Eisenhower Urges Health Education

President Milton S. Eisenhower last night called for a great network of adult health education to inform American people in all phases of health protection and to educate them in the intelligent use of professional medical service. He was one of the guest speakers at the 1953 Inaugural Heart dinner in New York.

The President said the work of voluntary health organizations is the nearest substitute for such a program. He emphasized that these organizations have two indispensable, interrelated functions—education and fund-raising.

Scholarship Fund Drive Nets $227

Three recent contributions totaling $65 have brought the total of the Penn State Student Scholarship Fund drive to $227.09 since the drive began in early December.

The new contributions were $50 from Panhellenic Council, $10 from the Electrical Engineering Society, and $5 from the Mining Engineering Society.

William Hay, student chairman of the drive, announced that the campaign will continue indefinitely. Student groups have been sent letters asking for contributions.

The Penn State Student Scholarship Fund, a student-supported fund set up by All-College Cabinet, distributes stipends to students who must work to pay their College expenses. The working fund (money on hand which is not accumulating interest) now totals $77, Hay said. The working fund is used as the supply of funds for the stipends.

Some $25 or $50 scholarships will be given this spring, Hay said, varying in number and size according to the success of the current drive.

The fund has a $3100 principle at the present time, Hay announced. Of this, $1819.32 was received from Spring Carnival money last year.

The student scholarship fund is not a recipient in the Campus Chest, but plans are being made to request its inclusion next year. The scholarship fund in the chest drive is the Penn State Scholarship Fund, an athletic fund.

Prof, Student Cars Collide on Campus

An automobile driven by William W. Hamilton, assistant professor of speech, skidded on Curtin road yesterday into a car driven by Chester James, second semester agriculture major.

Damage estimated at $319 was done to James' car and approximately $100 to Hamilton's car, the Campus Patrol said. Hamilton was driving west on Curtin road, just east of the Horticulture Building, when his car skidded and struck the left side of James' automobile, travelling east on the road. No one was injured.

Princeton Archaeologist Will Speak Monday

Dr. Homer Thompson, professor of classical archaeology of the Institute of Advanced Studies, Princeton, N.J., will speak at an open meeting at 11 a.m. Monday in 121 Sparks.

Dr. Thompson was chief of the American Dig at the Ancient Agora in Athens and is one of America's leading archaeologists.

Educational TV Courses Scheduled

A combined workshop utilizing courses in television in education and speech will be started at the College June 29, according to Dr. Abram W. VanderMeer, associate professor of education.

The courses will include instruction in television production and speech and will consider the role of television as it concerns educational uses. Dr. VanderMeer said the course will offer six semester hours credit.

Leon C. Hood, editor of Listenables and Lookables, a bi-weekly magazine covering the area of educational television, will be one of the leaders in the courses.

Dr. VanderMeer said the workshop is designed to offer instruction in the production of educational television in a broader sense rather than those programs which would be used only in the classroom.

Dr. Harold E. Nelson, assistant professor of speech, will work on the workshop course with Dr. VanderMeer. Dr. Nelson said the workshop will assist teachers who may be called upon at home to help set up educational television programs.

Penn State Engineer To Go on Sale Monday

The Penn State Engineer will be on sale Monday at the Corper Room and the Student Union desk in Old Main.

The Engineer will feature Nancy Knoizen, a first-semester home economics major, as its January sweetheart. "Your College Town Becomes a City" and "The Main Line of the Pennsylvania State Canal System" will be included in the magazine's articles. The photo page and other features will complete its contents.

College Given Sewage Plan

A possible joint College-borough sewage plan has been presented to College officials for study and consideration, according to E. K. Hibshman, borough Burgess.

The present plan, passed by the borough council, includes suggestions from both the borough council and College in addition to recommendations by consulting engineers. The persons involved reached no definite conclusions on solving the joint sewage problem, Hibshman said. A sewage plan has been under discussion for six years.

WMAD, Guild Station, To Broadcast Monday

Everything from soap operas to Space Cadet, with a ghost or two thrown in for good measure, will comprise the radio fare of station WMAD, the hypothetical Radio Day 1120-Kilocycle station over which a typical day in a regular radio station will be simulated Monday.

This third Penn State Radio Day, which will "broadcast" from 7 a.m. to midnight Monday, is sponsored by the Radio Guild and the Departments of Speech, Drama, and Journalism. WMAD shows will be heard only through speakers in 304 and 307 Sparks, necessitating additional ingenuity in such shows as Telephone Quiz (11:15 a.m.), directed by Barton Bass.

