

Graduating Women Hear College Education Aims

The development that should have taken place after four years of college was described by Kent Forster, associate professor of history, at the Dean of Women's Coffee Hour for senior women Wednesday night.

Forster listed some of the areas of development as "physical, informational, attitudes, and values." He said that by the end of

European Study Seminar Open To Students

A summer seminar group open to both students and faculty will spend three weeks at a European university and visit six countries during July and August.

The group, which is part of the College's Institute of International Understanding, will be introduced to historic landmarks, art treasures, and contemporary life of the peoples of western and central Europe.

In each of the six countries, England, France, Italy, Switzerland, Yugoslavia, and Austria, they will meet local people prepared to discuss current problems. They will be accompanied by native guides on visits to major points of interest and will be free to pursue individual interests.

The second phase of the trip will include residence for two to three weeks at an international summer school in Austria and numerous trips to European cities.

William H. Gray, professor of history, will lead the group. Membership is open to from 12 to 20 students, teachers, and others who desire this type of introduction to Europe. Further information is available from Professor Gray in 114 Sparks or from the General Extension Services.

White Gets Appointment

Dr. Marsh W. White, professor of physics, has been appointed to a two-year term on the editorial board of the publication "Physics Today."

four years, a person should realize the complexity of the world and what he doesn't know and where to find it.

Graduating women are instructed by the Dean of Women's office to wear black shoes, preferably heels, and hose for Commencement. The academic gown must be worn as it is, without any decoration, and candidates for bachelors' degrees are to fasten their gowns at the neck.

Concerning attitudes, he voiced the hope that some pre-college attitudes have been strengthened and new ones added. He stressed the importance of college as a means of breaking away from home and impressing the values of extra-curricular activities.

Dean of Women Pearl O. Weston has urged those seniors who did not come to the coffee hour to complete their personnel forms at her office in Old Main. Miss Weston also invited women graduates to "stop in" and say goodbye before leaving.

Identification cards will be sent to women graduates by the American Association of University Women. These cards state that the holder is a graduate of an accredited university and eligible for membership in the A.A.U.W. Graduating seniors are also invited to contact and affiliate with the Penn State alumni clubs in their localities.

Students interested in helping with arrangements may contact Miss Wallace, WRA social chairman, at 341 McElwain.

Woven Textiles By Anni Albers Now On Display

An exhibition of woven textiles by Anni Albers, one of the leading figures in textile design, is being shown in the lounge of McElwain Hall. The textiles will be on display until Feb. 4.

The exhibit is scheduled to be one in a series of exhibitions and lectures to be sponsored by the fine and applied arts division of the Architecture department.

The textiles were first shown in the Museum of Modern Art in New York in 1949 and are being circulated throughout the United States.

The textiles of Mrs. Albers, wife of the abstract painter Joseph Albers, combine such things as paper, corn kernels, grass, and string to achieve various patterns in texture.

Other exhibits to be presented will include: "American Modernists," paintings from the Aeon Bement Gallery, Feb. 11 to March 2; "Abstract Landscapes in Oil," by Stuart Frost of State College, March 3 to 21; and from the Museum of Modern Art, "The City," April 1 to 23.

A series of Wednesday afternoon lecture-readings from the written works of Eugene Delacroix, Paul Gauguin, Vincent Van Gogh, and John Marin are also being planned for late February and early March.
