

Campus Chest Solicitors To Begin Town Drive

Campus Chest solicitors for a concentrated "clean up" drive in the town area tomorrow will receive instructions and International Business Machine cards at 7 tonight in 10 Sparks, according to Joseph Haines, acting drive chairman.

Haines said about ten men from each of seven campus organizations will assist in the solicitations. The groups are Alpha Phi Omega, service fraternity, Penn State Christian Association, Druids, Androcles, Blue Key, Skull and Bones hat societies, and Interfraternity Council. He said students interested in soliciting chest contributions as well as students contacted before the Christmas vacation should attend the meeting.

The solicitors will be expected to contact ten or 15 students in town tomorrow, Haines said.

The drive tomorrow is a final attempt to raise the total of contributions, which are lagging behind last year's returns. He said students this year are not contributing as much as last year or not contributing at all. Haines said more students have been contacted this year and pointed out that last year only 3933 IBM cards were returned, while this year 4300 cards have been returned. Cards for the drive this year must be returned by the end of the semester, he said.

The last available figures indicate that this year's drive collected $7804.14 of the $12,000 goal. Last year's drive collected 99 per cent of the $12,000 goal.

Friday Set For Reopening Of 'Barbara'

Players production of George Bernard Shaw's comedy "Major Barbara" will start the second weekend of its six week run at 8 p.m. Friday at Center Stage, on Hamilton avenue west of Allen street.

Daily Collegian Reviewer Bettie Loux reported the packed opening night audience was put in stitches by Shaw's satire which attacks the fallacy of preaching to, or helping the poor simply because they are poor.

"The only chance for individual salvation lies in the cleansing of society as a whole," Shaw says, "rather than by bribing conversations out of the poor with crusts of bread." Miss Loux pointed out.

Poverty is called the greatest of evils and the worst of crimes by Andrew Undershaft, munitions maker, portrayed by Richard Andersen.

His daughter Barbara, who becomes a major in the Salvation Army, is played by April Heinsohn. Undershaft's estranged wife, Lady Britomart, is played by Marcia Yoffe. Myron Cole enacts the role of Adolphus Cusins, Barbara's fiance. Stephen, Undershaft's son, is portrayed by Jack Kutz. His sister Sarah is played by Ruth Fitz, and her fiance, Charles Lomax, is portrayed by Dick Jervis.

Fran Stridinger is the commissioner at the Salvation Army station. Nancy May plays Rummy Mitchens, Norman Alpert, Snobby Price, and Ed Sheasky, Bill Walker.

Prexy Attends Federal Gov't Committee Meeting

President Milton S. Eisenhower attended a meeting Saturday with his brother, President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower, and two members of the committee recently named to recommend streamlining the executive branch of the Federal government. The meeting was held at Columbia University.

Nelson A. Rockefeller, chairman of the committee, the Prexy, and Dr. Arthur Fleming, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, conferred with Eisenhower. The conferees were joined by Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire, named an assistant to the President; and Emmet Hughes, named an administrative assistant to the President.

According to a report in the New York Herald-Tribune, Chairman Rockefeller said, "We discussed a number of issues pertaining to government reorganization. There are no details, and any details that may be made public would have to come from General Eisenhower."

James C. Hagerly, the President-elect's press secretary, reportedly said the meeting was held to give the committee opportunity to make "a continuing report" on its progress.

The Prexy could not be reached for a statement late yesterday afternoon.
