

Investigate Well
Radio Station—
See Page 4

The Daily Collegian

March of Dimes
Worthy Cause—
See Page 4

FOR A BETTER PENN STATE

Vol. 53, No. 72

STATE COLLEGE, PA., WEDNESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 14, 1953

FIVE CENTS

SU Construction

ABOVE IS ONE of two bulldozers now engaged in leveling and moving earth at the site of the new Student Union building on Holmes field.

Ed Council Reviews Teachers' Expenses

Education Student Council last night heard reports concerning prices charged women student teachers who return to the College for weekend visits and concerning the room assignments for these student teachers. Specific recommendations will be made from this and further information at the next council meeting.

Some of the facts are that women student teachers may not return to campus unless they stay in the dormitories. They are charged $1.50 per night, have no dining facilities, and sometimes do not receive clean linen.

Although room and board charges are cut in half for these students, they must pay the full athletic and incidental charges for the semester. To take advantage of these costs they must return to the campus.

Concerning room assignments, sorority women may not stay in their suites the semester they are to student teach. This is a disadvantage to eighth semester women. Women living in a double room must pay extra cost for a single room and have no access to the closet or dresser not in use.

Dr. James H. Moyer, assistant professor of education and adviser to the council, suggested that there is partly an administrative scheduling problem since no secondary education students do their practice teaching the last half of the semester.

Students interested in presenting further information concerning these problems are requested by Harry Shank, acting president, to attend the next council meeting at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 3, in 108 Willard.

Shank announced that students who wish to make recommendations for the annual Outstanding Senior in Education award may do so in 105 Burrowes from Thursday on. Ralph Egolf won the award last year.

Dorothy Swanson, chairman of the faculty evaluation committee, said that each faculty member in

(Continued on page eight)

Parking Plan Effective Today

In an effort to ease traffic congestion on Beaver avenue from Pugh street to Atherton street, the State College Borough Council has adopted a new parking plan which goes into effect today. The southside of Beaver avenue will no longer be available for parking. However, the parking meters that were taken from Beaver avenue will be placed on the west side of S. Allen and S. Frazier streets in order to provide the same amount of parking space.

Cabinet Approval Seen For Student Radio Fee

All-College Cabinet is expected to approve student financial support of a campus radio station when it meets tomorrow night.

John Laubach, All-College President, said yesterday he anticipates no opposition to a motion which will be presented asking for the financing. However, it may be a number of weeks before complete approval of the student support is obtained, Laubach added.

The All-College constitution requires that matters of finance be approved by two-thirds of cabinet at two meetings. The next meeting of cabinet after this week will be the first week of February.

Debate Meet Scheduled Here Today

The men's debate squad will host teams from Bucknell University and Dickinson College at 4 p.m. today at the College in the first Triangular Forensic Meet.

Benjamin Sinclair and David Swanson will represent the College on an affirmative team against Dickinson in 128 Sparks. Thomas Farrell will act as chairman for the debate and Nick Stamateris as timekeeper.

Debating negatively, Meyer Bushman and Thomas K. White will meet a squad from Bucknell in 200 Carnegie. Ernest Schonberger will serve as chairman and Joseph Obester as timekeeper.

Both debates will center around the national intercollegiate topic, Resolved: that the Congress of the United States should enact a compulsory fair employment practices law.

Discrimination in employment will be discussed by the three schools in a symposium-type discussion at 7:30 tonight in 316 Sparks. Each speaker will present a seven-minute speech on the employment topic. A question-and-answer period will follow the talks, after which an open forum will be held with audience participation.

Members of the debate squad on the panel are Charles Basch, Richard Kirschner, and Louis Martini. Joseph F. O'Brien, professor of public speaking and men's debate coach, will preside. Timekeeper will be Carl Saperstein.

Co-Authors Book

Dr. E-Tu-Zen, lecturer in Far Eastern history at the College, is co-author with John De Francis of "Bibliography on Chinese Social History," published last month by the Institute of Far Eastern Languages, Yale University.

Centennial Theme to Be College's Gains, Values

Centennial Year at the College, 1955, will have as its theme the presentation of the College's achievements and value to the state, according to C. S. Wyand, chairman of the centennial committee.

The programs during the year will stress both the value of Penn State in the future and its contributions in the past 100 years, he said. The program will also stress the ways the College can be of service in adjusting people to their future environments.

Most activities planned for the year will stress themes of popular understanding rather than technical or academic realms, Wyand said. This does not mean that such activities will be ignored, he said, but that they will be confined to the needs and interests of the people of the Commonwealth.

The major centennial event is planned for Feb. 22, 1955, the day just 100 years after the chartering of the College as Farmers' High School of Pennsylvania. Other theme ideas will be planned throughout the year in the hope of coordinating the centennial idea with other College activities.

