Mil Ball Ticket Sale Set for Feb. 4, 5, 6

The Military Ball committee announced yesterday that it will place 1000 tickets to the annual ROTC dance Feb. 27 on sale Feb. 4, 5, and 6 in the offices of the three branches. They may be purchased only by Army, Navy, and Air Force ROTC students.

Also announced by James Graef, head of promotion, were the rules for the Military Ball queen contest which is now open. The deadline for the entries has been set for Feb. 14.

Fur Samples Obtained for Lion Suit

Fur samples to be used in the new Lion suit have been received by Harold R. Gilbert, graduate manager of athletics.

The Lion's new outfit will be ordered as soon as the fur is selected, and delivery can be expected within 60 days.

Chenko Studio, New York, will design the $500 suit, Gilbert said. The present two-year-old suit was purchased for $400. Rising costs of material and labor are responsible for the increased price of the suit, Gilbert said.

Contributions for the suit amounting to $599.26 were collected this fall in a fund drive initiated by Alex Gregal, who portrayed the Lion during the football season.

All-College Cabinet passed a proposal in October establishing a permanent fund from which money for a new suit may be taken whenever needed.

Gilbert said Chenko guaranteed that the new suit will be a stronger and better job than the present one. In an effort to reproduce a typical Nittany Lion, Chenko read about mountain lions in the New York Library and visited the lions' cages in a New York zoo.

Chenko, who also has a studio in Hollywood, is the costume designer for Warner Brothers and Paramount movie studios, Radio City Music Hall, Billy Rose, Ziegfeld, Sonja Henie, the Ice Follies, and radio and television shows.

Union to List College Jobs

A classification and salary plan for service employees of the College is being established, according to Thomas Hartswick, treasurer of Local 67 of the State, County, and Municipal Employees Union, AFL.

The plan will list the various clerical, technical, and service jobs at the College, salary ranges, and a description of each job.

Hartswick said the plan was being set up so salaries for similar jobs will be the same throughout the College.

Salaries will be set by a three-man evaluation committee. Another committee, the classification review committee, consisting of four members, will be set up to answer questions concerning the plan for employees when the plan is in effect.

Exit Amphitryon!

JOLLY OSWALT, as the faithful Alkmene, prepares to send her husband Amphitryon, played by John Aniston, off to a war inspired by the mischievous Jupiter. The scene appears in Players' production of "Amphitryon 38" by S. N. Behrman which began a weekend run last night in Schwab Auditorium.

Freud, Satire Flavor Players' 'Amphitryon'

By CHIZ MATHIAS

Freud satirized in the folklore of ancient Greece ran rampant last night when the Players' production of "Amphitryon 38" opened a weekend run in Schwab Auditorium.

S. N. Behrman has borrowed loosely from Jean Giraudoux to delve into the love life of the gods and come up with a theatrical prank rich in rhetorical elegance, but thin in plot. The old bedroom comedy embellished in classical dress spreads rather thin through three acts.

As is typical in high comedy, Behrman's masquerade is not to be taken seriously and lacks the feeling of a third dimension. There is no verisimilitude in which the audience can lose itself, no great conflict to stir the emotions. When the curtain falls the audience is left with the impact of having leafed through a picture book in which the context is colorful, entertaining, and even amusing, but after all only paper.

The play approaches farce in exploiting the dubious shenanigans of Jupiter, master of the gods, who desires the beautiful Alkmene and assumes the mortal

Tickets $4 Per Couple

The ticket dispersal system for the dance, which will feature the music of Billy May, is entirely different from previous years. There is no limit on the number of tickets that any one cadet or midshipman may obtain.

Sales of tickets will be conducted in the Army ROTC office in Carnegie hall, the Air Force office in the Armory, and the Navy Ward Room on the second floor of Engineering E. The agencies for the tickets, which will cost $4 per couple, will be staffed by members of the four military honoraries, Scabard and Blade, Pershing Rifles, Quarterdeck Society, and Arnold Air Society.

Cadets who desire to reserve tickets may do so by signing lists that will be available at the registration desks of the three branches in Rec Hall Jan. 28 through 31.

VMI to Select Finalists

The Mil Ball queen selection will occur at the intermission of the dance. She will be chosen from five finalists by a board of judges from the College faculty.

The five finalists will be obtained through the cooperation of the Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va. Entrants' photographs will be sent there for judging by the military staff. These selections will appear at the dance, and the four runners-up to the queen will form her court.

The queen will receive an engraved, silver-plated crown as a symbol of her reign. The finalists will receive bouquets and leather jewelry cases.

The rules set up by the committee are:

1. Only Army and Air Force cadets and Navy midshipmen are eligible to submit entries for the Military Ball queen.

2. Any cadet or midshipman wishing to enter his wife, fiancée, or date must submit a portrait 5 by 7 inches or larger with her name, address, and a brief description at the Army, Navy, or Air Force offices. Photographs will be returned.