Every type of musical mania, from Brahms to bebop, will be offered, in addition to plenty of news. "Housewives Party" (10 a.m.) and "The Fashion Whirl" (2:45 p.m.) will cater to the interest feminine. "Adventures in Science" (2:30 p.m.) and "Rod and Gun Club" (7:15 p.m.) for the men, and "Kid's Club" (4:45 p.m.) and "Space Cadet" (5 p.m.) for the kiddies and the young in heart will be heard.

Sports (6:15 p.m.) will be handled by Don Barry and Jake Highton, Daily Collegian sports editor. A late "Breakfast with Don and Beck" (9 a.m.) will be directed by Marian Brodbeck. A Poole's Paradise-type show, "Variety House" (11:30 p.m.), will be directed by LaRue Fritz. Patrick Runco will conduct the wits taster

Walter H. Judd
Speaking to Forum

Stresses Need For Stability, Leadership

By CHIZ MATHIAS

China holds the key to the situation in the Far East, Dr. Walter H. Judd told a Community Forum audience last night in Schwab Auditorium.

Judd held his audience spellbound as he blasted away at the present administration's Far Eastern foreign policy, stating that the struggle for world order must begin with a tighter safeguard of United States. Our foreign policy in Asia and Europe today has failed because the people at home refuse to face facts and build up false allusions, the Minnesota Congressman said.

The United States is engaged in a war with the Kremlin, Judd said. We are no longer a spectator but one of the teams locked in mortal combat to dominate the world and the world's ideas.

Outlines Program

The way to peace is not through rearmament, in which we build up our enemies and tear down our own strength and the strength of our allies. We must find the means to prevent further conquest and train the peoples of other oppressed countries to defend their own soil.

Judd outlined the four ways in which peace could be restored:

1. The American people must wake up to the fact that there is a war on.

2. We must utilize our military strength to the greatest advantage of the free peoples of the earth and hit the line of Soviet aggression where they can not strike back.

Wants Underground In China

3. The people of Asia must be trained to defend their own countries. Russia turned the peaceful farmers of North Korea into military fanatics in seven months, Judd said. We must train the farmers of South Korea to be self-efficient soldiers.

4. We must patch up the holes in the countries which are Communist dominated. Judd advocated the organization of a strong underground in China to stir up resistance to Soviet rule.

Russia will not declare an outright war because she fears our power at the present time, Judd declared. She fears our strength in Europe and the power of the atomic bomb. The Soviet military machine would be in a position to take the first battle but could not win the final victory, Judd said. Nevertheless, the United States is the target of Soviet conquest with China being the first step toward the goal, Judd said.

The Congressman blamed the Korean war on mistakes made at the Quebec conference in 1943. Russia emerged from the war as the greatest power in Europe and all efforts were made to retain friendly efforts with her even when it meant sacrificing the

Enrollment Group Signup Extended

Students who did not have the opportunity during the week to sign up with the student enrollment committee may do so today by calling town 3411 from 1 to 5 p.m. Andrew McNeillie, chairman of the committee, has announced.

Approximately 90 students have already registered to return to their high schools between semesters to discuss student life and give general information concerning the College to high school seniors.

WMAJ to Air Chapel Service At 11 Tomorrow

Chapel services to be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow will be broadcast over WMAJ.

The Rev. Luther H. Harshbarger, who came to Penn State in August 1949 as executive secretary of the PSCA and was appointed chaplain in September, 1951, will speak on "What Have You in View?"

David R. Mackey, professor of speech, will be the announcer, and W. David Lewis, graduate assistant in history, will assist in the service.

Last summer Harshbarger directed a group of students for the National Student Council of the YMCA and YWCA European Study Seminar and traveled to Europe visiting England, France, Italy, Germany, Yugoslavia, and Switzerland.

The Chapel Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Willa C. Taylor, will sing "Light of Light" (Ahle) and "O Thou the Central Orb" (Gibbons).

Coed Recreation Periods Continue Tomorrow Night

Rubber-soled shoes will be the order of the evening Sunday in Recreation Hall for men and women students who attend the coeducational recreation period to be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Men and women who visit Rec Hall will find facilities for badminton, shuffleboard, volleyball, card games, and similar activities. Also part of the program—and described as "very popular"—is a game called miniature soccer.

Ray Conger, a member of the phys ed staff who directs some of the co-recreation, explained that the soccer game was played by two persons on a wooden board with handles that move little men and a miniature soccer ball.

New Editors Named For Ag Hill Breeze

Robert Dahle, fifth semester agricultural economics major, has been elected editor of the Ag Hill Breeze for the spring semester.

Other staff members recently named include Guy Johnson, managing editor; George Williams, feature editor; and John Robinson, club editor.