Two committees have been named to plan centennial activities.

Emery Richardson, chairman of the cabinet radio committee, is expected to ask for approval for student support at tomorrow's meeting. It is not yet known whether Richardson will suggest a means of raising the money, but Laubach said the most likely method would be the assessment of 15 cents on the student fees each semester. This would raise the $3000 which is needed to pay half the yearly expenses of the station.

It was learned earlier this week that the College administration is considering paying the additional $3000 needed to provide a total of $6000 a year for support of the station.

Members of cabinet will expect a guarantee that the station would be expanded to reach students in fraternities and town houses, Laubach said. At present, equipment planned for use would cover at least half the students, those in the West Dormitories, Nittany-Pollock, and the three large women's halls.

If there is any delay in cabinet approval it will likely result from the lack of such a guarantee or in a dispute over who would control the station, Laubach said.

David R. Mackey, a member of President Milton S. Eisenhower's radio committee, said earlier this week that a number of plans have been suggested concerning control. Among these were a student-faculty board of control and other joint student-administration and student-faculty organizations.

Mackey said he plans to attend the cabinet meeting in order to answer any questions which may arise.

When and if cabinet gives its approval to student support of the station, notification of this approval would be sent to the Office of the President, through which the matter of administrative financial support would be handled.

Cabinet might pass a general approval of the support without mentioning a method of raising the fees, Laubach said, and wait upon action from the President's

(Continued on page eight)

College Staff Helps Direct Farm Show

William R. Gordon, professor of rural sociology extension, directed the Rural Talent Festival, "Susquehanna," which was presented last night in the Large Arena at the Pennsylvania Farm Show. James W. Dunlop, associate professor of music education, directed the Pennsylvania Future Farmer's Band, which played at the festival and other events.

Staff members of the School of Agriculture took part in programs for practically every farm organization meeting during the Farm Show.

Edwin J. Anderson, professor of apiculture, and W. William Clarke, Jr., extension apiculturist, spoke to the Pennsylvania State Beekeepers' Association. Members of the Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers' Association heard Dr. William C. Bramble, professor of forestry, and Walter W. Simonds, professor of forestry extension.

O. C. Tritt, Warren County agent was toastmaster at the Pennsylvania Holstein Association luncheon meeting.

The Pennsylvania Crop Improvement Association heard Dr. Herbert R. Albrecht, head of the Agronomy department, and Dr. R. Wallace Brewster, professor of political science.

Dean Lyman E. Jackson and James H. Eakin Jr., assistant professor of agronomy extension, spoke to the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association.

Extension specialists in charge of competitive agricultural exhibits were assisted by county home economics extension representatives. Extension personnel also assisted with newspaper, radio, and television coverage of the show and with the educational, 4-H Club, and special program activities.

McNeillie New SDX President

Andrew McNeillie, vice president of Sigma Delta Chi, men's national professional journalistic fraternity, will assume the duties of president next month upon the graduation of James Grumiller, retiring president.

Richard Rau was elected new vice president of the organization. Charles Obertance was appointed to investigate possibilities of continuing the annual practice of publishing a journalism placement bulletin for journalism graduates.

McNeillie will serve as a member of the committee on arrangements for a national awards dinner and ceremony of Sigma Delta Chi to be held Feb. 4 at the National Press Club in Washington, D.C.

Fraternity Rushing

Fraternity rushing procedures will be explained and discussed at a meeting of fraternity rushing chairmen at 6:30 tonight at Phi Gamma Delta, Arthur Rosfeld, Interfraternity Council president, has announced.

Reckless Driver Pleads Guilty Before Tribunal

A third semester D. I. R. student pleaded guilty to a reckless driving charge and was fined $4 by Tribunal last night with recommendations going to the Dean of Men's office that he be placed on probation and that his campus driving privileges be suspended for the remainder of the school year.

A report from Campus Patrol Captain Phillip A. Mark charged him with driving recklessly, failing to slacken speed while turning a corner, driving in the wrong direction on a one-way street, and turning off his car's headlights in an effort to avoid having his license number seen. Mark's report declared, "The operator... was driving in such a manner as to have no regard whatever for other users of the campus." The student pleaded guilty to all charges.

He was observed at 3:40 a.m. Dec. 17 by a campus night patrolman. He admitted having three other students in his car.

In other actions taken by Tribunal, two students were placed on two-week probation and were fined for incurring second offenses. Nine students guilty of first offenses were fined $1 each, and two received suspended $1 fines. A total of $18 was collected as 11 students received fines.

Three cases involving visitors to the campus were dismissed. Tribunal has jurisdiction over student violators only.

TODAY'S WEATHER

CLOUDY

