fraternity and sorority, will feature Phil Wein, a ventriloquist, and his "buddy" Sylvester Pine, whom Thespian-goers will remember from "Don't Stop Now" as well as "Junior Varieties."

Santa will be represented by Walter Redel, Sigma Chi, who will distribute toys and clothing from the "Mitten Tree."

Madeleine Sharp, Kappa Alpha Theta, will tell the children about "The Littlest Angel." Other entertainment planned is the technicolor movie "Jack and the Beanstalk" and a cartoon.

Lunch will be served to the children. Both Greek groups will decorate the Christmas tree tomorrow before the Alfred game.