3. Deadline for submitting the entries will be noon Feb. 14.

4. All finalists must be present

AA Offers New Status To Graduating Seniors

Graduating seniors are being introduced to a new status, that of alumni, by the Penn State Alumni Association. The association is offering a special membership rate of $2 if the fee is paid on or before Commencement Day. The regular rate is $3.

Alumni Association membership offers varied services. Among these are priority on reserved football tickets; subscriptions to the Penn State Alumni News, a magazine issued seven times a year; the Penn Stater, a quarterly newspaper; and the Football Letter, a behind-the-scenes account of each football game.

The publications are designed to help alumni maintain contacts with College classmates by recording what alumni are doing in their respective fields. They also provide news of progress at the College.

Sixty-eight active Penn State alumni district clubs are sponsored by the Alumnae Association. Clubs are located in almost every county of the state, in large cities throughout the nation, and in Puerto Rico. Speakers and films for club meetings are provided by the association. Business and social contacts are available to alumni club members.

Other functions conducted by the Alumni Association include class reunions, the Alumni Institute in June, and Homecoming in the fall. The most complete biographical and occupational records of the 50,000 alumni of the College and the only active College alumni mailing list in existence are also maintained by the association.

Consequently, the Alumni office, 104 Old Main, has requested that graduating seniors report their current mailing addresses to the office whether or not they join the Alumni Association.

Final Debate On Proposal Set for Feb. 5

By MARSHALL O. DONLEY

First approval of a 20-cent-per-semester fee to support a campus radio station was given by All-College Cabinet last night. Final approval must wait upon the next cabinet meeting, scheduled for Feb. 5.

The 20-cent fee was the result of an amendment to a motion by All-College vice president James Plyler asking for 15 cents per semester to pay the student half of the support of the station. David Pellnitz, chairman of the Board of Publications, suggested the additional 5 cents.

This additional money may be used for expansion of radio facilities in fraternities and larger town housing units. These units would not have been reached except by frequent modulation signals under the plans designed on a budget based on a 15-cent fee.

The College has already indicated that it would match the 15-cent fee, which would raise $3000 a year, with $3000 from its funds. It is not yet known if the administration will now supply $4000, the amount which will be supplied by the students if cabinet gives a second approval to last night's motion.

Pellnitz presented a motion to table a vote on the fee until the next cabinet meeting. The tabling motion was defeated with only seven votes in its favor.

Before voting on the amount to be assessed for the station, Cabinet gave unanimous approval of a constitution for the radio station, after it was read by Emery Richardson, chairman of cabinet's radio committee. Richardson also presented a list of the proposed expenses of the station.

David R. Mackey, professor of speech and one of the persons who has worked on the station plans, was present at the meeting to answer questions about the station presented by the members of cabinet. He explained, in as much as possible, where the $6000 that was asked for operating expenses would go.

The approval notice of cabinet will be presented to the office of President Milton S. Eisenhower, where it can be used in consideration for the administrative portion of the funds to be added to the amount voted by Cabinet.

Cabinet members were instructed to return to their var-

No More Spring! Winter to Return Sunday Morning

This phenomenal spring weather with temperatures in the high 50's will come to a halt Sunday morning when a cold air mass will arrive here, bringing with it temperatures of about zero degrees, according to Charles L. Hosler, assistant professor of meteorology.

These sunshiny days, called the January thaw by Hosler, are not unusual for this time of year. Weather tomorrow will be cloudy, with showers likely, getting cooler by tomorrow night, he said.

The cold air mass moving toward the College is coming from Minnesota, where mid-afternoon temperatures yesterday were ten degrees below zero, Hosler said.

Last Collegian Saturday

Tomorrow's issue of the Daily Collegian will be the last published this semester. Daily Collegian publication will be resumed Feb. 3.

Recreation Hall To Stay Open For Dancing

Recreation Hall will remain open for free dancing after the doubleheader wrestling-basketball program tomorrow night, according to Dean Ernest B. McCoy of the School of Physical Education and Athletics.

Recordings will provide music for the dance, McCoy said, because the time after the game will be too short to call for use of a band. This will be the second home Saturday night event in Rec Hall this semester and the second to have a free dance follow it.

The Phys Ed School hired a band for the first dance. McCoy said present plans call for the continuation of the dances on Saturday nights next semester.

The College wrestlers meet Lehigh at 7 p.m. in Rec Hall tomorrow. A basketball game with Ithaca will follow the wrestling, with the free dancing following immediately after the Ithaca game.

Women Debaters To Hold Tryouts

The women's debate squad will hold the first call for tryouts at 7 p.m. Feb. 2 in 2 Sparks.

Undergraduate women interested in varsity debate may attend the meeting to hear Clayton H. Schug, associate professor of public speaking, explain the national topic, Resolved: That the Congress of the United States should enact a compulsory fair employment practices law.

Instructions for tryouts will be announced at that time, according to Marian Ungar, debate manager. Interested women unable to attend the meeting may contact Miss Ungar in 124 Simmons.
